Air, Shipping Contracts Involved Cost U. S. $26,054,000.

May Alter Entire Subsidy System

Investigation Will Lead to "Modification or Cancellation."

By Leon Dure, Jr.

An investigation of foreign air-mail and ocean mail contracts, with a view to either "modification or cancellation," was directed by President Roosevelt in an Executive order made public yesterday at the White House.

This further step against post-office contracts let during prior regimes, following hard on the heels of the President's abrogation of domestic airmail awards last winter, is expected to alter the whole subsidy system supporting the United States merchant marine.

In some quarters the inquiry was interpreted as foreshadowing complete revision of ocean mail policy, whereby frank subsidies would be substituted for the present arrangement—a change which the President and Postoffice Department are known to favor.

Specific Subsidies Urged.

The Associated Press, in a copyrighted article, declared that Secretary of Commerce Roper has recommended specific subsidies to cover building and operating costs of lines which compete with foreign shipping, completely divorcing subsidies from the carrying of mail.

However, the Executive order, which was signed at sea on July 11, gives no hint of Administration plans, beyond authorizing Postmaster General Farley to hold hearings on any of the contracts after 60 days' notice and to make recommendations to the President within six months.

Directly involved are more than a score of shipping companies, which last year received $26,054,000 for carrying mail figured at $3,000,000 on a weight basis and three air transport concerns, chief of which is the Pan-American.

Authority Granted Last Year.

Authority for this sweeping action against the foreign mail contract holders was contained in Section 5 of the independent offices appropriation act, approved June 16, 1933, which was quoted by the President in his order.

Under this section, the President is enabled to cancel or modify any contract whenever it shall appear to him, after due notice and public hearings, that "full performance of such contract is not required in the

Danville Votes For Rum, Beer

Wets Are Victorious in Local Option Election Under Repeal.

Danville, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Danville today voted for a dispensary and the sale of full-powered beer in the first local option election held in Virginia under the new State liquor act.

The vote was 1991 for the dispensary and 1396 against, the majority of 595 surprising the prodispensary workers. Four of the nine city wards voted dry, the others piling up sizable wet majorities. The vote was unusually large and was marked by heavy work on the part of rival forces in getting out the vote.

Good order prevailed during the day. It is expected a dispensary will be operating here within the next 30 days. It was the first fight lost by the organized churches in many years.

Grain Prices Sent Skyward on Mart

Short Crop Prediction Is Signal for Buying.

Chicago, July 17 (AP).—Speculators snatched at an unexpectedly sensational prediction of the corn yield of five impotrant producing States and sent prices, particularly for wheat and corn, whirling upward today.

A bullish estimate by Nat C. Murray, a recognized authority, that because of severe drought and intense heat Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas will produce less than half as much corn this year as had been forecast June 30 had an impressive effect on the market.

Corn prices were advanced 3 cents to within a few cents of the year's peaks. Profit-taking reduced this gain, September closing at 61½-⅝, but all contracts showed increases of ⅞ to 1¾ cents from yesterday. Wheat showed a maximum rise of almost 3 cents, but closed below that level.

Bobby Connor, Safe But Starved; Thought Kidnaped, Then Freed

Believed Placed in Wood Frequently Searched Last 24 Hours.

Hartsdale, N. Y., July 17 (AP).—Baby Bobby Connor, found scratched but smiling in nearby woods after he had been missing for five days, lay seriously ill of exposure and starvation tonight while police expressed the belief he had been abducted and then freed.

"I am forced to the conclusion that it must have been a kidnaping," said Capt. Philip J. McQuillan, head of the Greenburgh police.

"I feel that the baby was placed in the woods (which had been searched frequently) in the last 24 hours. I don't think he could have crawled or walked that far back into the woods."

Twenty-one month-old Bobby was discovered in a bramble thicket a half mile back of his parents' home in midafternoon by Sergt. Jerome Hogan, accompanied by Officer Rossele Dunckel, of Greenburgh.

Officer Tells of Discovery.

Hogan described the finding in these words:

"Captain McQuillan and I went up that way last night looking for a well, where we thought the baby might have fallen in.

"Captain McQuillan told Officer Dunckel and me to go up there again this afternoon and just sort of look around. We looked over the wall and saw a space of trampled grass.

"At the same time we saw the baby. I said, 'here's Bobby now,' and he kind of looked up at us.

"Then we ran home with him to his mother."

Officer Dunckel said he and the sergeant had been walking southwest from the Connor home.

"I said to Hogan, 'Let's turn back,' and then I changed my mind," Dunckel continued.

BOBBY CONNOR.

"We walked a few steps farther into the woods and we saw a path—the tall grass had been trampled down. Beyond the path there was a brick wall about a foot and a half high.

"Suddenly we saw the boy. He was propped up against the rocks.

Mrs. McAdoo Gets Divorce From Senator

Incompatibility Plea Made by Daughter of Wilson.

Los Angeles, July 17 (AP).—After brief testimony that she and William Gibbs McAdoo, junior United States Senator from California, were incompatible, Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo was granted a divorce by Superior Judge Allen Campbell here late today.

Mrs. McAdoo testified that she could not live in Washington, where as a Senator, Mr. McAdoo is obliged to spend the larger part of each year. Her physician, Dr. Rea Smith, also testified that she should not live in the cold winter climate of the Nation's Capital.

Following the testimony, hardly more than five minutes all told, Judge Campbell granted the decree.

Henry Greavy appeared for Mrs. McAdoo and Arnold A. Odlum appeared for Senator McAdoo, who was not in court.

The court approved a property settlement which was not made public and awarded custody of the two children, Eleanor, 19, and Faith, 14, to Mrs. McAdoo.

It was understood both plaintiff and defendant would continue to live in Los Angeles.

Heat Victim Dies As City Cools Off

Respite From Torrid Wave to Continue Today.

Washington was comfortably cool yesterday, with a maximum temperature of 84 degrees at 4 p. m., as one death was caused by the receding heat wave.

William C. Douglas, 68, of the 300 block of Thirteenth street southeast, died at Casualty Hospital as the result of a heat stroke suffered at his home Monday.

Today's weather will be clear, without much change in temperature, the Weather Bureau predicted. Yesterday's minimum was 69.5 at 5 a. m., and the humidity reading was 49 at 8 a. m.

Goldsborough Will Run for Governorship

Senator's Decision Tangles G.O.P. Primary Race; Leaders to Meet.

Baltimore, July 17 (Spl.).—Announcement by United States Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough today that he is a candidate for the Republican Gubernatorial nomination, has thrown G. O. P. leaders into a turmoil. A meeting has been called for tomorrow in an effort to straighten out the tangled political situation.

Senator Goldsborough's entry into the race, while not entirely unexpected, had the effect of still further splitting the badly shattered "united front" for which the leaders of the party had called early in the campaign in the hope of smashing the disorganized Democratic opposition.

Many Republicans, however, look

Walter Hagen Absolved Of Blame in Auto Death

St. Paul, July 17 (AP).—Walter Hagen, internationally known golfer, today was absolved of blame in the death of Lawrence Johnson, 6, struck by a car driven by Hagen Saturday.

Dr. C. A. Ingersen, Ramsey County coroner, said an inquest was not necessary. Hagen was in St. Paul for the St. Paul open golf championship.

Dollar Liner's Crew, In Genoa, Strikes Too

Genoa, Italy, July 17 (U.P.).—The crew of 150 men on the Dollar liner President Hayes went on strike at 5 p. m. here today in sympathy with the strikers in San Francisco. Three ringleaders were arrested.

The officers of the ship requested intervention of the Italian police and Fascist harbor militia in Genoa, who boarded the ship and made the arrests. It was revealed that there was another "strike" at sea on Sunday morning, and that the American liner was delayed ten hours prior to entering Genoa harbor.

Two Grizzlies in Denver Zoo, Irked by Heat, Slay Keeper

Denver, July 17 (AP).—Two huge grizzly bears, irked by unusual heat, attacked and killed their keeper, Charles E. Wyman, today and threw the whole Denver Zoo into turmoil.

Guards shot and killed the two grizzlies, but the veteran keeper already was dead. He had entered the cage to cool it off with water. He played a hose over the concrete floor and it was believed accidentally turned the water upon one of the bears, Lady Yellowstone, who was brought here 20 years ago from Yellowstone Park as a cub.

With a roar, the grizzly was on him. Wyman turned the full force of the hose in her face, but only enraged the animal more. Lady Yellowstone's mate, Teddy, plunged into the struggle and the two quickly mangled the keeper.

New Evolution Proof—Loose Monkey Vamped

Chicago, July 17 (AP).—The two-day monkey hunt in the tangled wilds of the Dearborn railroad station ended in success today for the trappers.

They lured Benny, the fugitive monkey, back into captivity by playing on his weakness. They put a lady monkey in the station and she vamped him down. Benny had escaped from a crate in which he was being shipped to an animal catcher.

Investors' Giant Fraud Ring Bared

Bondholders in 25 Firms 'Mulcted,' Sabath Tells House Probers.

Inquiry Made National in Scope as U.S. Agents Give Findings.

By Robert C. Albright.

Operation in Washington of a bondholders' protective committee and receivership "ring," milking valuable real estate properties and misleading investors, was charged yesterday by Chairman Adolph J. Sabath of the House committee investigating real estate bondholders' reorganizations.

Prompted by hundreds of local complaints, Chairman Sabath assigned an investigator to trail down leads in the Washington area, as his committee organized for an inquiry embracing most of the big cities in the East and Middle West.

Supplementing findings of the group's investigative staff, reinforced by agents of the Justice, Treasury and Postoffice Departments, the committee yesterday ordered 7,000 questionnaires printed and distributed to bondholders' committees throughout the Nation.

Bondholders "Mulcted."

Bondholders in at least 25 big reorganized properties in Washington, many of them formerly owned by F. H. Smith Co., Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co., and Harry Wardman, were declared by Chairman Sabath to have been "mulcted."

"The evidence is so far-reaching that we may change our minds about a public hearing here, and hold one covering this whole section," he said following yesterday's meeting of the House Committee.

Sabath said there is no doubt in his mind that some "misleading" operations in bonds of defunct properties in this city show evidence of an organized "ring" in the background.

"In many instances the same gentlemen are in control of not one but a number of these bondholders' groups," he said. "There is evidence to show that some of those active in this role were not bondholders at the time of reorganization.

"Little companies have been organized here and there, as Delaware corporations, ostensibly to protect the bondholder. But the purpose underlying reorganizations in a number of instances was to get control, milk the properties and deal in and manipulate the securities, our evidence will show.

"The names of dummies have been used in many instances. In some cases they have obtained consent of bondholders to sell their securities at 8, 10 or 12 cents on the dollar, then asked consent to purchase other bonds with this money. In some instances, bondholders have reported they have not only lost their bonds, but the money they were supposed to receive from them."

Only $15,000 Provided.

In authorizing the investigation and designating the Sabath Committee, the House provided only $15,000 for the inquiry.

Due to the shortage in funds, Chairman Sabath said committee investigators are being sent only to Chicago, Detroit, New York and Washington, but in other cities "voluntary investigators" will be engaged to help out, with a minimum of cost. Principal headquar-

Mystery Death Probe Ordered

3 Kinds of Poison Found in Osterman Home; Brother Sick.

Mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of Charles F. Osterman, former Washington policeman, and a sudden serious illness of his brother, O. Osterman, lawyer, last night led Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald to order an autopsy on the body of the dead man.

Three different kinds of powerful poison were found in the house in the 1300 block of Maple View place southeast, where the brothers were living. Charles was found dying there by relatives while his brother was discovered in a semi-conscious condition.

Charles, 63, recently has been employed as a carpenter at St. Elizabeths Hospital and is a brother of Vincent Osterman, a patrolman attached to the Eleventh Precinct in Anacostia.

Two months ago the mother of the Ostermans died at the Southeast Washington address.

The body of Charles Osterman was removed to the Morgue, where the autopsy will be performed today, while the lawyer brother was taken to Gallinger Hospital for treatment.

High Bail Set For 22 Game Raid Victims

Police Batter 3 Doors to Haul Off Party as Curious Watch.

Charges Set Precedent by Accusing All as Equally Guilty.

With precedent-setting tactics, the police vice squad yesterday battered its way into third-floor quarters of a building at Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, arrested 22 men, and held them under bonds of $2,000 each on separate charges of setting up a gaming table.

Led by Sergt. George C. Deyce, a three-man squad struck with such swiftness that occupants of the place were caught unawares. Three reenforced doors were rammed from their hinges before the raiders won entrance.

Race betting and petty gambling were in process, the policemen reported. Groups of men stood about paper race charts on the walls, while others engaged in various games of chance, the raiders said.

Crowd Watches Departure.

A crowd of curious gathered as the prisoners were loaded into police patrols. At headquarters the men were herded into one small room and questioned individually by Lieut. George Little, vice squad chief.

A short time later Lieut. Little ordered each prisoner booked on the gaming charge. Admitting the procedure set a precedent, the squad chief declared:

"All those men knew there was a gambling joint in operation, so all are charged with the offense. The courts can do as they like with the charges. In the future, we will hold every prisoner responsible unless we can learn the operator's identity. In this case no one would admit responsibility, so we consider one as guilty as the other."

Unable to post the required $2,000 bonds, many of those arrested were still held at various police stations late last night. Bondsmen said that they could not furnish a total of $44,000 for all.

List of Prisoners.

Anthony Passero, alias Tony Passero, alias "Bull" Montana, 30, of the 600 block of Fourth street northeast; Frank Spasaro 41 of the 600 block of Pennsylvania avenue; Furman E. Peake, 41, of the 400 block of Pennsylvania avenue northwest; John W. Boland, 42, of the 4400 block of Warder street northwest; John S. ### Ickes to Take Vacation At Secret Destination

Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes said yesterday he would leave on a three week's vacation Friday, but declined to reveal his destination, other than to say he would stop in Chicago. It was rumored that he might go further West and visit Yellowstone Park.

"I'm going to put on some false whiskers so nobody can find me," he said.

Maryland Forest Fire Burns Three Dwellings

Crisfield, Md., July 17 (Spl.).—A forest and marsh fire which raged for several hours today burned three dwellings in its path and for a time threatened other homes in the Byrdtown section, near here.

One of the dwellings burned was the old homestead of the late Harry Knotts. The other two buildings were unoccupied. Volunteers and Crisfield firemen formed a bucket brigade and succeeded in quenching the flames. The fire is thought to have been caused by a careless smoker.

Plan for Arbitration Is Offered by Roosevelt Labor Board.

Unionists to Put Proposal to Vote

Walkout of 35,000 in Portland Is Delayed; Disorders Go On.

San Francisco, July 17 (AP).—Breaks in the general strike clouds even while they were spreading their blighting shadows over more Pacific Coast cities appeared in two places today.

A member of President Roosevelt's labor disputes board disclosed a definite proposal to end the phenomenal mass walkouts by submitting the central issues to arbitration and by a concerted return to work as soon as this was under way.

The arbitration resolution was to be voted upon by the strike committee representing all the unions on walkout.

"If we can get labor to pass the resolution, we can settle the strike," the labor disputes board member declared.

He stated he was positive the employers would agree to arbitration of the entire controversy if the labor leaders would do likewise.

Portland Strike Delayed.

In Portland, Oreg., a mass meeting to have been held late today to decide upon a general walkout of 35,000 workers there was suddenly called off until the strikers' strategy committee has had a chance to discuss the situation with Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York.

Definite facts were lacking, but the great general strike committee of San Francisco met suddenly in executive session.

George Kidwell, conservative labor leader, said a resolution of "great significance" would be acted upon. This was rumored to be the proposal that the central issues be submitted to "unlimited arbitration" and that the general strike be stopped immediately.

All this came about while San Francisco still was under the spell of warlike rule, while the mass walkout spread officially to Oakland, Alameda, Berkeley and other East bay communities, making the strikers 100,000 strong.

Roosevelt Kept Advised.

President Roosevelt, himself Honolulu-bound on the destroyer Houston, received radio reports of the ominous situation and in Washington it was disclosed there had been several requests for executive intervention.

Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, was in San Francisco and avowedly at the disposal of anyone seeking his assistance toward a settlement.

Senator Wagner, outstanding labor legislator, was flying to Portland in an effort to conciliate the increasingly threatening differences there.

Sabotage, window smashing and the beating of men here and there marked the second day of the general walkout in San Francisco and the first day in Oakland and the other East Bay cities.

Roving patrols of National Guardsmen were turned loose in Oakland to help the already enlarged police force maintain order.

Waterfront Barricaded.

Upward of 4,600 National Guardsmen were well emplaced behind Army tanks, machine guns, bayonet-pointed rifles and heavy stores of ammunition in San Francisco. The waterfront and the wholesale district were barricaded from the rest of the city and fresh food supplies began moving in under armed convoys.

The strikers began to relax their grip on the wheels of commerce. Trolley car transportation was restored to a small fraction of the besieged city when the municipal railway began running under a mutual arrangement between strikers and city officials.

Fifty-one restaurants were open under union sanction. Yesterday only 19 had operated in that manner. Nearly 2,000 others remained closed, however, and the food situation was acute in places.

A general clean-up of asserted Communists was begun by San Francisco police almost simultaneously with the outcropping of peace reports.

116 Communists Arrested.

In sudden sallies, the bluecoats arrested 116 Communists and announced they were on the trail of Communistic leaders. The officers said they had the names of 2,000 others.

This followed a Nation-wide radio address last night by Gov. Frank F. Merriam in which the chief executive strongly advocated a cleanup of agitators.

The part which agitators and Communists have played in the crucial troubles has been only a collateral issue thus far. Business

General Walkout Is Held Civil War, Not to Be Tolerated.

Berkeley, Calif., July 17 (AP).—Terming the general strike "civil war," Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, declared here today that the blocking of necessities of life to a whole people is "bloody insurrection."

"The right of dissatisfied men to strike against a recalcitrant employer is inviolate," Gen. Johnson said in an address before the University of California student body.

Husband's Thyroid Removed, Wife Hopes for Domestic Bliss

Chicago, July 17 (AP).—With his thyroid gland removed, Fomler M. Petersen will make a good husband, his bride of six months believes.

For the reason she withdrew today the divorce suit she filed against him last March and they left Judge Walter J. La Buy's court together to seek the domestic felicity long withheld by his illness.

The Petersens were married here January 27 and, after their separation March 11, she filed a bill for divorce, charging cruelty.

He beat her three days after their wedding, she said, choked her, burned her hair and neck with a cigarette he threw at her, threw cigarettes at her in the bathtub and locked her in a closet.

Five weeks ago Petersen, a bond salesman, underwent an operation for removal of his thyroid, which had enlarged and become overactive, termed a toxic goiter.

Two weeks ago, his attorney, Robert E. Cantwell, jr., pleaded with Judge La Buy for a delay of the trial of the suit, asserting that the operation had changed his client so that he thought Petersen could live happily with his wife.

Today, after a two-week test period, the wife agreed with him. Petersen had lost all the irritability, nervousness and unstable temperament that physicians said went with the toxic goiter and had the possibility of becoming a companionable husband, she said, and she was willing to return to him.

The thyroid is a ductless gland in the neck which maintains the activity of all the cells of the body at the normal level. When it becomes overactive, cell activity increases proportionately, so that the whole body reflects the condition, with loss of weight, heart trouble, extreme nervous tension, restlessness, tremor and mental and emotional instability, subject to fits of ungovernable temper at minor irritations.

Removal of all or part of the thyroid or destruction with X-ray reduces the excess stimulation and calms the disordered nerves, physicians explained.

interests repeatedly charged the strikers were being dominated by a relatively few radicals, but union men countered with assertions that their ranks were made up of all shades of political opinions and each individual had a right to his own.

Bombing Threats.

In Oakland, "close up squads" warned all but 22 union-sanctioned restaurants to lock their doors. Other shop-keepers received threats and closed. Mysterious telephone calls threatening bombings were received by merchants.

A unit of the National Guard was sent to Stockton to protect commodities piled on the waterfront.

Authorities in the East Bay region announced that they had the "situation in hand" as special corps of peace officers were organized hurriedly.

Food supplies, under heavy guard, were rushed into the stricken East Bay and San Francisco areas for the 1,300,000 population.

The Key System ferryboats and trains were tied up by the strike in the East Bay region, stranding many of the 500.000 population in that area and delaying others who commuted to their work in San Francisco. Southern Pacific transbay ferries continued to operate, however.

U. S. Intervention Looms.

Sheriff M. B. Driver hurriedly sent special deputy sheriff corps to strategic points throughout Alameda County to protect harvesting, canneries, gas tanks, electric plants and public property.

The possibility of Federal intervention was foreseen in extraordinary activities of Army, Navy and Marine authorities.

Brig- Genl. F. L. Bradman, of the Marine Corps, flew here from San Diego and conferred with Maj. Gen. Malin Craig, Ninth Army Corps area commander, who has some 1,000 seasoned regulars and formidable equipment at the San Francisco presidio.

Rear Admiral Yancey S. Williams conferred with officers at the Mare Island naval base, up the bay from here. Available there on the cruisers San Francisco and Cincinnati were 1,200 sailors and 200 marines.

800 Truck Drivers Strike at Baltimore

Men Ordered Out After Mediation Fails.

Baltimore, July 17 (AP).—Eight hundred members of the Baltimore truck drivers' union were called out on strike late today by Harry Cohen, business manager, after a conciliation board was unable to reach a decision.

The dispute hinged on demands of the union for recognition for collective bargaining by the Davidson Transfer Co. The union also is seeking higher wages and shorter hours, but union officials said they would agree to negotiate on these demands.

The 800 called out represent about half the membership of the organization.

Violence Opens Alabama Strike

State-Wide Walkout Finds 15,000 Jobless.

Huntsville, Ala., July 17 (AP).—Rioting at one mill and threats of violence at another today marked the beginning of an announced State-wide strike of textile mill workers, which found more than 20 mills idle and an estimated 15,000 away from their jobs a few hours after the dead line had been reached.

Angry strikers swarmed about the Fletcher Cotton Mill, last of Huntsville's six plants to remain in operation, and brandished clubs and sticks until the plant was closed.

Police reserves and special deputies who went to the mill with a machine gun and rifles found a throng in the yard of the plant, but the tension had been slackened by the shutdown.

At Florence, where three mills are out, officials of the Gardiner-Warring Knitting Mill said their plant was closed, although only 72 of their 500 employes were on strike.

Strike Zone Borders on Financial District

Strike-Zone Reports Cheer U. S. Leaders

Secretary Perkins Is Told Prospects for Truce Are Good.

Federal agencies which have been following the general strike situation in aSn Francisco received encouraging reports yesterday.

Secretary of Labor Perkins was advised that conditions appeared more favorable, at least as far as a truce was concerned.

The Federal Emergency Relief Administration, which had been anticipating a call for foodstuffs, heard that need of Government aid was slight.

Relaxation of the cordon drawn around San Francisco by the strikers obviated the necessity for Federal relief at this time, Aubrey Williams, acting administrator, was advised.

Williams announced yesterday a survey had convinced him that San Francisco's food supply was ample and that immediate help from the FERA was not necessary to prevent hunger.

Watchful Waiting.

The various Government departments concerned with strike developments on the Pacific Coast continued yesterday their policy of watchful waiting. Secretary Perkins had no comment to make, the National Labor Relations Board concerned itself principally with the situation in the Middle West, and the War and Navy Departments were without information.

The National Labor Relations Boadr yesterday sent Father Francis J. Haas, for years a student of labor relations, to Minneapolis, to assist in mediation of the truck drivers' strike in th eTwin Cities. Father Haas recently helped arrange the agreement which terminated the electric strike in Milwaukee.

The board also took action in connection with the situation in Milwaukee, formally refusing the request of the company union there for an election to determine what labor groups should represent the Milwaukee Electric & Light Co.'s plant in collective bargaining.

Decision Upheld.

A previous decision of the new board held that the A. F. of L. unions should speak for cetrain groups. The company union protested and sought a vote, but the boar stood by its original decision.

Lloyd K. Garrison, chairman of the board, announced:

"We have carefully reviewed the whole situation, and, under the circumstances, we do not think it would be in the public interest to order an election immediately following the settlement of a controversy."

With serious labor troubles in half a dozen important centers, Secretary Perkins was constantly on the telephone yesterday. She received hourly communications from San Francisco, as well as reports from Portland, Oreg., Minneapolis, and Birmihgham, Ala. Miss Perkins refused to comment upon the report from San Francisco that Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, had offered his services in connection with mediation efforts.

President's Return Urged.

Secretary Perkins was advised that Senator Robert Wagner, of New York, who is en route to Portland, had proposed to go to San Francisco after a survey of the situation at the Oregon port. Officials here said that Senator Wagner would have time to review thoroughly conditions at Portland and then proceed to the trouble center farther south before anything decisive occurred.

At the White House it was revealed that President Roosevelt is being besieged by requests from San Francisco officials and business men to turn aside from his proposed trip to Hawaii and personally act as arbitrator in the general strike. There was no indication in wireless dispatches from the U. S. S. Houston, now in the vicinity of Clipperton Island, where the President had intended to do some fishing, that the Nation's Chief Executive would change his plans to proceed to Honolulu.

Meanwhile Administration officials and leaders of the United Textile Workers of America were following developments closely in the State-wide strike of cotton mill workers in Alabama. It was feared the walkout might extend to other States.

Robert Bruere, chairman of the Cotton Textile Industrial Relations Board, maintained communications with the Alabama board to which, for the time being at least, he has entrusted arbitration.

Wall at Lorton Held Big Need

Board Committee Finds Quelling of Revolt Was Just Luck.

A first-hand inspection of Lorton Reformatory by the public order committee of the Washington Board of Trade convinced its members unanimously yesterday of the "extreme necessity" of a wall around the Lorton cell block.

The committee will take action immediately to obtain board support in the fight for $500,000 from the Public Works Administration, with which to build the wall as well as an administration building and a mess hall.

"We are just plain lucky that the revolt last year," declared Dr. J. prisoners didn't break out in the B. Gregg Custis, a member of the committee.

At present more than 1,200 prisoners are at Lorton, which was built to take care of only 800. The original intention was to make the institution only a reformatory, with no inmate remaining for more than five years. It now houses 23 "lifers," however, as well as 400 more whose terms exceed 5 years.

The members of the committee visiting the prison yesterday included Chairman Odell Smith, Claude W. Owen, Thomas P. Littlepage, Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, Charles Bates and Dr. Custis. After being entertained at luncheon by Supt. M. M. Barnard, the committee made its inspection tour.

C. D. Baylis, Sr., Is Dead Here

Was Active in Painting and Decorating Business in Capital.

Born in Wilmington, Del., Mr. Baylis later moved to Philadelphia, where he followed his profession until 1916, when he moved to Washington.

He was a member of Integrity Lodge, F. A. A. M., of Philadelphia; Petworth Chapter, No. 16, R. A. M.; Brightwood Council, No. 6, R. and S. M.; Brightwood Commandery, Knights Templar, the Delaware State Society, the Petworth Citizens Association and Wallace Memorial Men's Club. Only a short time ago Mr. Baylis and his wife celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Southeast Asks Children's Pool

Engineers to Determine If Project Can Be Used for Relief Work.

District Engineers yesterday began a study to determine whether a small swimming or a wading pool can be constructed on District owned property on Potomac avenue southeast between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets as a work relief project.

Development of a pool at that location is one of the objectives of the Southeast Citizens Associtaion, as presented last week at a hearing before the Commissioners.

Speaking of another item asked by the Southeast, the removal of the garbage transfer station from New Jersey avenue and K streets southeast, Engineer Commissioner John C. Gotwals declared that he had not been able to order the change.

Maj. Gotwals intimated that he is giving serious consideration to a suggestion that building a wall around the station and roofing it might remove some of the objections to its location.

Roosevelt Silent On Strike Progress

Fails to Join Fishermen Off Mexican Coast.

Aboard U. S. S. New Orleans, at Sea, July 17 (U.P.).—President Roosevelt, silent on the San Francisco strike issue, turned resolutely toward Hawaii tonight after a day off the deserted Clipperton Island in the Pacific.

Aboard the U. S. S. Houston, the Nation's Chief Executive refused to be perturbed by word of developments on the Pacific Coast. He caused the Houston and the cruiser New Orleans, escort ship, to remain anchored for several hours off the tiny Rocky Island, 500 miles off the Mexican Coast, this afternoon, while his son, Franklin, jr., and Gus Gennerich, personal aid, went fishing.

Fo rthe first time since the cruise to Hawaii began, the President did not go on the fishing expedition when the small boats put over the side.

Luray Youth Drowns; Body Sought in River

Luray, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Claude Slater, 18, son of Cecil Slater, Luray barber, was drowned in the Shenandoah River, 2 miles west of Luray late today.

Young Slater had been fishing and later attempted a swim across the river, about 20 feet deep at the point where he went down. The river was being dragged for his body tonight.

Power Policy Committee Will Organize Today

The National power policy committee will hold its organization meeting at 2:30 p. m. today in the office of its chairman, Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes.

Mr. Ickes said general questions of policy and means of effecting reduction in electric rates over the country would be discussed at a later meeting.

"This Government has supported it and will support it to the limit. It is a weapon in a two-sided conflict. But the general strike is quite another matter.

"The general strike is a threat to a community. It is a menace to Government. Iit is civil war."

The American people, he said, will not tolerate insurrection by such a general strike.

Urges Quick Action.

"It would be safer for a cottontail to slap a wildcat in the face," he said, "than for this half of 1 per cent of our population to try to strangle the rest of us into submission by any such means as this. Let's settle this thing an ddo it now."

Johnson brushed aside the suggestion he said had been made to him that the strike of maritime workers was no concern of the Federal Government.

"When the interstate and international commerce of this nation is paralyzed up and down a whole coast by an action admittedly concerted as between ports in different States," he said, "the most backward first-year law student must know beyond peradventure that all the majesty and power of the Federal Government has been deliberately invoked."

Stoppage Held Better Than Guns.

War, Johnson said, has shown that economic strangulation is a more potent weapon than big guns.

"One side of a warring business element can no more use it (economic strangulation) than it could go into the street and shoot innocent bystanders down in cold blood with machine guns," he said. "You just can't do it in this free country. It just won't work. If the responsible elemtns of organized labor do not urge themselves of this blight immediately, they will set the clock of labor organizations back ten years."

"This situation is made to order for just settlement," he said. "Both sides are taking extreme positions. It is a trader's paradise."

Phi Beta Kappa Key Given.

Johnson was awarded an honorary Phi Beta Kappa key by the university.

The administrator, who spoke before a crowded auditorium, paid tribute to former President Herbert Hoover.

"To prove just what a roten politician I am," he said, "I must, with great respect and deference, pay respects to our fellow citizen of California, Herbert Hoover. He had an impossible job, he has eaten his own smoke. He is a great guy.

"I don't need to tel thius audience about Hiram Johnson. In student days, I regarded him with Teddy Roosevelt in a kind of awe. There is no question of his return to the Senate of the United States by the people of the State of the Great Golden Bear."

Stricter Curb Urged Here on Drunk Drivers

Present Penalties Are Not Sufficient, in Opinion of Prettyman.

Because of a serious increase in the "drunken driver" problem here, Corporation Counsel E. Barratt Prettyman yesterday proposed the adoption of more severe penalties for this offense.

Prettyman probably will have the support of the District Commissioners. Police Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen declared drunken drivers should be prosecuted to the "full extent of the law."

Prevention Held Object.

"The mere punishment of offenders after damage has been done is not a solution," Prettyman said. "Prevention of the offense is the object which the enforcement officials must seek.

"The perfect answer could be attained only by the universal adoption of a rule that a person will not drink and drive. Law enforcement officials can aid in bringing about an acceptance of that rule by making the price of violation too great for the ordinary driver to risk."

Although stating he had reached no definite conclusion, the Corporation Counsel indicated he thought present penalties insufficient. The present law provides a fine up to $500 or imprisonment up to six months, or both, for the first offense. For a second offense it runs to $1,000 or a year imprisonment, or both.

"The method of handling the problem," Prettyman continued, ought to be, first, to appeal to the sporting instincts of the vast majority of the people, and secondly, to make the price for the offense so great as to deter those who are not influenced by their general obligations to the public.

"Undoubtedly we should have the support of those who believe in the new liquor laws, because drinking and driving is certainly one of the most serious objections to any legalization of liquor."

Northwest Timber Reserve.

Salem, Ore. (U.P.).—Commercial timber in Oregon and Washington totals more than 546 billion board feet. A survey made by the State forestry department showed. Oregon forests contained 300,792,549,000 board feet, Washington 245,255,056,000. Douglas fir led all other species, with 231,821,692,000 feet in Oregon and approximately 99 billion in Washington.

Tydings Calls For Election Of Democrats

Roosevelt Record Cited as Justification for Vote Plea.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, asserting that President Roosevelt had squarely met the issues confronting his Administration, last night called for the election of Democratic Congressional candidates in the fall elections.

The Marylander hit at what he called Republican "calamity howlers," and cited campaign speeches of former President Hoover and his Secretary of the Treasury, Ogden Mills, as making dire predictions in case of Roosevelt's election. These, he said, had been refused.

"Mr. Roosevelt met squarely the banking crisis and moved quickly to serve the American people and conserve their deposits," he said. "Mr. Roosevelt met frankly the prohibition question and it was returned to the States for settlement where it rightfully belongs.

"Mr. Roosevelt met squarely the unemployment problem and took people off the breadlines and gave millions a chance to regain their self-respect and to earn money for the first time in years.

"Mr. Roosevelt met squarely the problem of the loss of the homes of our people through mortgage foreclosures or for delinquent taxes and thousands today have roofs over their heads because of his sympathy, vision and energy.

"Mr. Roosevelt met squarely the loss of farms to thousands of farmers and helped keep families on the land instead of turning them adrift to enlarge the breadline."

Takoma Park Drys Win Fight On Liquor Sale

But Commissioners Will Probably Allow Beer, Is Unofficial Word.

Takoma Park residents won a partial victory in efforts for a "dry" community yesterday, following a stormy hearing before the District Commissioners.

Although announcement of policy was withheld, it was indicated the Commissioners would favor a ban on hard liquor and wines in Takoma, but would not oppose the sale of beer.

The Commissioners will instruct the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board that because a majority of sentiment exists against the sale of liquors or wines, licenses for their sale shouldn't be granted.

In permitting the ale of beer, it was understood that the Commissioners' decision was caused by the recent action of Congress amending the liquor law to make possible the sale of beer in "nonconforming" stores in residential areas.

150 Ask Dry Area.

The appeal for the dry area was made to the Commissioners by a delegation of 150 men and women, many of whom greeted the representatives of those who seek liquor licenses with hisses and laughter when they argued their clients' desires.

The hearing was enlivened by cheers when dry speakers presented their briefs for making Takoma dry except for drug store sale on a physician's prescription.

The prohibition case was opened by George E. Sullivan, representing the Takoma Park Citizens Association of D. C. He declared that the liquor law gave the Commissioners the right to set aside a whole area in which no licenses may be issued.

Sullivan then offered a regulation which would prohibit the granting of any licenses except for prescription sale in the area bounded on the north and east by the District Line, on the south by Underwood street and on the west by Georgia avenue.

Declaring that the Maryland and District sections of Takoma were in many respects a single community, Sullivan added that the Maryland section had voted and was dry. He then cited the result of a recent poll in Takoma, D. C. and gave the following figures.

That from a total adult population of 3,000, 1,092 voted for total prohibition, 840 for some kinds of licenses, 463 favoring offsale of hard liuor, and 377 without objection to sale of light wines and beer.

"Dry by Tradition."

In summing up his speech, Sullivan told the commissioners that Takoma was a traditionally dry neighborhood. He declared that he hoped that Takoma Park might set a good example to the rest of the communities if it is set aside as a dry area.

Dr. Francis D. Nichol, associate editor of the Review and Herald, of Takoma Park, D. C., who was announced as the representative of the General Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, whose headquarters is in Takoma, D. C., was the next speaker.

"In your hands," Nichcol declared, "has been placed the authority by act of Congress to declare certain areas dry, an evident recognition by Congress both as to the propriety and the necessity of such a procedure. We ask nothing extravagant."

Jesse C. Suter, a Takoma resident, also spoke for the Takoma Citizens Association, saying, "We pray to be spared from the nuisance of having our little business section of Takoma, D. C., be made a wet spot in an otherwise dry community.

"The people who really do the public-spirited things in Takoma are the leaders in the movement to keep Takoma dry. Leaders of the opposition either expect a direct or an indirect financial benefit."

The other side of the question was presented to the Commissioners by D. D. Lamond, attorney for four applicants for liquor licenses—Mattingly Bros. Drug Store seeking an off-sale liquor license; the Takoma Delicatessen and the Takoma Sea Food Store both seeking an on-sale beer and wine licenses, and Simpson's Grocery Store seeking an off-sale beer license.

Accuses Clubs of Sales.

Lamond denied that Takoma was dry or had ever been dry. He read the names of a group of clubs in the area where he said liquor was sold. Further, he said that his clients had been able to get 850 favorable signatures, "after the other side had muddied up the waters for three weeks."

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen was forced to rap for order when Lamond's statement that opponents of his clients' desires could easily avoid passing their business places by taking more convenient routes to downtown Washington.

A notice of a recent church carnival, at which beer would be served, was then read by Lamond, who added, "I daresay that the people belonging to this church are as good as the church fold who are here today protesting beer licenses."

Ringgold Hart, Washington attorney, who appeared as spokesman for H. L. Thornton, Takoma real estate man, favoring granting of permits, told the Commissioner that they would be in hot water for the "rest of your natural days" if they set up a dry area.

Col. Anderson's Funeral Services Slated Today

Communists "Mopped Up" By Vigilantes

Police and Citizen Raiders Combine in Clean-up of San Francisco.

Ninety prisoners were taken in a raid on headquarters of the reputedly Communistic Marine Workers Industrial Union, now on strike. Other raids continuing into tonight brought the total of arrests to 116.

Guarded by Troops.

The civilian raids followed a precise procedure, the same in each instance. An automobile loaded with men would drive past the radical hang-out and hurl bricks through the windows. The mop-up squad promptly followed. Doors were battered down with clubs, files rifled and furniture wrecked.

Police radio cars invariably arrived after the damage was complete and the vigilantes had moved on.

As officers led by Capt. J. J. O'Meara and Capt. Arthur De Guire swarmed into the Union Building, National Guard trucks blocked the street. Soldiers manned mounted machine guns in the trucks, ready for any eventuality.

No resistance was oered and the men were taken to city prison, charged with vagrancy and held under $1,000 bond each.

Later a police detail went quietly through the dining hall of the International Longshoremen's Associated and arrested several asserted Communists.

Not Aimed at Strikers.

"It looks like a swell attempt to intimidate us," said Ralph Mallen, longshoremen official.

He was assured the raids were not directed against bona fide strikers.

"There are some Communists operating along the water front," said Mallen, "but the longshoremen haven't any time for them. The majority of the dock workers are conservative labor men with little sympathy for the red idea."

"We are going to weed out known Communist agitators carefully," said Capt. O'Meara. "Many of them are aliens. Most of them arrived here recently to take a hand in strike violence. We are going to get them out of the way before they start serious disorders. The aliens will be turned over to Federal authorities, posibly for deportation."

Food Driven Through.

Meanwhile, a food convoy on three trucks and seven armed escort cars, assembled at Redwood City to run the picket lines into San Francisco, arrived safely at 4 p. m. The convoy was trailed by 10 picket cars at the southern outskirts of the city. It was not interfered with.

First attempt to run the gasoline blockade was launched at 3:30 p. m. when two tank trucks left Niles, on the East Bay, south of Oakland, for Hayward. Deputy sheriffs along the way were notified. The gasoline was to be delivered to a substation in charge of deputy sheriffs.

The driver of a truck carrying 100 hogs consiged to the Del Monte Meat Co., escaped ith his life in San Francisco in a riot in front of the strike committee headquarters.

He parked his truck in front of the headquarters hile he applied for a permit to complete his delivery. The permit as denied. An angry throng was milling around his truck hen he mounted the cab.

Arms Confiscated.

Oakland police planned no drive against Communists, but launched one sdift raid hich resulted in 10 arrests and confiscation of enough pick handles to arm a battalion.

"We are not going to arrest Communists because they are Communists," said District Attorney Earl Warren, of Alameda County.

"We will arrest every Communist who arms himself or incites violence, hoever. The raid on the Communist party headquarters followed information that a store of weapons was being held there. Within the last month, we have arrested about 25 Communists who engaged in various acts of violence."

Agitators Driven Out.

There appeared little sympathy with Communists in Alameda County.

Three times in two days, union strikers have moved en masse into Grove Street Park and have driven agitators and their listeners to cover. Little resistance was offered the brawny teamsters and longshoremen.

Timothy A. Reardon, State director of industrial relations, reported agitators busy in Kern, Yuba and Sutter Counties. He said, however, they were making little progress in efforts to call grape and peach pickers and cannery workers out on strike.

Reardon said he was informed some Communists both in San Francisco and the agricultural districts of California had come down from the Pacific Northwest. He said they are migratory, striking where opportunity arises.

Post Carriers On Trip Today

Outing at Marshall Hall Includes Sports and Treasure Hunt.

If the carrier salesman who delivers your copy of The Washington Post is all smiles this morning, here's the season: "He's looking forward to the annual outing of The Post's carrier salesmen—a glorious trip down the Potomac River in the Wilson Line steamer City of Washington, a day at Marshall Hall, pleasure resort opposite historic Mount Vernon, where he will find an elaborate program of sports and entertainment and a swimming party.

The party, in charge of the substation managers and officials of the home delivery circulation department, will leave Washington at 10 a. m., and the Potomac trip, one of the highlights of the day, will be completed at 11:30 a. m., when the group arrives at the popular pleasure resort for lunch. During the afternoon, a series of baseball games, field and track events, in which teams from each of the 33 Washington Post substations will participate, will be staged. A treasure hunt has been arranged, and all carrier salesmen will be given free rides on the many "amusement rodes" at Marshall Hall.

The carrier salesmen will return to Washington at 5 p. m.

The trip will be in charge of E. Sheldon Anderson, home delivery manager, assisted by the 6 supervisors and 33 branch station managers of the home delivery organization.

Parley Today To Act on D. C. Rule Changes

Roberts Will Confer With Senate Committeeman on Revision.

The question of whether a Senate sub-committee will investigate the possibilities of a revolutionary change in the District government is expected to be settled this morning when People's Counsel William A. Roberts confers with Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, chairman of the sub-committee.

Roberts, with District Auditor Donovan and Budget Director Douglas, was designated a year ago to assemble data on the District government. This data, eight volumes of it, recently was presented to Senator Gore and other members of the sub-committee, including Senators Couzens of Michigan and Reynolds of North Carolina. Senator Gore returned to washington this week to begin preliminary activities in the investigation.

"The question is," Roberts said yesterday, "how deep Senator Gore wants to go into the subject. Does he want to consider a revolutionary change in the District government, or merely the reorganization of departments? Or will he want to go only into the financial side of the matter? That is what I expect to find out after I have talked to him."

Roberts indicated that hearings probably will be begun by the Reorganization Sub-committee on November 1. He emphasized that his own group of fact-finders had refrained from making recommendations. "However," he said, "we are making every effort to publicize the study we made. We are trying to stir up interest so that there will be some constructive suggestions made when the hearings begin."

Tire Price War Ruling Held Up Seek Ad Drive

Goodyear Rubber Asks Permit to Defend Trust Charges.

The Federal Trade Commission yesterday reserved decision on a motion by Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. to admit approximately 30,000 tire advertisements in newspapers of 32 cities as evidence in defense of charges of violating the Clayton antitrust act.

The company is charged with granting illegal price discriminations favoring Sears, Roebuck & Co., in the sale of so-called special brand tires.

Grover C. Higgins, Goodyear attorney, contended the advertisements should be admitted as "the only fair way" to prove his case. The data previously had been rejected in hearings by Trial Examiner John W. Bennett.

"We have prepared an extensive summary of advertising by other tire concerns during the last eight years, proving that Sears, Roebuck & Co. did not start competitive warfare in the tire industry—this is the only impartial way to judge the case," Higgins asserted.

"By applying the strictest rules of evidence against us, alone, Mr. Bennett has deprived us of the easiest way to prove our case."

William T. Kelley, making his first official appearance as acting chief counsel for the commission, asserted the material should be excluded "as it has no probative value."

"The quickest way for Goodyear to prove its case is to call in its own dealers to testify that they can profitably meet Sears competition and stay in business as a result of the special tire prices given to Sears by Goodyear," Kelley said.

E. F. Haycraft, commission attorney, asserted that the advertisements were irrelevant since there was no complaint against Sears, Roebuck.

"From those advertisements, we do not know the quality, brands and other important details and, if we admited them, we would have no opportunity to crossexamine the advertisers," Haycraft said.

He was a mass of cuts and bruises. His pink sun suit was torn. We picked him up and rushed him to the house.

"There his mother fainted. We brought her to, wrapped the boy in a blanket and rushed him to the hospital.

"His father seemed stunned."

Boy Is Thirst Victim.

From the Connor home, where the mother was placed under a physician's care, Bobby was taken to Grasslands Hospital at Eastview.

Dr. C. W. Munger, head of the institution, reported he was suffering from exposure and lack of food and water. It appeared, he said, the child received n owater in four days.

"The baby is in a very precarious condition but has a fair chance to recover," Dr. Munger added after completing his examination.

"There is evidence of starvation. I do not think the bruises, cuts and scratches on th ebaby's body could have caused any serious infection."

Blood Transfusion Planned.

Because of Bobby's weakened condition—he had lost eight pounds, a third of his weight—doctors considered giving him 100 cubic centimeters of his father's blood. A test was made to determine its suitability.

Officer Dunckel and State policemen stood by ready to furnish blood also. Physicians noted no immediate danger of pneumonia.

There was no evidence Bobby had been mistreated, the examination showed. He was still wearing the pink rompers in which his mothed had dressed him Thursday.

Confronted with the mystery of whether the child had been in the woods since Thursday evening or had been kidnaped and then placed there, today, Capt. McQuillan announced a thorough investigation would be made.

Family to Be Questioned.

"We are going to cover all angles," he said. "We will question everybody concerned, including members of the family."

After the child was found, Henry Lee Forrestier, middle-aged eccentric peddler who was detained last night, was questioned again. Forrestier had alarmed housewives in the neighborhood shortly before Bobby disappeared.

Police earlier had said they had found discrepancies in his story, and announced tonight they would continue to detain him. No charge has been filed against him.

Frank Fay, head of the Department of Justice Bureau in New York, who directed Federal agents in the search for the baby, took an active part in the new inquiry into the case.

No ransom notes are known to have been received since the baby disappeared. The parents, in modern circumstances, said last Friday they would be unable to pay a ransom.

Searchers Called off.

Sergt. Hogan blew his whistle as a signal to half a hundred other searchers when he found Bobby. As he hurried toward the Connor home he was joined by the joyful father.

The scene at the Connor home, where sadness has prevailed for five days, despite the tenacious belief of the parents that Bobby was alive, turned into one of overwhelming joy. Neighbors immediately gathered in big numbers. The searching parties trekked in, tired.

Mrs. Connor cried out with happiness when Sergt. Hogan rushed in the house and gave her back Bobby.

Then, bursting into sobs, she rolled Bobby on a divan, fondling him. Unable to stand the strain longer, she fainted.

Insull Profits In Southwest Laid to Fraud

Unearned Dividends Paid to Deceive Stockholders, U. S. Prober Says.

Charges that Insull Utilities in the Southwest inflated property values, reaped huge intercompany profits, and paid unearned stock dividends to deceive stockholders and boost power rates, were made yesterday before the Federal Trade Commission.

Carl H. Depue, trade commission examiner, made the assertions during an inquiry into affairs prior to 1932 of the Public Service Co. of Oklahoma; its present subsidiary, the Southwestern Light & Power Co., and the Southwestern Gas & Electric Co.

Inflation in the three companies, Depue said, amounted to approximately $20,000,000 on December 31, 1930. It resulted from intercompany profits in property acquisitions among affiliated concerns, inflation of stock issues, arbitrary property valuations and failure to provide for obsolescence and depreciation charges.

Inflation Total Given.

Intercompany profits and other inflation in the Public Service and Southwestern Light and Power totaled $9,750,000, Depue said, on December 31, 1930. The books failed to carry $5,000,000 for depreciation, permitting payment of unearned dividends, he added.

"The intent and result of such profits and inflation was evidently to deceive stockholders and bondholders concerning the value of the Public Service Company's securities," Depue said.

"It is also reasonable to believe that because of its inability to ascertain facts herein revealed, the Oklahoma State Commission was likewise deceived with respect to the cost of the company's properties and consequently allowed the company to charge excessive rates for its services."

Value of Stock.

The inflation was reflected in fixed capital and capital stock accounts of the companies, the examiners said.

In 1930, Public Service books showed a common stock valuation of $13,755,506, which, if inflation had been deducted, would have been only $3,630,009, the examiner said.

Southwestern Light and Power showed a stock value of $5,450,713, which should have been $823,376, Depue asserted.

Southwestern Gas and Electric listed its stock value at $8,388,000, which should have been reduced to $3,144,000, Depue said.

Southwestern Gas and Electric listed its stock value at $8,388,000, which should have been reduced to $3,144,000, Depue added.

President Calls Foreign Mails Investigation

Air and Ocean Contracts Involved Cost U. S. $26,054,000.

public interest" or that "substantial savings" might be made.

Further, the President is authorized to determine what "pust compensation" shall be paid to the holders of contracts cancelled or modified. However, contractors are given the added recourse of court action against the Government.

Both in this right to sue and the right to be heard, the President's order departs from hsi procedure in abrogating domestic air-mail contracts. In that case, the awards were nullified without warning and without recourse.

Farley in New Mexico.

Neither Postmaster General Farley nor Harllee Branch, his second assistant in charge of mail contracts, were in the Capital, but Acting Postmaster General W. W. Howes rdeached Mr. Farley at Albuquerque, N. Mex., where he is stopping on a speaking tour.

The Postmaster General sent back word merely that "steps will be taken to carry out the order, and the method of procedure determined as soon as possible." Since 60 days' notice must be given, the hearings can no tbegin until mid-September.

Both the ocean mail and foreign air-mail contracts have come under the glaring spotlight of the Senate's Black investigating committee, which also produced most of the evidence upon which the domestic air-mail awards were canceled.

None of the foreign mail contractors participated, however, in the so-called "spoils conference" of former Postmaster General Walter Brown, which formed the basis of Administration charges of "fraud and collusion" in the case of the domestic air mail.

In the absence of any immediate attacks on the foreign contracts, it was assumed that the inquiry will seek to prove that the ocean or air-mail lines are receiving too much for their services, particularly the shipping companies operating under a thinly disguised subsidy.

44 Ocean-Mail Contracts.

All of the ocean-mail contracts, numbering 44, were awarded under the terms of the marchant marine act of 1928, which sought by granting lucrative mail awards to build up the merchant marine. An allowance of $29,700,000 has been made for these contracts this year, virtually all of which represents an outright gift.

Last and largest of the contracts, which run for 10 years from 1928, was let the Lykes Bros.-Ripley Steamship Co., Inc., which for part of 1933 carried $58.56 worth of mail, figured on a weight basis, for $515,692.50. A similar disparity is shown by most of the other contracts, under which the transport of a single letter may cost thousands of dollars.

Among them are two contracts held by the United States Lines, carrying mail from New York to London and Hamburg, which is operated by the International Mercantile Marine. This company, having contracts estimated at $28,000,000 for the 10 years, lists Kermit Roosevelt, cousin of the Chief Executive, as a vice president, and Vincent Astor, another close friend of the President, as a director.

Seven of the nine foreign air-mail contracts are held by Pan-American or subsidiaries, it was said, the other two being the New York-Montreal line operated by Canadian-Colonial and a route from Seattle to Victoria, Canada, run by Seattle-Victoria Airmail, Inc. For 1933, the Pan-American lines received all but $116,000 of the $6,948,188 allotted for foreign air mail for its network into South America.

The President's Order.

The President's order was received in a pouch of mail dropped off the cruiser Houston as it passed the Panama Canal. In part, it reads:

"The Postmaster General and such officers of the postal service as he may designate are hereby authorized and directed, upon giving the 60 days' notice required by the aforesaid section, to hold public hearings with respect to any foreign air-mail contract and ocean-mail contract under the Merchant Marine act, 1928, entered into prior to June 16, 1933 (at which hearings the parties to such contracts may appear or be represented), to consider all the evidence adduced at such hearings and to report to the President, within six months from the date hereof, their findings and conclusions as to whether such contracts or any of them should be modified or cancelled and, if so, in what respect, with substantial savings to the United States, pursuant to the provisions of the aforesaid section.

"The Postmaster General is further authorized to employ such attorneys, technical experts, clerks, and other employes as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this order."

Harrison County to Get 1,000 Drought Cattle

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 17 (Spl.). John M. Pierpont, Harrison County farm agent, today said indications were that 1,000 cattle will be shipped from drought-stricken Middle West States before the end of July to be grazed on Harrison County farms at Federal Government costs.

His announcement followed a complete survey made today by C. V. Wilson and E. L. Shaw, of the animal husbandry department of West Virginia University, and himself.

High Dakota Court Rules Langer Out

H. Olson, who brought the action to disqualify Langer.

The court said Langer's conviction o fa felony by a Federal jury creates a disability that prevents him from holding office until it is removed.

The decision comes on the heels of Langer's overwhelming victory in the June 27 primary election, in which he was renominated on the Republican ticket for Governor.

Two days after the primary Federal Judge Andrew Miller sentenced him to serve 18 months in a Federal prison and to pay a fine of $10,000.

Langer appealed to the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals. Attorney General P. O. Sathre, who defended him in the ouster case, contended Langer's status as Governor is not affected until the last court of appeals has acted.

Langer and four codefendants, including State Highway Commissioner Frank Vogel, were convicted by a Federal jury of conspiracy to solicit funds from Federal relief workers. Previously Langer had been removed as Federal relief director for North Dakota.

Strike Increases Appeals for Relief

Richmond, July 17 (Spl.).—An increase of 236 applicants for relief at the Hopewell office since July 1, caused by the strike of 1,900 employes of the Tubize Chatillon Corporation plant there, was announced today by Miss Margaret Woll, head of the Social Service Division of the Virginia Relief Administration.

As a result, VERA has placed a new case worker in Hopewell to help handle additional cases.

Liquor Fines Increase Noted in Martinsville

Martinsville, Va., July 17 (Spl.). A material increase in the volume of fines imposed for drunkenness and liquor law violations has been noted since the opening of the liquor dispensary.

Court records today showed more than $400 levied Monday—a sum equal to about a month's usual income. Mayor Brown attributed it to the first public opportunity for legal indulgence.

Sabath Says Bondholders in 25 Companies Have Been Defrauded.

ters will be maintained in Washington and Chicago.

As five of the seven members of the committee are lawyers, no counsel will be retained. Only after complaints have been thoroughly analyzed and compiled, investigations launched and completed, and questionnaires examined, will public hearings be instituted, he said.

"We are having to deal with very shrewd and clever gentlemen, and we want to be sure of our facts when we put them on the witness stand," said Sabath. "So we are fortifying our records with evidence they will not be able to wiggle out of."

Sabath said his principle objective is to develop facts on which to hinge legislative recommendations aimed at preventing recurrence of sharp organization practices allegedly followed during the past depression years.

The questionnaires setn out yesterday listed 37 questions, soliciting copies of the form of reorganization, names of bond depositaries, proposed capitalization, circular communications with bond holders, and all fees paid the committee, lawyers and depositaries.

The committee also will be questioned on their powers to deal in bonds deposited, the business and professional connections of their members, and their statements of profit and loss.

Sample Queries Listed.

A few sample questions are:

"What prompted the organization of your committee? Were any members thereof approach by bond holders to form a committee, and, if so, state the approximate amount of bonds owned by said bond holders at the date of such initial approach or conference?"

"Does your committee through its plan of reorganization propose to remain in control of thep roperty, either through a voting trust or other method?"

"State briefly the reasons why the bonds were or are being solicited for deposit and by what methods?"

"Circumstance under which depositors have been or will be bound by any plan of reorganization; (2) their right to withdraw their deposited bonds; (3) all charges assessable against such withdrawn bonds and the general purposes of such charges?"

Besides Chairman Sabath, in Washington for yesterday's meeting of the committee were Representative Thomas O'Malley (Democrat), Wisconsin, and Representatives James J. Connoally, of Pennsylvania, and Everett Dirksen, of Illinois (Republicans).

Richmond Bootlegging Declared Cut in Half

Richmond, July 17 (Spl.).—Bootlegging activities in Richmond have been reduced at least 50 per cent since the opening of State liquor stores, in the opinion of Elben C. Folkes, justice of the Police Court here.

He said that there has been a very slight increase in the number of drunks.

Mooney Case Figure Held.

Baltimore, July 17 (AP).—John A. MacDonald, 62, former circus performer, who four years ago repudiated previous testimony he had given against Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings in San Francisco, yesterday was committed to a hospital after he had been arrested for vagrancy.

Lawyers Seek Test of Rail Pension Act

Secret Conference Lasts All Day; Two Commission Members Named.

(Associated Press.)

Section by section, railroad lawyers are going over the new railroad employe pension act to decide whether and on what basis a test suit shall be brought.

Meanwhile, two of the three members of the National Commission that will administer the pension plan have virtually been decided upon.

They are J. T. Williamson, of Chicago, as the railroad's nominee, and Lee M. Eddy, vice president of the Order of Telegraphers, to represent labor. The third man will be chosen by the President.

Williamson is chairman of the Board of Pensions of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad and superintendent of the relief department of that company.

Attorneys studying the law yesterday held an all-day session at the offices of the American Railway Association, but none would discuss the conference.

Some of the large railroads are strongly opposed to the National pension plan, having plans of their own already in operation. One of the complaints has been that some of the roads would be advancing money to pay pensions for employes of other roads that do not now have pension plan.

Verdict in Shooting Of Woman Is Open

Augusta Coroner Finds Evidence Conflicting.

Staunton, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—An open verdict was returned today by Dr. C. W. Rogers, acting coroner, after his investigation of the shooting last Friday night at Dooms, in the northwestern section of Augusta County, of Mrs. Cecil Fisher, 28, by Harry Yount, 35.

So conflicting was the testimony that the coroner declined to say whether or not the shooting was accidental, as Yount has steadfastly claimed. Several witnesses corroborated Yount's contention, but others said they had heard him make threats against the woman.

Clearspring Gets Larger Water Loan

Clearspring, Md., July 17 (Spl.).—The way was paved for starting work on the new water system here when town officials were notified that Public Works Administrator Harold Ickes had increased the loan and grant from $23,000 to $26,000.

Bids received were higher than the original estimates, making it necessary to obtain an additional loan.

The new system will bring water from a spring in the mountains near Fairview, taking the place of wells and cisterns, condemned as unsafe, following an epidemic of typhoid fever several years ago.

Side Sprained Carrying Beef.

Sliping as he was carrying a quarter of beef through the Sanitary grocery store at 4235 Wisconsin avenue northwest, Earl Busher, store employe, of Silver Spring, Md., sprained his right side. He was treated by a private physician and allowed to go home.

Woman Purse Snatcher Gets $35.

Augustus Domick, of 3715 S street northwest, reported to police last night he was robbed on the street of $35 by a colored woman who snatched his wallet at Thirty-fifth street and Dent place northwest.

Council Boosts Uncle Sam In Book Publishing Business

Emergency Unit Seeks Way of Getting Pamphlets Before the Public.

The National Emergency Council is trying to increase Uncle Sam's business as a publisher and salesman of books, the Associated Press reports.

Presses of the Government Printing Office annually turn out many thousands of publications ranging from leaflets to sizable volumes. Most of them are for salt, and lots are sold.

Their contents, in addition to routine departmental and Congressional documents, are the product of the Government's fact-finding and information gathering agencies, and cover a multitude of subjects.

When the data is compiled and the pamphlets or books printed, the Government's efforts at distribution by sale, besides filling the orders received, is ended. There is no advertising or other effort at calling attention to the publication.

With the thought that the public generally could make much valuable use of the Government's publications and the Treasury would welcome the revenues resulting from increased sales, the emergency council has tackled the problem. Among other things it has been making a survey o fthe publictaions that have proved most in demand.

Alton P. iTsdel, superintendent of documents, estimated yesterday that his division's business could be doubled with only a restricted use of the advertising facilities available to private book publishers.

Mystery Surrounds Greta Garbo's Daily Canyon Visits; James Blakely Perceives Romance in Offing; Miss Kinglsley's Boulevard Chatter.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Grace Kingsley.

Hollywood, July 16.—If Greta Garbo will make herself mysterious, people will be curious about her.

And so—whom does Greta Garbo visit every morning, in Santa Monica Canyon? That's what the canyonites are asking. Every morning at 9, exactly, the fair Greta is seen entering a certain house. Maybe it's a music teacher or a masseuse, or, on the other hand—well, at any rate Greta is faithful. Rain or shine (Greta prefers the rain, of course), she is there.

GRETA GARBO

Greta's trips have become so well known that knots of fans are beginning to gather in the vicinity of the house to watch her go by.

Blakely Romance May Bloom.

That Blakely-Hutton romance may blossom, after all. No less an authority than the most attractive Mrs. Grace Hyde, mother of James Blakely, Columbia find, admitted yesterday that her son and Barbara Hutton Mdivani, wife of Alexander Mdivani, are still friends, and that they still exchange pleasant wires.

Also she admitted that New York friends were betting that, if the Hutton-Mdivani marriage goes on the rocks, James and Barbara will marry.

"They have always been friends and sweethearts from the time they were children," said Mrs. Hyde; who is a social registerite in New York City.

In the meantime, young Blakely has told friends that he wishes to marry: "But my wife will have to live on my salary," he declared.

James is not accepting a cent from his mother's fortune, but insists on living on the small salary he is receiving at present.

"Why," said his mother yesterday, "he wouldn't even let me put new tires on his car!"

"I don't like the way your pointing that gun," an ingenue remarked nervously to John Preston on the "Men Alone" set. "Well," cracked Preston, "I don't aim to please!"

Bing Crosby was listening to Dick Arlen reading from a newspaper the story of the acquittal of a murder suspect on trial.

Crosby: The jury acquitted him? On what grounds?

Arlen: Insanity.

Capital to See Alaska Flight Planes Today

Army Bombers Will Be on Display at Bolling Field; Take-off Tomorrow.

Roaring an aerial salute to the Capital, ten twin-engined Army Air Corps bombing planes will circle the city this morning shortly before landing at Bolling Field at 9:45 o'clock.

The planes are coming here from Dayton, Ohio, to start on a mass flight to Fairbanks, Alaska, and return. They will remain in Washington today, taking off on the first leg of their long jaunt tomorrow at 10 a. m.

Under the leadership of Lieut. Col. Henry Arnold, the fliers will visit Minneapolis, Minn.; Winnipeg, Manitoba; Regina, Saskatchewan; Edmonton, Alberta; Prince George and Hazleton, British Columbia; Whitehorse, Yukon, and Fairbanks. They will return to Washington next month. The ships will base at Fairbanks, carrying on training and photographic work in other sections of the possession.

Tonight at 10:15 o'clock Col. Arnold will tell of the flight in a radio program sponsored by The Post and the National Broadcasting Co. The program will follow The Post's usual news program but will be carried on Station WRC, also going to the N. B. C. network. Harris B. Hull will conduct the interview.

Air Corps officials announced yesterday that the public is invited to view the planes at Bolling Field today and to watch their takeoff tomorrow.

FERA Gets $71,147 For Airport Work

Fund Will Aid Drought Areas in West.

The Federal Emergency Relief Administration yesterday was allotted $71,147 in PWA funds to resume construction of airports in the drought stricken areas of the Middle West and Northwest.

The PWA fund will be used for materials, equipment and supervision, the cost of labor being borne by regular FERA State grants. The grant is to furnish work relief to the farmers and to utilize their horses and wagons, made idle by the drought.

Civitan Clubs' Leader Makes Plea for Ideal

Col. Maurice L. Townsend, retiring president of the International Clubs of the Civitan, in an address yesterday before the Washington Civitan Club, expressed the philosophy that, "throughout history the thoroughly selfish man has never traveled very far toward the goal of life."

He added: "Selfish gain or personal preferment finds no place in the Civitan cosmos. The principles of Civitan are the eternal principles and only ideals that have endured."

Park Officer Hurt in Fall.

Private R. R. Lutes, park policeman, was recovering yesterday from painful injuries suffered when he was thrown from his motorcycle in Rock Creek. He was treated at Emergency Hospital for lacerations to the arm and chest and body bruises. The accident occurred when the motorcycle struck a depression in the road.

Louis A. Rosenstock Buried at Petersburg

Petersburg, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—The funeral of Louis A. Rosenstock, long prominent in the business and civic life of Petersburg, who died Sunday morning at his home in this city, was held today at 11 a. m. and was conducted by Dr. E. N. Calish, of Richmond. Interment was in Rodef Sholem Cemetery.

Mr. Rosenstock was a charter member of the Petersburg Rotary Club and one of its earliest presidents. He was a native of this city.

Miss Sacasa, Prince Bound for Capital

New York, July 17 (AP).—Among prominent Washingtonians returning here tonight aboard the S. S. Paris from Europe, was Miss Gloria Sacasa, 15, daughter of the president of Nicaragua. Miss Sacasa has just completed her first year at the convent L' Assumption in Belgium. She was met at the dock by her family and will leave shortly for Washington, where they will spend a month at their home on New Hampshire avenue. Also aboard the Paris was Prince Ferdinand Andreas of Leichtenstein, also en route to Washington.

Choir Feature At Massanetta Bible Meeting

500 Voices Sing 20 Old Hymns; Music School Is Opened.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Twenty famous old hymns, known to every churchgoer in the land, were sung at the Massanetta Springs Bible Conference tonight by a choir of 500 voices as the first feature of the Sacred Music Festival program. At the festival's conclusion Friday night, 2,000 voices, from Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia choirs will participate.

Dr. John Finley Williamson, director of the Westminster Choir School, of Princeton, N. J., and head of the Massanetta Springs Sacred Music School, directed tonight's choir and selected the hymns. Mrs. Mercye Tucker assembled a group of singers from 18 churches in Rockingham County. Mrs. Mattie Miller, of Bridgewater, and Prof. J. Owen Long, of Lacey Spring, also brought large choruses.

The opening of the school of music yesterday found the largest attendance in its history. Students were registered from Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Arkansas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Ohio.

Pastors to Meet August 13.

Opening August 13 with representatives of 18 religious denominations from more than 30 States in attendance, the annual two weeks' Bible Conference and School for Pastors, climaxing the summer's activities at Massanetta Springs, will continue through August 26.

The Bible Conference, designed to give a special program of training to ministers, missionaries and Christian workers, and this year including a conference for elders and deacons, is one of the largest gatherings of its kind in the country. Eminent lecturers will conduct discussions on moral and social problems, as well as a special program on interracial relations.

Featuring the first week's program will be Dr. James Black, pastor of Saint John's United Free Church, Edinburgh, Scotland, and Dr. Kirby Page, editor of The World Tomorrow, New York. Dr. Black is head of one of the largest churches in Scotland. As an authority on social and moral questions, Dr. Page is the author of 14 volumes on those subjects.

Dr. Walter L. Lingle, president of Davidson College, Davidson, N. C., also will speak during the first week of the conference. He is a former moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church, United States, and founder and first president of the assembly's school for lay workers.

Other Speakers.

Others on the first week's program will be Dr. S. L. Joekel, professor of English Bible and religious education in the Presbyterian Seminary, Austin, Tex., and Dr. J. D. Cunningham, president of Louisville Theological Seminary. Dr. J. A. MacLean, jr., Dr. E. T. Thompson, Dr. J. B. Belk, Dr. E. B. Paisley and Dr. W. L. Carson, all of Richmond, are on the committee in charge of the program on moral and social problems.

Featuring the second week of the conference will be the historical pageant, on August 24, depicting the history of the churches of the Shenandoah Valley from the earliest days of its settlement to the present time.

Principal speakers during the closing week will be Dr. William Evans, Bible teacher; Dr. Frederick W. Norwood, pastor of the City Temple, London, England, and Dr. William L. Stidger, head of the department of homiletics in Boston University School of Theology.

Others on the closing week's program will be Dr. Clovis G. Chappell, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Birmingham, Ala.; Dr. S. D. Gordon, famous for his "Quiet Talks;" Dr. Will H. Houghton, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, New York City; Dr. Frederick W. Burnham, pastor of the Seventh Street Christian Church, Richmond; Dr. Clyde A. Lynch, president of Lebanon Valley College, Annville, Pa.; Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, pastor of Old First Church, Newark, N. J., and Dr. William C. MacDonald, pastor of Palmerston Place Church, Edinburgh, Scotland.

Special days on the conference program designated for the various religious denominations are: United Brethren, August 20; Methodist, August 21; Baptist, August 22; Disciples of Christ, August 23, and Presbyterian, August 24.

Election Decided By Draw From Hat

3 Tied for 2 Places on New Market Council.

New Market, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Deciding a three-way tie for two of the six places on New Market's Council in the election last month, election judges today declared J. C. Crim and D. F. Cootes victorious over O. B. Theis.

Crim, Cootes and Theis each received 72 votes.

Names of the successful candidates were drawn from a hat in the presence of election judges. They take office September 1.

Fredericksburg Seen Tourist Attraction

Fredericksburg, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Praise of Fredericksburg as an interesting spot of historical significance was contained in a letter received yesterday from W. B. Bachman, director of membership of the Automobile Club of Michigan, to Mrs. H. H. Smith, of the Kenmore Association here.

Mr. Bachman declared Fredericksburg to be "the most interesting tourist spot I have ever visited." His letter suggested a more active promotional enterprise to acquaint visitors with the points of interest in this vicinity.

Baptists List Mission Funds In Albemarle

$5,676 Gifts Reported at Annual Meeting of Association.

Charlottesville, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—The Woman's Missionary Union today reported a total contribution of $5,676.90 for all purposes during the past year, at the 144th annual meeting of the Albemarle Baptist Association. Mrs. G. F. Spitzer, of Charlottesville, submitted the report.

Gifts in money were $507.69 less than the gifts of the previous year, said Mrs. Spitzer. First church, Charlottesville, made the second largest 'Lottie Moon' offering in all Virginia. In special offerings Albemarle stood fifth in the list of 29 associations, and fourth in the quarter-a-week offering. Three churches, Laurel Hill, Mount Plain and Fluvanna, reported a gift to missions from every resident woman member.

The Association was called to order by the moderator, the Rev. J. P. Gunley, of Crozet, who recently announced that he has accepted a call to a Richmond pulpit. All twenty-five churches of the association were represented either by ministers or lay delegates.

The Rev. J. L. White, jr., pastor of the Fork Union Church, extended the welcome. H. H. Brown, of Hillsboro, gave a report on ministerial relief.

Dr. Henry W. Battle, of Charlottesville, made an address on "The Old Minister."

Special addresses were also delivered by the Rev. E. J. Wright and Dr. R. F. Hough, both of Richmond, and the annual sermon was preached by the Rev. E. P. West, of Charlottesville.

The report on social service and temperance, made by the Rev. R. E. L. Aylor, of Red Hill, was discussed at the afternoon session. The principal speaker on the subject of temperance was Dr. C. S. Gardner, of Richmond.

Virginia Opens Musical Week

Concerts at Massanetta Lure Talent From Many Sections.

Under the general direction of John Finley Williamson, conductor of the Westminster Choir, the fourth annual music week and School of Music is in progress at Massanetta Springs, Va. Delegates are present from Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, North and South Carolina, and Kentucky. The activities will close with important concerts Friday.

The Virginia Artists' concert Friday morning will bring together some outstanding talent from many sections. Miss Edna Schaeffer, under whose direction the program will be presented, has announced the following soloists and organizations:

Mrs. Susan Reed Williams Stuart, of Norfolk; Miss Frances Houck, of Harrisonburg; Robert Schane, of Harrisonsburg; the Vocal Art Ensemble of the Scherzo Club, Norfolk, directed by Mrs. David Barnum; the A Capella Choir, of Hagerstown, under the direction of Raymond K. Hollinger; the Glee Club of the State Teachers College, Harrisonburg, directed by Miss Schaeffer.

Friday evening a choir of 2,000 voices will be directed by Dr. Williamson in a program of religious music. The names of some of the cities in which choir units were rehearsed for this concert and the choir chairmen cooperating are:

Guide Book Compiled by Eubank Gives Correct Data on Old Events.

Colonial Beach, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Rich in legends and scenes of colonial days and the Civil War era, the history of Virginia's Northern Neck has been condensed into an authentic guide book newly published by the Northern Neck Association. It was compiled by H. Ragland Eubank.

The booklet, "Historic Northern Neck of Virginia," is an exposition of the more important spots of historical significance in the Northern Neck, so arranged that the interested traveler touring the section by consulting the book, have ready knowledge of the location and significance of the historic sites that played important and colorful roles in the development of the United States.

Publication was sponsored by the Northern Neck Association, offices of which are located at Colonial Beach and financed by the cooperation of business men throughout the section. Distribution of the booklet will begin shortly.

Starts at Fredericksburg.

The reader is taken on a tour of the Northern Neck, beginning at Fredericksburg, the "gateway," and passing through the counties of King George, Westmoreland, Northumberland, Essex, Richmond and Lancaster. Each spot of historical interest encountered en route is treated in a short sketch numbered and cross indexed with succeeding sketches.

Historical references are centered principally around the lives and connections of George Washington and Gen. Robert E. Lee. Among the features of the book is the first publication of the definite location of George Washington's baptism, which Mr. Eubank shows took place at Appomattox Church and not at Pope's Creek Church, as claimed by some historians, nor at any of the three churches which have previously claimed the distinction. Similar information is given in regard to the first President's elementary schooling.

Additional light is thrown also on the life of John Washington, great grandfather of George. The author gives evidence that John did not settle first on Bridges Creek, as writers have declared, but that he settled first on Mattux Creek. Augustine Washington, father of George, declared Mr. Eubank spent his childhood in King George County, and not at Wakefield, as is generally believed.

178 Sketches Included.

The pamphlet includes a total of 178 sketches, each a small story in itself, and all producting a unified story of the Northern Neck. There are more than 200 illustrations. The volume also calls attention to the recreational areas now being utilized.

The author, H. Ragland Eubank, is a native of King William County and is now a resident of Colonial Beach. He was graduated from William and Mary College in 1910 and has engaged in graduate work at Columbia University. He is a descendant of the Colonial Ragland, Beaufort and Eubank families.

Theater Benefit Will Aid Children

Stafford County Health Group Sponsors Move.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Additional funds for the care of Stafford County tubercular families will be sought in a benefit theater performance here tomorrow, sponsored by the Stafford County Health Association through Benjamin T. Pitts, theater owner.

Aid will be given the children of the two tubercular families whose crowded living conditions resulted in a county-wide drive last week, culminating in a benefit dance at the Mansfield Hall Country Club.

More than $300 already has been collected through proceeds of the dance and from private contributions.

Accused Vagrant Freed After Soap Box Oration

Danville, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Claude Clark, of Concord, N. C., arrested here as a vagrant, was released today.

Magistrate Charles K. Carter ordered him to leave the city. Clark was arrested here while addressing Negroes on the street soliciting membership to the National Textile Union.

James Madison Bridge Will Be Opened Today

Assistant Secretary of State Moore to Make Dedicatory Speech.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—With R. Walton Moore, assistant secretary of State, making the dedicatory address, the James Madison Memorial Bridge will be formally opened at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow at ceremonies at Port Conway, south of here.

The new span will cross the Rappahannock River between Port Conway and Port Royal, and will provide a new short route for residents of the Northern Neck to the main portion of Virginia.

The structure will be dedicated to the memory of James Madison, fourth President of the United States, whose birthplace, near Port Conway, the bridge commemorates.

Gov. Peery, who, under original plans was to have a leading part in tomorrow's program, may not attend, according to officials in charge of the dedication. In his stead will be Senator H. C. Wickham.

Cutting the ribbon, symbolically to open the bridge, will be Carol Blanton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Blanton, of Bowling Green; Mary Hooker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Palmer Hooker, of Belle Grove, actual scene of Madison's birth, and James Madison Cutts and Henrietta Anne Cutts, direct descendants of the former President.

The bridge has a total length of 1,433 feet, and is 26 feet wide. The cost is estimated at $140,000, and will be repaid by automobile tolls, which will be collected until the original investment is returned.

Speeches and other ceremonies, incidental to the actual opening, will take place at Belle Grove, on the Port Conway side of the river.

First Mail Plane From Roanoke to Carry Big Cargo

Roanoke, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Approximately 10,000 letters are awaiting the first air-mail plane out of the city tomorrow. An American Air Lines plane will stop for the first time at 2 p. m.

Postmaster E. L. Keyser has been notified that the service will begin tomorrow. City officials will witness the inauguration. Mayor S. P. Seifert, and B. F. Moomaw, secretary of the chamber of commerce, will be in the party.

For the time being Roanoke is the only Virginia city on the route, the all-Southern Transcontinental route from New York to Los Angeles.

Confederate Veteran Buried in Rockingham

Harrisonburg, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Rockingham's ranks of Confederate veterans were further reduced yesterday with the death of John Gordon, 88, at Rockingham Memorial Hospital. He was in good health until he suffered a broken hip a week ago.

Funeral services were held today at the Count Line Reformed Church, near Timberville. His pastor, the Rev. H. A. Berhens, officiated and Daughters and Sons of the Confederacy paid tribute. Mr. Gordon is survived by seven children. His wife died five years ago.

Four in Fight For Pattison Post as Judge

First Maryland Judicial Circuit Seat Wanted by Democrats.

Salisbury, Md., July 17 (Spl.).—A four-cornered fight for the chief judgeship of the First Maryland Judicial Circuit is in prospect. Levin Claude Bailey of the law firm of Miles, Bailey & Williams, has announced his candidacy for that office.

Other aspirants are Benjamin A. Johnson, of the firm of Long & Johnson, of this city; George H. Myers, Princess Anne, and Gordon Tull, of Marion.

Chief Judge John R. Pattison, of Cambridge, will retire. Bailey is a graduate of St. John's College and the University of Maryland Law School. Both he and Johnson have served as City Solicitor, the former having also served as State's Attorney. Bailey was an infantry captain during the World War and served in France. The circuit embraces Wicomico, Somerset, Worcester ad Dorchester Counties.

With announcement by Alfred T. Truitt, local newspaperman, of his candidacy for the State Senate, a contest for that office in Wicomico County looms between Truitt and J. Clayton Kelly, former clerk of the circuit court and sheriff, who has also announced himself. Others have been mentioned.

All aspirants have annouced their candidacies subject to the Democratic primaries in September.

Eight Seek Sheriff's Post in Kent County

Chestertown, Md., July 17 (Spl.).—With eight candidates for sheriff of Kent County, subject to the Democratic primaries, and more considering announcing themselves, the fight for that office will be closely contested.

The two Democratic factions have given up hope of avoiding a primary fight, but are trying to reconcile divergent interests to the extent of avoiding primary contests for other offices.

There is talk of a Kent County Farm Bureau independent ticket with E. Thomas Massey, of the Village of Massey, farmer and long a power in the affairs of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation, running for the State Senate. Another independent ticket, fostered by dissatisfied Democrats in Chestertown, is being also considered.

Though former State Senator S. Scott Beck is believed to have received his present post of comptroller of the Port of Baltimore through Senator Millard E. Tydings, the local leader of the "organization" faction remains a close personal friend of Gov. Ritchie, as is Mrs. Charles W. Whaland, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee.

William B. Copper, president of the First National Bank and leader of the "antiorganization" faction, is also close to the Govenor and it is thought both factions will back the Governor in his fight for reelection.

Mayor Jackson of Baltimore is said to have made little impression in Kent County in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Virginia Cuts Road Mishaps

Right-of-Way Violations Accidents Reduced 14.2 Per Cent.

Richmond, July 17 (AP).—Keeping a close check on the results of the safety campaigns and the drivers' permit law requirements, the State division of motor vehicles today reported a 14.2 per cent decrease in the number of accidents in Virginia caused by violators of right-of-way rules.

The figures were compiled by J. T Wadkins, safety engineer for the division. They were taken from the accident records for the first five months of the calendar year and compared with the accident report figures for the same period last year.

There was a decrease of approximately 20 per cent in the accidents involving violation of right-of-way rules in the cities, while in the rural localities the decrease in theso accidents was about 7 per cent.

The total number of urban right-of-way accidents was cut from 515 during the first five months of 1933 to 412 for the same period this year.

Orange Acting as Host To New York Children

Goldsborough Aspires to Md. Governorship

Senator's Decision to Run Snarls G.O.P. Contest; Leaders to Meet.

upon the Goldsborough candidacy as a good omen. The senator's sagacity in political affairs is well known in Maryland; he knows when to run and when not to run, and the belief is that in picking the current campaign he has demonstrated a knowledge of "inside" political matters that indicates a Republican victory in November.

Leaders to Meet.

The meeting of leaders tomorrow has been called in a frank effort to have some of the gubernatorial candidates abandon the race.

It is believed that Harry Phoebus, Eastern Shore publisher and automobile dealer, will abandon the race now that Senator Goldsborough is in it. And it is also considered probable that Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt, of Annapolis, will drop out.

As the political observers here see it, the fight will involve only H. Webster Smith, Harry W. Nice and Senator Goldsborough. Mr. Smith has been campaigning, and even now is touring western Maryland with his sound-truck equipment and caravan of political lieutenants.

Nice Active.

Mr. Nice's campaign has been even more active. He has tirelessly toured the State, speaking at scores of rallies in county seats, industrial towns and crossroad hamlets. His campaign has reached the point where he is reported to be ready to name a complete State ticket.

Senator Goldsborough's decision to run for the Governorship was reached after a long study of the political situation in the State, and following a plea by numerous Republican leaders that he become a candidate. He has been Comptroller of Maryland, Governor from 1912 to 1916, and his election to the Senate as at the expense of former Senator William Cabell Bruce, a powerful figure in the Democratic party.

In announcing his decision to run, Senator Goldsborough said in part:

"After careful survey of sentiment throughout the State I have decided to announce my candidacy for Governor, subject to the Republican primaries. Not only in my own party, but also among Democratic and unaffiliated voters I have been given a measure of encouragement that is most gratifying.

Stands on Record.

"My record as governor is the be offered as to the manner in most dependable assurance that can which I will conduct that office and meet its responsibilities should I be similarly honored again. The people of this State will recall that administration and the character of those appointed to assist in the conduct of the State's business. The high standard of integrity and efficiency insisted upon was generally recognized and has ever since remained a matter of comment among observers of State affairs.

"Elsewhere in the United States serious study has been given to the problems of social insurance, including provision against the hazards of involuntary unemployment, widowhood and old-age dependency. Many States have enacted such legislation. Maryland almost alone among the States seems to remain untouched by the spirit of the day. Even the urgent problem of relief for the families of the thousands of unemployed has been allowed to drift month after month while the State has made no adequate provision in the fatuous hope that the problem will somehow solve itself.

"The thoughtful citizen of Maryland will, I believe, perceive in these abuses and failures the direct and inevitable consequence of permitting a regime to remain in power so long that its sense of responsibility has become dull."

Goldsborough Action Hailed in Annapolis

Annapolis, July 17 (Spl.).—Announcement today of Senator Goldsborough as a Republican candidate for Governor of Maryland, was hailed with favor by a number of leaders and others prominent in the party's ranks in Annapolis and Anne Arundel County.

The former Governor long has been popular with the electorate, regardless of party affiliation. Close political observers say he is the one man in the G. O. P. ranks who would give Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, Democrat, a real battle in his quest for a fifth term at the November election.

Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt, Republican, himself a candidate for the nomination, commented only briefly on Goldsborough's entrance. He said: "I heartily welcome Senator Goldsborough within the ranks of the guebnatorial aspirants. May the best man win."

Former City Postmaster Joseph M. Armstrong, recognized as party leader in the county, made no formal comment, though he had repeatedly expressed the hope that Senator Goldsborough would enter the contest.

That there is some division of sentiment as retards the Senator's candidacy, however, is indicated by the recent action of a number of district party men allied with the Central Republican Club, who gave their indorsement to the candidacy of Harry W. Nice.

Estate of Knitting Mill Official Is $225,000

Danville, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—The will of the late L. B. Conway, jr., official of the Danville Knitting Mills, was probated today and showed an estate valued at $225,000. His brother, P. F. Conway, C. Gilmore Holland and the First National Bank were named executors.

Reunion Is Set By Lutherans

Prof. Tulloss, Wittenburg College, Will Speak at Pen-Mar Park.

Chambersburg, Pa., July 17 (Spl.).—The annual Lutheran reunion at Pen-Mar Park, near Blue Ridge Summit, Md., Thursday, will be featured by an address by Prof. Rees Edgar Tulloss, president of Wittenburg College, Springfield, Ohio.

The program will begin with a concert by an orchestra from the Lutheran Sunday school, Waynesboro, Pa., followed by an anthem by Trinity Lutheran Choir, from here. The Scripture lesson will be read by the Rev. Dr. Amos John Traver, pastor of the Lutheran Church, of Frederick, Md., followed by prayer by the Rev. Seibert Lee Hench, Dallastown, Pa., president of the West Pennsylvania Synod. The First Lutheran Church Choir, Chambersburg, will sing.

Concluding features will be an anthem by combined choirs, awarding a loving cup to the Rev. Dr. J. Luther Hoffman, Baltimore, benediction and orchestra postlude. The Rev. Dr. John W. Ott, Hagerstown, president of the Maryland Synod, will preside.

Slash in Relief Cost Is Ordered

Virginia Welfare Leader Flays Administrative Expenses.

Richmond, July 17 (AP).—State Emergency Relief Engineer J. M. Ribble today ordered staff reductions in all local relief offices, where administrative costs are more than 15 per cent of the total spent for work relief, including administration.

He said in some counties and cities administrative costs are approaching, equaling and exceeding the cost of actual relief.

Meanwhile Frank A. Cavedo, State director of National Reemployment Service, in a weekly report said 777 persons were placed in private employment during the week ended June 30.

Miss Margaret Woll, head of the social service division of the Virginia Emergency Relief Association, reported an increase of 236 applicants for unemployment relief at the Hopewell office since July 1.

Virginia to Close Hearings on Fees

State's Attorneys From Cities Testify Today.

Richmond, July 17 (AP).—The new State Compensation Board tomorrow will hear the last group of Commonwealth's attorneys with relation to the salaries these officers are to receive under the 1934 compensation law which replaces the fee system.

Tomorrow's group will include the city Comonwealth's attorneys. In a series of hearings the board already has heard from all of the county Commonwealth's attorneys. They have been given an opportunity to discuss their personal circumstances and compensation with the board.

When tomorrow's hearing is completed, the board will fix the salaries for these officers within a range set forth in the law.

Tri-County W. C. T. U. Will Meet in Oxford

Cambridge, Md., July 17 (Spl.).—The Tricounty W. C. T. U., which comprises unions in Talbot, Dorchester and Caroline Counties, will hold an executive board meeting and picnic July 25, in Oxford.

The meeting will be held in the Methodist Protestant Church, with a basket lunch following in the park adjoining the church grounds. Special addresses and music are scheduled.

Sommerset County Tour Set for August

Waynesboro, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Plans are being made for the fourteenth annual farm tour under the auspices of the Waynesboro Motor Club and the Franklin County Extension Association. Plans call for a trip to Somerset County about the middle of August.

Features will be the observation of potato growing and sheep and poultry raising.

Theater Asked To Halt Movie In Winchester

Clean-up Fight Goes On, but House Approved Film, Says Owner.

Winchester, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Reverberations of Winchester's so-called battle against indecent motion pictures were heard here today with a small group of citizens demanding that a theater cease showing a "blacklisted" picture which several thousand theatergoers approved last night.

The Rev. E. T Clark, pastor of First Baptist Church, opened the clean-up fight Sunday with an appeal to his communicants to protest. The Winchester Ministerial Association Monday did not take concerted action. No official statement was given out except that another meeting will be held early next week. In the meantime, it was understood, individual ministers were at liberty to take any stand.

The manager of a local theater stated that he was approached last evening just before his house started showing "Dr. Monica," one of the films blacklisted by the Catholic League for Decency, and asked to stop the presentation. The request came, he said, from three persons who said they represented the "theater-going public of Winchester." He refused on the ground that he could not change his bookings on such short notice.

More than 3,000 witnessed the showing of "Dr. Monica" last night. The theater made special efforts to obtain a consensus, it was said. Opinions for the most part were reported as being favorable, although general.

At the only other theater open here last night, "Change of Heart" was shown, its advertising carrying the signed statement of the management that it was "one of the cleanest pictures to come from Hollywood this year."

Contest Held By 4-H Clubs

Albemarle County Groups Compete for V. P. I. Scholarships.

Charlottesville, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Ninety-two members from the 24 4-H clubs in Albemarle County participated in the elimination contests here yesterday in the auditorium of the Virginia Public Service Co. building. The winners will get scholarships for the short course at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, July 23-30.

Two classes of competition in clothing were held. One class was for undergarments and dresses made by club members. In the correct dress contest there were three divisions—church and afternoon, sports and work in the house. The winners were:

Undergarments and dresses: First, Kathleen McFarlane, of Esmont; second, Helen Kennedy, of Bateville, Bernice Marshall, of Stony Point, and Frances Wood, of Earlysville, tied for third place.

Sport dress: Girls—First, Anne Parish, Crozet; second, Betsy Winefield, Meriwether Lewis, Ivy; third, Maxie Fray, Earlysville. Boys—First, Gilmer Bing, Free Union; second, J. R. Winefield, jr., Ivy.

Church dress: Girls—First, Glennis Huckstep, Free Union; second, Christine Mawyer, Red Hill; third, Bertha Shapleigh, Stony Point. Boys—First, Boland Marshall, Earlysville; second, Kyger Bing, Free Union; third, Bennett Miller, Free Union.

Work clothes: Girls—First, Christine Mawyer, Red Hill; second, Flora Marshall, Earlysville; third, May Christian Garth, Crozet. Boys—First, Edgar Garnett, Meriwether Lewis, Ivy; second, Tom Dunn, Free Union; third, Junior Huckstep, Free Union.

Eleven girls and one boy competed in the health group. They were: Kathleen Lamm, Earlysville; Isabel Dunn, Free Union; Gladys Robinson, Batesville; Maxine Fray, Earlysville; Mildred Haney, Ivy; Margaret Sellers, Scottsville; Estelle La Force, Stony Point; Louise Smith and Ruth Kennedy, Red Hill; Dean Wade, Batesville; Bertha Shapleigh, Stony Point, and J. R. Winefield, jr., Ivy.

She'll Plead Gulity If It's Only a Fine But Jail?—No Sir

Winchester, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Mrs. Minnie Welch, 34, first woman tried in Winchester for the possession of illegal liquor since repeal of prohibition, took the attitude that when it came to having a jail sentence or fine meted out to her that she could plead guilty to one and not to the other.

When arraigned on the liquor charge before Justice Donald L. Weems, Mrs. Welch stated: "I'll plead guilty to the fine, but not to the jail sentence."

Justice Weems, however, ruled that she was guilty of the posession of five cases of illegal home brew and a quantity of spirits in which case she would have to stand both a fine of $100 and three months in jail.

Fireman on Destroyer Found Dead in Severn

Annapolis, Md., July 17 (Spl.).—Missing from the U. S. destroyer Childs since Saturday, the body of Seaman R. S. Noll, first class fireman, was found floating in Severn River near the Naval Academy seawall this afternoon.

The body was removed to the Naval Hospital, where it was determined death was caused by drowning. The Childs put in here over the week-end, and Noll and another enlisted man had liberty. The destroyer sailed this morning before the body was found.

Virginia Beer Taxes For June Show Rise

Richmond, July 17 (Spl.).—Beer tax collections for June have amounted to $80,057.52, compared to May collections of $69,009.66, the State Tax Department reported today.

Not all of the June collections are in, but they already have broken all records since September, 1933, when the beer law went into effect.

Slain Man Appears in Dream, Tells Where to Find His Purse

Witness in Hagerstown Shooting Restores Money to Widow.

Hagerstown, Md., July 17 (Spl.).—A dream was credited with bringing the pocketbook of George Saum, fatally shot here a month ago, back to Saum's widow.

The story of how he had talked with Saum in a dream the day he succumbed in the hospital here, and how he had been directed in the dream to the spot where Saum had lost his purse while fleeing from Allen L. Hollar, charged with the shooting, was told to police today by Carl Smith, only eyewitness to the shooting, which followed a trip to Washington by Saum, father of three, with Jane, 16, daughter of Hollar.

Hollar today was indicted by the grand jury and is scheduled to go on trial for Saum's death Thursday here.

Smith said he saw Saum distinctly in the dream and that the latter asked him to go to a nearby field, where he would find the purse in a fence corner, and to take it to his wife, as she needed the money.

When Smith told his wife of the dream, she urged him to follow its directions. In the exact spot indicated in the dream, Smith told police, he found the pocketbook.

Sunday School Errors Bared At Convention

Teach No Doctrine, Say Baptist Speakers in Leesburg.

Leesburg, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Delegates from the various Sunday Schools of the Western district of the Potomac Baptist Association, which comprises the Baptist churches of Loudoun and Fauquier Counties, were present today for the annual Sunday School convention in the Leesburg Baptist Church.

Pastors from a number of these churches led the discussions, O. L. Emerick, of Purcellville, presided. The devotional exercises were in charge of the Rev. H. B. Jennings, of the Leesburg Baptist Church.

The Rev. C. Wirt Trainham, of Marshall, Va., association worker of the Potomac Baptist Association, praised modern Sunday School methods but pointed out errors. He declared that the Sunday Schools fail to teach the great doctrines of the Baptist faith, and that they do not produce church attendance, although he held the home probably responsible for the latter.

Mr. Trainham especially stressed the memorizing of scriptures by the Sunday School pupils. A general discussion on methods of doing this followed his talk.

Declaring "Baptist doctrine is Bible doctrine," the Rev. Fletcher Ford, Upperville, discussed the importance of teaching Baptist doctrines in Sunday schools. He said that the Sunday school is the only organization whereby Baptists can be really instructed in doctrine, and declared this should be done for the future of the church.

The Rev. Marshall Frazier, of Marshall, led the discussion on "Relationship of the Sunday School to the church," and said that the Sunday school is the teaching agency of the church and should be emphasized. A business session followed the program. Reports were heard. O. L. Emerick, of Purcellville, was reelected president, the Rev. J. B. Essex, of Middleburg, vice president, and Miss Mary Trainham, of Marshall, secretary-treasurer.

The program committee for next year's convenjion, which will meet the Tuesday after the third Sunday in July, consists of O. L. Emerick, J. B. Essex and O. W. Triplett, of Ashburn.

Church Meeting Invaded by Snake

Hagerstown, Md., July 17 (Spl.). Outdoor meetings, when they are in the mountains, may be tabooed in the future by the local Church of the Brethren choir as a result of an experience Sunday night at Deerfield, where an outdoor service was being held.

Apparently charmed by the music, a 3-foot copperhead snake, one of the most poisonous reptiles found in this section, came out of the bushes and crawled among the pews.

One woman in the audience, thinking some one was trampling on her foot, looked down to see the crawling snake. Soon chairs and benches were popular places for standing as that section of the congregation in the vicinity of the snake became aware of what caused the excitement. The snake was soon killed, however, and the service resumed.

Truck Wheel Runs Over Boy.

Hagerstown, Md., July 17 (Spl.).—Robert Ringer, 9, son of Charles Ringer, is in a critical condition at the Washington County Hospital after a wheel of a milk truck, from which he was jarred, passed over his body.

Winchester Area Farmers Find Skeleton and Civil War Relics

Winchester, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Relics of the scores of battles fought in and around Winchester during the Civil War have been found by a number of farmers.

R. W. Bayliss, of Kernstown, near here, reported today that while plowing a field that had been untilled for years he unearthed the skeleton of a man. The remains were found on the site of the old Kernstown Methodist Church, destroyed during the war. It was believed that the body was buried shortly after the edifice was burned.

Near the grave, Mr. Bayliss said he found a cavalryman's whistle. The whistle was made of brass and so constructed that with the fingers placed on it in a certain position a shrilling sound could be effected.

Sam M. Chiles, also of Kernstown, recently reported finding bullets and a brass spur. Mr. Chiles, who added that he had been picking up relics of the war in the vicinity of his home for years, also has an unexploded bomb shell found nearby.

Wytheville Court Stays Venue Plea

Bausell Slaying Venire Sought in 3rd Trial.

Wytheville, Va., July 17 (AP).—Reserving decision on a motion for a change of venue requested on the ground that a disinterested panel could not be secured in Wythe County, Judge Horace Sutherland proceeded to the examination of veniremen for trial of Henry F. Bausell, 58, on a charge that he murdered T. Eugene Cornett, a Wythe County farmer.

Bausell's son, Bernace, 28, son-in-law of the slain man, already has been convicted of first-degree murder on the same charge.

Trial of the elder Bausell is the third growing out of the fatal pistol duel last January 13 in an upstairs bedroom of the Cornett farm home, when Cornett and his daughter, Mrs. Virginia Bausell, were shot to death.

Man Held for Fire In Mechanicsville

Leonardtown, Md., July 17 (Spl.). Cornelius Holt, 23, colored, of Mechanicsville, is held for the action of the September grand jury of St. Marys County Circuit Court, on three charges, which are breaking in Trice's store, robbing Trice's store and arson of Trice's store, all in connection with the fire which threatened to destroy the town of Mechanicsville July 5.

A fire originating in Trice's store spread to a lunch room, filling station and a building in which the postoffice is located.

Bank at Hagerstown Will Pay 10 Per Cent

Hagerstown, Md., July 17 (Spl.).—Forty-eight hundred depositors of the Mechanics Loan Savings Institution, which closed in 1931, will receive their third payment, of 10 per cent, A. C. Merriam, receiver, announced after filing with the court his report.

The third dividend will increase the total payment to 40 per cent. The amount to be paid is $175,146.

Husband, Wife Hurt As Car Leaves Road

Hagerstown, Md., July 17 (Spl.). Mrs. M. Finley Seibert sustained a a fractured arm and her husband, a former city official, suffered from shock when their automobile left the Middleburg pike yesterday.

Their son, Paige, who was driving, glanced toward his father, who had dropped a cigar lighter, and lost control of the car. They are in the Washington County Hospital.

Oyster Trade Plans Publicity-Ad Drive

Close-Mouthed Bivalve to Have Talking Done.

Baltimore, July 17 (AP).—Plans to make the country more oyster-conscious will be presented to a joint convention of the Oyster Growers and Dealers Association of North America and the National Shell Fisheries Association here August 6, 7 and 8.

Expressing the opinion that the close-mouthed bivalve should have more talking done in its behalf, Frank W. Lawson, chairman of the convention committee, said a National advertising campaign to increase oyster consumption would be discussed at the convention.

Dr. E. J. Coulson, of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, and Dr. R. E. Remington, of the Medical College of South Carolina, will speak on the dietetic value of oysters in the treatment of anemia for their iodine content. The operation of the NRA code for the industry also will be discussed.

Holstein-Friesian Breeders to Meet

Virginia Gathering Set for Thursday.

Manassas, Va., July 17 (Spl.). The annual summer field day meeting of Virginia Holstein-Friesian breeders will be held at Meadows, the farm of Percival A. Lewis, near Manassas, Thursday.

Features will be the addresses by Prof. J. W. Bartlett, of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, who will explain the steps in breeding carried out by that station in building up a head of Holsteins testing 4 per cent butterfat, and by Dr. L. E. Starr, of the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station, who will discuss phases of Bang's disease of dairy cattle.

Baltimore Span Approved by U. S.

$2,000,000 Viaduct Links Downtown With East.

Baltimore, July 17 (Spl.).—Construction of a $2,000,000 vehicular viaduct over the Jones Falls Valley to connect dowtnown Baltimore with the eastern section of the city was approved today by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads in Washington.

The viaduct will facilitate automobile movements through a section now highly congested. Tourist traffic and autos from the North or South heading through the city probably will be routed over the span when it is completed. The State Roads Commission announced that bids will be asked immediately.

Part of the expense will be borne by the Federal Government out of a PWA appropriation, and part will be paid from a $6,000,000 bond issue authorized several years ago by the voters. Widening of northern streets also will be possible under the bond issue.

5 at Martinsburg Named in Assault

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Warrants have been issued charging five men with felonious assault upon a man giving his name as George Leapole, of Maryland, who was severely beaten about the head and body in a disturbance at the old City Waterworks property yesterday.

The accused men are Fred Hardy, John Freshour, Melvin Stolipher and Andy and Joe Snell. Hardy Freshour and Stolipher were arrested by city police while the fight was still in progress.

Leapole is being detained in jail as a material witness. He received treatment at a hospital. Police are trying to ascertain how the trouble started.

H. W. Brock Rites Held At New Market Home

New Market, Va., July 17 (Spl.). Funeral services for H. W. Brock, 63, New Market hotel operator, were held from his home at 10 a. m. today by the Rev. W. O. Luttrell, of the Manor Memorial Methodist Church. Interment was in St. Matthews Lutheran Cemetery.

Mr. Brock died Sunday following an illness of several months. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Annie Manor Brock, and one sister, Mrs. Charles Carskadden, Haddon Heights, N. J.

Still On The Job.

In spite of the severe slash in its appropriation, the Public Utilities Commission is tackling one of the Districts most formidable problems—modernization of the transportation system. The P. U. C. will undoubtedly be handicapped in this work because of its reduced staff. But it is going forward, with commendable spirit, to accomplish as much as possible with the narrowly limited resources permitted it by Congress.

Rerouting of bus and street car lines in Washington is long overdue. The city is still served by an uncoordinated system developed by competitive traction companies. An extensive survey is being made with the view of speeding up cars and buses, especially those which carry passengers to outlying sections of the District and nearby Maryland. Commissioner Eigen also hopes that fares may be reduced "at least to prewar levels."

Thousands of Washingtonians who have come to depend almost entirely upon private automobiles for transportation might revert to use of public agencies if the service were improved and fares reduced. Motor traffic in the rush hours is nerve-wracking and slow. Parking is an acute problem in the downtown area. It appears that the transit company has a good opportunity to augment its patronage simply by using faster vehicles on routes that more adequately serve the public need, and by charging prices that the public will consider reasonable.

In a strict sense the transit company does not have a monopoly. It is competing with thousands of private cars and taxicabs. Alertness to public demand is essential to meet that competition. Because of this fact it is rather strange that the initiative in this movement for better service should be taken by the P. U. C. The important thing is, however, that the study goes forward and that a competent body of utility experts is endeavoring to give Washington the best transportation system possible with the equipment available.

The New Conservatism.

The iconoclastic, gin-drinking collegian is declasse. In his place there is emerging a romantic and optimistic type. We report this interesting observation upon the authority of Henry Goddard Leach, editor of the Forum. He, in turn, became aware of the trend while conducting a poetry contest. Some 3,000 manuscripts were submitted and, believe it or not, some 90 per cent of the poetry received was rhymed. Even to the vers libre there was a "distinctive rhythm." And all the sonnets had 14 lines!

At least one-fifth of the verse from the female contingent of coeducational students was about "home, babies and the emotions of motherhood." Many were frankly written for Mother or even for Dad. The students refrained from cursing fate, the editor reported, adding that they all seemed to have a new "sense of security" and are ready to adapt themselves to the prevailing social order, whatever that may be.

In one sense this is welcome news. That is, if it is news. But we rather suspect that this leavening of the collegiate spirit has been going on for some time. The bright college days that Percy Marks wrote about were somewhat exaggerated, and the decline of the American Mercury dates the beginning of the decline of sophomoric sophistication within the ivied walls.

But, judging from the results of the Forum contest as published, the New Conservatism of the college poets will not last long. After a few years of rhythm, youth will rediscover the joys of discord; after a few years of rhyme, the delights of vers libre will be found again. Poetry, even in colleges, travels in cycles, and the real thrill for freshmen comes from the discovery of Baudelaire, not Longfellow.

Back To A Constitution.

Brazil has reverted to constitutional government. A new basic law was adopted by a constituent assembly at Rio de Janeiro on Monday, and provisional President Vargas terminated his dictatorship by issuing a large number of decrees intended to restore normal conditions. Among these was an order bringing to an end censorship of the press.

The revolution in Brazil attracted widespread attention. It was front-page news. But the restoration of constitutional government comes about almost without notice abroad. The flare-up of revolt is always intriguing. The backswing to orderly and rational government is dull by comparison. This part of the revolutionary cycle is too frequently overlooked.

Since Brazil set up her dictatorship many other countries have departed from the path of government by law. Some of these are just beginning to feel the reaction that is set in motion by censorship, dictatorial decrees and regimentation of private activity. Brazil's experience comes, therefore, as a timely reminder that the pendulum of political sentiment does not swing with a one-way stroke. Whenever centralized authority sweeps away powers which the people, through their chosen representatives, have once learned to exercise, the difficult task of restoring constitutional government must sooner or later be faced.

Our Industrial Policy.

While President Roosevelt goes fishing off Clipperton Island, the most serious problem with which his Administration has been confronted continues to unfold, with San Francisco as its focal point. Although the general strike in that city overshadows lesser clouds on the industrial horizon, it is none the less only one of many serious labor disputes. From a dozen scattered centers come reports of other strikes, any of which would seem dangerous at a less critical time.

Whatever the reasons for the social chaos which is abroad today, the fact of its presence is inescapable. And while it would be impossible, as well as unjust, to attempt to focus full responsibility in a situation of such complexity, it is nevertheless apparent that the Administration's labor policy stands forth today in terms of failure.

Let us, at the outset, find every possible excuse for this outcome. The reactionary position of those employers who refuse to see that American labor is going to have some share in the management of its destiny is one factor for which the Government can not be held responsible. On the contrary, it has done much to try to discourage this short-sighted psychology. Nor can the Administration be blamed for the spread of an active revolutionary sentiment which it has sought to mitigate in various ways. Furthermore it is to be remembered that prior to March 4, 1933, our political leaders had given little thought to the provision of any form of economic security to workers, either as a National or State responsibility.

But when all allowances are made, a definite responsibility on the part of the Administration remains, and stands forth more clearly because it rests in an attitude apparent in many phases of White House policy the past 16 months. That attitude is what some have called the virtue of experimentation. Others would use a different term.

In the field of labor problems, as in many other directions, the emphasis has been upon light-hearted dabbling instead of on a serious and sober effort to lay foundations on which industrial peace can rest securely. It is summed up by saying that while a score of extravagant letter agencies have been established, no tangible progress has been made toward social insurance and very little toward the elemental step of a Nation-wide public employment exchange system. Yet if San Francisco had possessed even supervised registration offices for longshoremen there would have been no basis for the present strike there.

In retrospect, therefore, the industrial crisis does not seem surprising. It has been encouraged by the dangerous practice of social moralizing, unaccompanied by concentration upon the problem of making an armchair philosophy practical. "It seems to me," said the President in On Our Way, "plain that no business which depends for existence on paying less than living wages to its workers has any right to continue in this country." The sentiment is noble, but with what happens if the business can not go on paying living wages, the White House has not actively concerned itself. And a logical result of leading wage earners to believe that they are shamelessly exploited, whether that is in fact the case or not, is what has happened in San Francisco.

In this strike, fortunately, a number of constructive elements stand out. The trade unions have, lately, shown admirable powers of self-discipline and restraint. The employers, whatever their earlier attitude, are now careful to refrain from provocative acts. The local authorities, while taking proper precautions, are keeping cool and encouraging a much-tried citizenry to do likewise.

Such uniform self-control, in a situation filled with dynamite, is highly encouraging. The pity is that it is being exercised merely to avert social disaster, instead of focussing under skilled direction on building the better society of which we hear much seductive prattle, but for which we see as yet few indications of attainment.

Onslaught Of The Spoilsmen.

No thoughtful citizen can fail to be concerned over the extent to which the fight against the merit system in Government service is being carried. The organization at Lima, Ohio, of a Civil Service Repeal Association, whose purpose is to remove civil service legislation from the statute books, is merely one incident in a long chain of events leading toward restoration of the spoils system. It is significant chiefly because it illustrates the brazen confidence which the political job hunters are assuming.

The direct influence of the Lima organization may not be great. No individual of national importance is known to be associated with it. Nevertheless, it seems to be the outgrowth of a widespread surrender to those forces which place the development of political machines above the welfare of the Nation. It comes as an answering echo to Postmaster General Farley's cynical laugh when he told newspapermen that the unwritten bill to put all postmasters under the merit system (he was instructed to prepare such a bill by the President) had "died a natural death."

In former years the Federal Government has taken the lead in building up a permanent personnel through competitive examinations. Now, in spite of President Roosevelt's theoretical devotion to the merit system, sinister forces within his Administration are sabotaging the civil service. The prevailing attitude on this issue in Washington is spreading to State capitals and county seats. Nowhere, according to Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, "are bulwarks of the civil service system standing intact before the onslaught of the spoilsmen."

Records of the Civil Service Commission show that 89,000 jobs have been filled by the present Administration outside of the classified service. Almost every candidate for a Federal position is subjected to critical inquiry—as to his political affiliations and support. These plums are sweet for the politicians. But for the public which must pay in higher taxes and lower efficiency for this indulgence, they are becoming more acutely sour.

A National Power Policy.

The committee appointed by President Roosevelt to develop a National power policy is charged with a task of the highest social and economic importance. The results of its inquiry will doubtless affect, for good or ill, the lives of future generations, increasingly dependent upon the services of electricity.

Decisions must be reached on many complex, technically difficult, and generally controversial problems before a National power policy can be formulated. The development of power in connection with numerous Government projects alone requires planning of a most comprehensive character, calling for wide knowledge and anticipation of the needs of the future.

The co-existence of publicly owned and privately owned electric utilities involves another and quite different set of problems. A National regulatory policy should assure reasonable rates to consumers and reasonable profits to efficient companies, whether publicly or privately owned. How to achieve that desideratum is a question the solution of which calls for a high degree of judgment and impartiality on the part of the commission.

Moreover, legislation relating to holding companies and the regulation of electric current in interstate commerce probably will not be long delayed. The need of Federal legislation of this type to supplement the regulatory laws of the States has long been apparent. The holding company device has enabled many operating utilities to escape effective regulation by State agencies. And the tremendous resources of some of these great interstate companies have also been used to block more stringent State laws that might otherwise have been passed.

The new Power Policy Committee, therefore, has a formidable task ahead in attempting to develop plans that are economically sound, politically feasible and adapted to the developmental needs of a rapidly changing country. Selection of the committee from the executives of interested Governmental agencies makes it probable that broad knowledge of existing conditions and the technical equipment which is the basis for any intelligent legislative planning will both be present.

The men selected for this work, however, are all officeholders with important regular duties to perform. Their labors will be mainly advisory, and their services will be given intermittently. For that reason, and also because of a lack of representation of the private utilities upon the policy committee, the organization seems somewhat defective.

If a spokesman for the industries to be subjected to regulation were added to the membership, it would give greater assurance that the policies which are to constitute the basis for future regulatory legislation will be well-balanced—fair to both public and private interests, as well as to taxpayers and consumers of electric power.

Do You Believe?

It is worthy of comment that a Shakespearian performance at Ogunquit, Me., should awaken Nation-wide interest, even amid the welter of current problems. The tiny playhouse of that seashore resort is a mere miniature. The play was only "Twelfth Night." It was not a famous star who appeared as Viola. Yet "the house was a sell-out," and among the audience sat admiring critics who had gladly traveled from distant cities. For, in the generally trivial role of the aged "Maria," appeared Maude Adams.

At 62, this actress, too rarely returning to the stage, still firmly holds the torch of romantic tradition. She raised it high as the wistful and whimsical heroine of "The Little Minister," in '97. At the dawn of the century she carried it forward as the petulantly pathetic "L'Aiglon." And she made it her very own when, a few years later, she won the hearts of America's children—when she won the enthusiasm of the child that hides in the heart of the maturist playgoer—as Peter Pan.

Miss Adams announces a New England tour of one-night stands. Back on Broadway everybody is talking of hard-boiled actresses and the hard-boiled plays in which they are to appear this autumn. We wonder what would happen were some Peter Pan to kneel before Broadway footlights now and, with arms extended, head raised and appealing eyes aglow, make the old, the once unfailing appeal: "Do you believe in fairies?"

Reader Discrimination.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Rightly or wrongly, the writer believes, with many other citizens, that our banks as hitherto conducted are directly responsible for most of our misery, suicide, depression, and racketeering, and are definitely undermining our free institutional form of government. If trouble comes—God forbid—it will be directly traceable to them and not to the Communists or Socialists or other such forces. It will be because they are too stupid to learn what is best for themselves. Our ills may be mitigated or even cured by impartial presentation and discussion of the problems of the day, and not by propaganda, resorted to by many papers.

The idea behind your editorial of June 14, "A Dangerous Proposal," is a point in the case. A reader has a right to expect on the part of the editorial writer that he, the reader, has some discriminatory faculties. You take LaGuardia to task because he is trying to save a million or two for New York, and lament the possibility that this may be accomplished through the intercession of the RFC, as though the reader just woke up to the banking situation and is ignorant of the RFC's existence. Pray, where does not the RFC reach out now to force predatory wealth to deal decently?

In the same issue, on the first page, you give a detailed account how the B. & O. saved, or is saving, millions by the intercession of the RFC to compel bankers to act as bankers once did—and not like highwaymen. Do you begrudge that? Apparently the deal was made satisfactory and profitable to the bankers. Presumably, as you state, a similar outcome may be expected in New York. If the bankers do not possess the moral stamina to deal justly among themselves, what else is there to do? Your editorial does not suggest an alternative.

No one begrudges banks or capital earning what they are entitled to. Experience has shown that, in their greed, the sky is the limit. Their action thus far was far worse than the racketeer, for somehow they succeeded, with the aid of the press, to weave a halo around themselves where it was sacrilegious to call them by their right name. ### Quiet Along the Potomac.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your July 3 editorial "In Defense of Quiet," came at a time and in a residential and intellectual city where unnecessary and avoidable noises are especially noticeable to thousands of remembering visitors.

Probably more than any other large community in the United States, Washington is remarkable for the uncorrected noisiness of its street cars, for the unnecessary long-range wailings of its police, fire, and ambulance sirens, and for the resounding mechanical resonance and power surges of its motor trucks and buses.

Noise in a community is indicative of civilization in its cruder forms, revealing that culture is unattained or retarded.

The least valuable and the worst cared for automobiles in Washington make the most composite noise. In any restaurant, lobby, waiting room the man or woman who talks loud is generally considered an inconsiderate pest. Almost always the loud-mouthed man reveals, as do a man's table manners, the sort of a mother he had.

And Washington probably will continue to be quite as distressingly noisy as long as its city fathers themselves express, and preferably dwell amidst, discords.

Justice to All.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "Remember Mendel Beiliss' in The Post of July 10, drawing a parallel between that case and the Scottsboro case, is encouraging to those who believe in justice to all regardless of race, creed or color.

Too little is known by the average American of the contribution of colored Americans toward the development of this country. Most articles on the colored man prior to the Civil War were written for the purpose of justifying slavery. Since the Civil War articles have appeared justifying the exploitation of the colored American, setting him apart as a leper and denying him the full benefit of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the Constitution. Yet this despised group can well be proud that Crispus Attucks' was the first blood shed for independence and that Benjamin Banneker, commissioned by Thomas Jefferson, helped survey the City of Washington. T. M. M.

A One-Sided Diatribe.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: William Green, president of the A. F. L., has seen fit to issue a public denunciation of California's Governor because that executive deemed it necessary to use State troops on San Francisco's waterfront, where, for weeks, Mr. Green's labor friends had staged bloody riots in contemptuous defiance of the rights of fellow citizens to carry on the Nation's business, and in open revolt against San Francisco's police force.

As Americans, we are supposed to consider the best interests of the Nation and not claim special privileges or dispensations for ourselves when seeking what seems to be our rights! Evidently, Mr. Green thinks otherwise. Thus, while loudly condemning Gov. Merriam for armed intervention at San Francisco, Mr. Green has absolutely nothing to say in condemnation of the men and their organizations which, by the deliberate destruction of property, by cowardly and sometimes deadly attacks on strikebreakers, and by open conflict with the city's law officers, compelled the Governor to put a stop to a reign of terrorism and murder by the only argument appropriate, armed force!

So, will Mr. Green be honest enough to tell us whether or not he and his colleagues indorse the anarchy and bloodshed campaign carried on by their labor friends of San Francisco? Do they imagine or claim that laboring men, who happen to belong to some labor union, have a special dispensation to argue with brickbats, iron piping, and guns? Do they hold that any or all American workers who don't care to pay dues to some such union—and so provide fat salaries for presidents, &c.—have no right to work when and where they please? And do they profess that, when seeking their own financial benefit, all respect for law, local, State or Federal, may be thrown off and threats, violent attacks, even murder, are suitable arguments whereby to gain their ends?

Mr. Green hotly declaims against the presence of troops. His righteous soul rebels at the thought of their presence and power, that, shouts he, is coercion. But of the murderous acts of labor rioters he has nothing to say; doubtless, in his judgment their anarchistic and brutal persuasion is quite all right! Wonderful—isn't it? And so labor puts martyr-haloes on rioters who pay the proper penalty. Fighting police and getting killed are evidently noble acts—in Mr. Green's estimation!

Mr. Green's thoroughly one-sided diatribe against an honest and fearless executive, and his silent indorsement of planned anarchy and bloodshed, ought to open the eyes of our public to the real character of this disgraceful situation!

As Others See It.

From the Daily Worker, central organ of the Communist party, U. S. A. (section of Communist International).

Surging along the entire West Coast of the United States and part of Canada, the great general strike which began in San Francisco is sweeping with tremendous force over all barriers set in its way by the capitalists and the Government. It is drawing tight the brakes of labor on the wheels of industry.

The factories, the water and land transport service, all industry in the San Francisco area, stand eerie and silent, and paralysis is creeping over the factories and transport in every Pacific Coast city and town.

American working men have entered into the greatest fight in the history of American labor.

The ruling class—the bankers, shipowners, coupon clippers, factory owners, editors of capitalist papers, Mr. Roosevelt and his NRA understrappers, Republican and Democratic party politicians, governors of States and mayors of cities and towns—those who live in lavish luxury by exploiting workmen and workwomen, are shouting in frantic frenzy, cooking up mythical stories of revolution and violence, raising 101 varieties of the red boogy-boo, while they mobilize additional troops, police and thugs in a concerted attempt to break the strike.

Mayor Rossi of San Francisco, conveniently overlooking the fact that the strike is a fight for the most elementary needs of the working class, has let out a bray that has been repeated from coast to coast in the capitalist press, claiming that the radical element has seized control of the longshoremen and is aiming at revolution in the "Golden State."

Any sensible, sane and honest person knows that there is no revolution on the West Coast. The aim of labor in this situation, the aim of the general strike is not to seize political power, but to force the shipowners to grant the maritime workers' three demands: 1. Union control of hiring halls; 2. Recognition of the maritime unions; 3. Improvement of working conditions.

Mayor Rossi is shouting revolution in order to detract the attention of the masses from immediate issues of the strike.

The San Francisco Chronicle, following Mayor Rossi's lead, says: "The radicals have seized control by intimidation. What they want is revolution. Organized labor and Communism have nothing in common."

Everybody knows that the Communists are organizing the working class with the ultimate aim of setting up a government of the workers. But it should be clear to all that the Communists in the immediate situation are fighting for the most elementary rights of the workers. This is a strike and not a revolution.

Communists are playing a leading role in the strike. They have played an important role in the struggle from the very beginning. The role of the Communists has been to arouse the workers to the greatest class consciousness, to expose and isolate the top A. F. of L. strikebreaking leadership, to continue the strike and spread it under rank and file leadership, to draw the greatest number of reserves into the fight, to spread the strike into a general walk-out and thus assure its success.

"And A Dash Of Bitters!"

Postoffice, Wednesday.

"DID ye iver try a brandy cocktail, Cornel?" asks Thackeray's Irishman in "The Newcomes."

That Colonel was one of his characters whom the novelist loved best. Colonel Newcome is the friend of us all. But his answer, upon this occasion, doesn't matter—for our own especial friend, the Major, says there is no such thing as a brandy cocktail.

He says: "There isn't any cocktail anymore at all."

Says the Major: "The cocktail has become a lost art."

Certainly its origin is lost. It is lost in the mists of alcoholic history.

There used to be a legend that the name originated in cock tail-feathers ornamenting the stick given each neolithic cocktail-drinker wherewith to crush the sugar and stir the liquid. Yet, long before its departure from the morning newspaper field, the New York World, being duly sworn, deposed and said:

The cocktail was invented "by a Toltec noble, who sent it to the king by the hand of his daughter, Xochiti. The king fell in love with the maiden, (then) drank the liquor and called it 'xoc-tl.'"

For our part, we belive that the king drank the potion before he fell in love with the maiden—if the World didn't drink a few before it made the affidavit.

"Cocktail, n.—1. a. A horse with its tail docked."

It gives six definitions, but not until the fourth does it approach what 999 persons out of every 1,000 mean when they utter the liquid syllables in question. And even at that it merely remarks:

"Any of various beverages of spirit, iced and flavored with bitters."

Now, the Major agrees that the beverages possess and contribute spirit. But he strongly dissents from the "various."

Says he: "The cocktail was a U. S. A. drink. And the original cocktail was pretty much what we used to call an Old-Fashioned Cocktail. You took a thick glass and you put ice in it; no weakeningly pulverized ice, but chunks about an inch in diameter. Then you dropped in a piece of lemon-peel. Then you inserted some lump sugar—lump, mind you, and not more than a couple of lumps. Then you shook a drop—one drop—of bitters on each lump. Then you filled the glass with rye whisky. Then you stirred the mixture—with consideration. And, when the sugar was melted, you had your cocktail—and drank it slow."

This pretty much conforms to the description indicated by Cincinnatus Heine (alias Joaquin) Miller, who was the only poet who ever properly appreciated the cocktail—in rhyme:

"On Rousseau's Isle, in Rousseau's shade,
We stirred the cocktails 'round and 'round."

"That cocktail," the Major continues, "was the founder of the dynasty, and he never had but two legitimate descendants." All the rest, from the Clover Club to the Gate-Crasher, bear the bar-sinister, apparently, or come across sinister bars. "I mean," the Major specifies, "the Manhattan and the dry Martini. In fact, even those soon got corrupted. Females put absinthe in the Martini and fakers put benedictine in the Manhattan.

"However," says the Major, "for a while everybody did drink cocktails at the right time. The right time is 15 minutes before the dinner, and if the cook was late you'd forgive her—because you'd have another. That custom either improved the taste of the dinner, or else resulted in the diner not caring how the dinner tasted.

"But this exhibition of common sense in cocktails lasted for a while only, my friend," the Major laments. "We Americans are too generous. We had to tell Europe about the cocktail. We thought we'd be Americanizing Europe. Ha! Pretty soon Europe was making Manhattans out of Scotch and drinking cocktails after dinner and between dances and for 3 a. m. nightcaps. Americanizing Europe! Why, Europe ruins everything American it puts its fingers on—or lips to. Just wait and see what it does to baseball, now that we're spreading that American game abroad; first thing you know, you'll see Carl Hubbell pitching underhand like a cricket-bowler.

"Well, then, traveling Americans brought European cocktail-habits back here—and people fell for them because they were European. Anything, anytime. Stir it? They'd laugh at you. They all 'shook 'em up.'

"And after that, Prohibition put the lid on. Denatured vermouth—grenadine by the spoonful—peach-juice; regular soda-counter stuff. Half alcohol and half grapefruit juice and call it a cocktail!

"In the last year," said the Major, "I've been offered so-called cocktails with port in them, tea, mint, essence of cloves in them. I've been offered a 'cocktail' with cream floating on top of some sort of liquor." He seized the Unabridged. "Webster's weak on that other definition, but listen to this: 'Punch—A beverage . . . usually composed of wine, distilled liquor, water, milk, tea or the like, with sugar, lemon juice and, often, spice or mint.' And listen to this, too: 'Punch—A quick thrust or a blow.'

"The things," concluded the Major, "that they call cocktails nowadays are punches—and, to anybody who remembers what a cocktail used to be, they're a sad blow."

The Brain Trust.

APPARENTLY the Administration doesn't know exactly how to handle the Brain Trust in the forthcoming political campaign.

BARGERON

There have been several conflicts among the various spokesmen. The idea at first seemed to be to admit the existence of a gray-matter trust and to ridicule the opposition. Mr. Roosevelt himself sounded the keynote of this view when in a speech at Yale he said he thought the use of brains in the Government a pretty good thing and intended to keep it up.

It must have been that they didn't get a good reaction from this. The friendly press took it up and tried to laugh along with the Administration and to say that anyone's objection to the use of brains in government was right ridiculous. This tact seemingly, however, was not as catchy as it gave the appearance of being. Because now the tendency seems to be to swing back to the argument that there is no such thing as a brain trust.

• • • •

In recent weeks one has heard repeatedly from the corps of Administration explainers that the business about a brain trust is the bunk. Mr. Roosevelt, they insist, is his own brain trust. No group of young men hereabouts influences him except to the extent that a boss listens to his employes.

It is seldom that anything has so intrigued the country as the brain trust, seldom that so much has been written about any one thing in the newspapers and the magazines. Magazine publishers have sent their gifted writers to the Nation's Capital to find out, among other things, about the brain trust. It has made good copy ever since the Administration has been in.

• • • •

One magazine writer of National prominence has just now again sought to explode the brain trust myth. Agreeing with the recent Administration explanations, he says, there is no such thing. The term was coined, according to this writer, back in the campaign by Mr. James Kiernan, of the New York Times, who, looking around for a way in which to describe the group of advisers about Candidate Roosevelt, hit upon the "brain trust." I am not sure whether it was Mr. Kiernan who coined the phrase, but it was one of the reporters with him during the campaign.

This, however, does not explain why the term has hung on.

• • • •

It is true that the so-called brain trust constitutes not the slightest innovation in government. Since the Government got under way or shortly afterward at least, our various Federal agencies have had their experts—canal experts, road experts, agricultural experts, money experts, economists and statisticians and so on. The Government roster, as far back as I can go, has always been replete with them.

Mr. Roosevelt's brain trust is nothing more than the same kind of experts. The difference is, however, that under Mr. Hoover and preceding Administrations they were just experts—economists or statisticians and the like—but nothing more. Under Mr. Roosevelt they are brain trusters, or rather a large group of them are.

The reason for this, however, does not lie with Mr. Kiernan or any of the other reporters. It lies with Mr. Roosevelt himself. He put an emphasis on these experts which they never before enjoyed.

• • • •

Another reason, I suppose, is his good nature and his friendliness. He calls everybody after he meets him once or twice by his first name. It is pretty difficult to meet Mr. Roosevelt more than once without feeling very close to him, indeed. An expert working up a report for him feels that he is one of the pillars of the Government rather than just another report maker, which he is more likely to be.

The funniest slant on the whole brain trust business, I think, is that one of the brain trusters, maligned along with the others, is Mr. Ezekiel of the Department of Agriculture. Now Mr. Ezekiel has been on his job as an expert for a long time. He was there under Mr. Hoover. But under Mr. Roosevelt the same Mr. Ezekiel is a brain truster. There has been no change in the salary.

There is this, too: Some members of the so-called brain trust exercised influence with Congress. I never thought they played such a big tune with Mr. Roosevelt. They were shaping legislation and having things pretty much their own way on Capitol Hill, though.

And this is because the members of Congress thought nine times out of ten that they, the brain trusters, were speaking for the White House. They will give that impression if you let them.

Virginia Ponders 16 Changes In Game and Fish Regulatoins

Richmond, July 17 (AP).—The game and inland fisheries commissions today had under consideration 16 proposed changes in the game regulations, one of them a proposal to make unlawful the possession of a shotgun or rifle, out of season, on Virginia waters where ducks and geese are shot.

The other proposals include:

Sora season opening September 15 instead of September 1.

Prohibition on trapping raccoons for three years.

Prohibition on all trapping in Amelia County for three years except on premises by landowners or their tenants.

Open season on deer in Gloucester County from November 15 to December 15.

Closed season on ring-necked pheasants in Rockingham County for one year.

Split season for shooting squirrels in Rockingham County—September 1 to September 15, and November 15 to December 31.

Change in opening of muskrat trapping season in most counties east of the Blue Ridge from December 15 to January 1. Exceptions would be Greene, Madison and Rappahannock and other northern Virginia counties where the December 15 date would be retained.

Closed season of fox in Essex County from March 15 to September 1 every year.

Open grouse season in Greene County, November 15 to December 31.

Prohibition on fish traps and nets in Amelia County.

Prohibition on taking beaver in any manner in the State.

Prohibition on grab hooks and dip nets in Roanoke River, and Madison Creek in Roanoke County, and against all fishing in these waters between April 30 and June 30.

Change in opening of squirrel season in Charles City and James City Counties from September 1 to November 15.

Appeal Sought By Gudebrod in Orchard Fight

Counsel Gives 11 Reasons for Contesting Decision in Turkey Knob Case.

Mount Jackson, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Filing 11 grounds for appeal for C. E. Gudebrod in the litigation involving Turkey Knob orchards, west of here, which has attracted State-wide attention during its nine years in court, Judge F. S. Tavenner, Woodstock, counsel for Gudebrod, asks the Virginia Supreme Court to set aside the decision of Judge Philip Williams wherein Gudebrod's claim of $40,934.63 salary was placed in the last miscellaneous lien, and the total indebtedness due Artemus Ward's estate was set at more than $500,000.

Among the items of appeal noted by Cudebrod's counsel are, that at the institution of suit in March, 1925, Turkey Knob Orchard, Inc., was wholly insolvent; that Artemus Ward's administrators are entitled to a prior equitable lien on the real estate for the principal sum of $150,000 with interest; that Gudebrod is entitled to $40,934.63 salary, commission and advancements; that assets from crops that went into receivers' hands was real estate; that it was wrongfully decreed that the cost of the suit should be paid by Gudebrod, who was forced by Artemus Ward's administrators to defend his interests, and that Gudebrod is entitled to an appeal because of the overruling of his objections as set forth in decrees of Judge Williams, in Frederick County Circuit Court, on December 22, 1930, and January 5, 1934.

The counter brief filed by counsel for Artemus Ward's administrators, asking that the appeal be denied, states that Gudebrod left New York City in March, 1911, a bankrupt silk merchant and came to Virginia when the apple industry was at its peak; that without money to invest, and with no knowledge of the apple business, he persuaded Artemus Ward, jr., of New York, to purchase the 402-acre Swarthmore orchard, invest considerable capital and employ him (Gudebrod) as manager at a salary of $7,500 per year.

The case involves one of the largest orchards in the Shenandoah Valley apple belt, and the appeal will take to the State tribunal a record consisting of 15 typewritten volumes of nearly 2,000,000 words, compiled since 1925. It will be the largest record ever carried before the supreme court.

West Virginia Shift To New Deal Seen

Vote Registration Shows Democratic Majority.

Charleston, W. Va., July 17 (U.P.). West Virginia voters revealed strong sympathies with the New Deal in registration figures for the coming State primary, at which a new U. S. House delegation and a United States Senator are to be nominated.

Primary registrations indicated a majority of 75,000 for the policies of the National Administration, despite the State's normal Republican majority of 50,000.

McDowell County, which has not elected a Democrat to office for 40 years, has registered a Democratic majority of 7,000. Industrial and mining counties made up the strongest political turnover, with rural sections adhering more closely to normal registration figures.

Pittsylvania Tobacco Acreage Is Surveyed

Danville, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Uncle Sam began checking up on the tobacco farmers today in Pittsylvania County.

One hundred county men, drawing $3 per diem as AAA employes, started checking actual tobacco acreage against the crop-reduction contracts signed by the farmers. Any tobacco beyond the pledged acreage will be subject to a 33½ per cent tax under the terms of the Kerr bill when the time comes to sell it. This survey is expected to consume two weeks.

Carroll County Gets Corn-Hog Contracts

Westminster, Md., July 17 (Spl.). The Carroll County allotment committee reports that corn-hog contracts have been returned from the State board of review.

The AAA will allow a maximum curtailment payment for Carroll County on 8,150 head of hogs and 1,582 litters, or a 15 per cent reduction of the amount reported by producers.

Maryland Law Changes Up to General Vote

Proposed Amendments Not to Go Before Primary Balloting Aug. 7.

By W. L. Geppert.

Charleston, W. Va., July 17.—Answering numerous queries, officials of the attorney general's office have pointed out that voters will not be called upon to pass on proposed constitutional amendments at the State-wide primary election August 7. The amendment proposals, four in number, are to be determined at the general election in November.

Probably the most interest will be taken in the amendment providing for repeal of the State prohibition law. This amendment would give the Legislature the power to control and regulate the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors within the State, if ratified, and repeal would be effective March 1 of next year.

Another important amendment is that proposing to alter Section 2 of Article 10 pertaining to the fixing of capitation taxes. It authorizes the Legislature to assess $1 per inhabitant upon reaching his or her twenty-first birthday, and it would be necessary to show a receipt for having paid the tax as a prerequisite to casting one's vote. Only persons afflicted with a bodily infirmity would be exempted. At present capitation taxes are imposed only upon male inhabitants of the State.

The proposed "lame duck" amendment names officers of the State official family and provides that they shall take office on the first Monday after the second Wednesday of the January following their election, instead of March 4, as is now the custom. It also provided that the executives, including the Governor, the secretary of state, the State superintendent of schools, the State auditor, the State treasurer, the State commissioner of agriculture and the State attorney general, be residents of Charleston during their terms of office.

$1,000,000 Jacobs Collection of Art Given Baltimore

Baltimore, July 17 (Spl.).—Presentation to the City of Baltimore of the $1,000,000 art collection of Mrs Henry Barton Jacobs, society leader here, was announced today.

Mrs. Jacobs made the gift on condition that a wing be added to the Baltimore Municipal Museum of Art for its display.

A committee of the board of estimates was named immediately to study plans for the museum addition.

Mrs. Jacobs' art collection is regarded as one of the outstanding private collections in the United States. It was not itemized in the letter offering it to the city, but it is known to contain paintings by Rembrandt, Franz Hals, Van Dyck, Reynolds, Romney, Murillo, Sully and Charles Wilson Peale. Mrs. Jacobs' collection of tapestries and her art library also was given to the city.

Hail Loss Mounts To Fully $150,000

Virginia, North Carolina Tobacco Damaged.

Danville, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Damage far greater than that originally estimated has been done by hail in the tobacco section of Pittsylvania County, Va., and Caswell and Rockingham Counties, N. C.

Damage now is estimated at fully $150,000, rather than $50,000, chiefly because the Chandler's Mill section of Caswell, where telephone wire went down, was not known to have suffered.

In that region the damage was so severe that entire fields of tobacco were denuded of leaves. Farmers have had difficulty in coaxing their cattle out of the timber lands because the barrage of hail was so painful that they took to the woods and remained there terrified.

Washington County Democrats to Meet

Hagerstown, Md., July 17 (Spl.).—Among the speakers who have accepted invitations to the annual picnic and rally of the Democratic Organization Club of Washington County, to be held Thursday, are Representative David J. Lewis, Herbert O. Conor, candidate for attorney general, and Secretary of State David C. Winebrenner.

Democrats from all sections of the State are expected to attend.

The Sickle Over Europe.

I HAD, at the time, only one troubled query with the heady and millennial joy of November 11, 1918. Why did they call it an "armistice?" Wasn't it the end of the war? Hadn't we fought and won "the war to make the world safe for democracy?" Weren't we entitled to the full name and honors of a famous victory?

THEO. HALL.

For "armistice" meant only a temporary pause in warfare. I knew my Latin enough for that—"arma:" arms, and "stitium:" a standing still. A very queer word, I thought, for the glorious and lasting peace.

Well, the gentlemen in high command who did the naming of that November morning were far better realists than the rest of the celebrating millions on earth. To make that point amply clear to us, Hamilton Fish Armstrong, the editor of Forein Affairs summarizes the European situation of today in a little book called "Europe Between Wars?" (MacMillan, $1.25). He begins with an anecdote well worth repeating here.

• • • •

It seems that Secretary of War Baker and Gen. Tasker H. Bliss were sitting up late in the War Department, too anxious to go home, on the night the first American troop convoys were entering the submarine zone.

"General," asked Mr. Baker, "how long do you suppose this war will last?"

The general's answer came only after hesitation.

"By the analogy of other great wars, I should say 30 or 40 years. There may be a pause, an armed truce, while both sides lick their wounds and collect their forces. Maybe some of the contestants will meanwhile disappear; perhaps will even change sides. But then the war will go on again, until one side or the other is obliterated as a fighting force, or until civilization ends in a chaotic breakdown."

In all of Mr. Armstrong's book, 17 years after, there is not a fact of observation or deduction to gainsay those words.

For the dozen chief forces in Europe are growing every day, and in directions harshly contrary to each other. The soberest observer can not deny that fact unless he puts his head in the sand.

Germany rearming and expanding to the South and East; France watching in jealous fear; England praying for isolation (and 2,500 military airplanes in Germany by the end of this year making such isolation a wish-fantasy); the Balkans restless; Czechoslovakia wary of the Nazi juggernaut; Poland between the devil of Germany and the deep sea of Russia, and the Soviet Union itself, rich booty or all-powerful conqueror—these are the conflicting powers which Mr. Armstrong describes so ably and plainly that he who runs may read. It is all but too late for him who reads to run.

• • • •

At the center of the heap, dynamically as well as geographically, stands Nazi Germany. I believe that very few of us can realize just what Hitler and the swastika mean until we read a book which I must in all sincerity call the most eye-opening, thought-provoking and downright appalling book I've ever seen on the subject—"Hitler Over Europe" (Simon & Schuster, $1.90), by Ernst Henri. Whoever writes behind that presumable nom de plume speaks out with more factual knowledge of Germany and more logical insight into the Nazi complex than has before appeared in print. This is a "must" book for every intelligent American.

The rise of Hitlerism, says Ernst Henri, might appear to be a social revolution of the middle class, but in reality it is the strategy of a capitalism gone crazy with desperation, a capitalism ready to sacrifice middle class and working class alike in an effort to save itself and to gain continental resources and continental markets. The "devil in the machine" is the coal and iron industry of the Ruhr combined with the great chemical trust at Lenuna in central Germany. Behind Hitler stand Fritz Thyssen and the industrial barons. They "created" Hitler and the Nazi rule, but only as the sole defense against destruction from internal failure or at the hands of the French steel trust. German heavy industry and swastika can not exist without each other.

Thyssen covets, nay, must have mid-Europe—inclusive from Norway to Bulgaria, from Holland to the Ukraine—for commercial purposes. Nazidom must have the same area for "Aryan," pseudo-Germanic expansion. The result is the "Hosenberg plan" for a Central-European Nazi Empire: the "mittel-Europa" dream of 1914. After that, the conquest of Russia.

• • • •

But in the meantime, Hitler (that is to say, Thyssen) betrays the impetuous middle-class whose votes and Brown Shirts installed the Nazi regime. Roehm, idol of the Storm Troopers, is done away with; the Brown Shirts lose Hitler's favor and are thus pushed to the left. High prices and taxes already impoverish the middle-class (so that German capitalism may recoup). The working class exists on a 50 per cent wage cut compared with 1929. Half the unemployed are made into serfs; the rest are left to starve. Such, in very brief, is the picture of Germany.

And then what? In a cable to his publishers just the other day, Ernst Henri noted the three stages in this rise of National Socialism in Germany. The first was the seizure of government by the Nazis, January 30, 1933. The second was the middle-class purge (death of Roehm and others), June 30, 1934. And the next and last? Cabled Ernst Henri, with all the accumulated conviction of his profound study—"The third stage will be either the death of Hitler and the socialist (working-class) revolution, or the European conflagration."

A Letter to King George, the Retired Golfer.

Mr. George Windsor,
King of England.

My Dear George: It pleased me no end to read in the papers that you had given up golf because it made you "so damned angry." It always makes me damned angry, too, and I am glad to feel I have something in common with royalty.

• • • •

Golf is really a very upsetting game, George. It ought to be illegal. (The pro at my club says if I move my left hand over a little it will straighten out my drives.) It is a game that destroys happiness, stifles contentment at the roots and makes a bum of any man. (They tell me that putting your left foot ahead a little will help on downhill lies.)

• • • •

The game makes me damned angry, too, George; in fact, I gave it up AGAIN yesterday afternoon.

• • • •

This time I am definitely through with it. (I just missed a deuce on the fifth.) Bobby Jones says the secret of good putting is rhythm in the stroke.) I flung my whole bag of clubs into the woodshed when I got home, and this time I am finished with golf. There is no satisfaction in it for the average man. (They tell me there is a new driver out with some sort of shaft that gives added distance.)

• • • •

I have given up golf a thousand times before, but this time I mean it. If I didn't know any holds and had no biceps I wouldn't spend all my life trying to be a wrestler. (There is a new needled ball being put on the market which gives thirty to fifty yards extra, Mickey Wrenn tells me. I can get you the name of it if you are interested.)

• • • •

Thank goodness you and I have sense enough to quit the silly business. It will help us to sleep nights like normal human beings. With golf out of our lives you and I are going to know what happiness is like (Say, George, did you ever try that new sand wedge in traps? I just bought one and I think it's the thing for sandtraps. You stand a little ahead of the ball and sock well under it, taking lots of sand.)

• • • •

Thanks again for your example. Don't weaken. Golf is an abomination. We'll be better off without it. Give my best to the Queen.

Yours truly,
Elmer Twitchell.

Five Relief Posts Open in Berkeley

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Berkeley County Relief Administration, originally a 12-member board, has dwindled to seven members, with five vacancies existing.

D. Gold Miller, Gerardstown, resigned shortly after being named; L. H. Rooney, of Hedgesville, never qualified for the work; Mrs. Hattie Tabb, Winchester pike, resigned recently; Howard H. Emmert was removed by death, and Monday morning the county court received intimations that Charles M. Solenberger, of Cumbo Orchards, would not be eligible to serve longer. The court was advised that candidates for office must not be in controlling position in the relief administration. Solenberger is a condidate for county school board. He has not been advised of the ruling as yet.

The county court soon will face the task of naming five new members from lists submitted to it by State relief administration, which has made its selections from men and women of the city and county recommended by nonpartisan groups.

Danville Renews Plea For $3,000,000 Loan

Danville, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—While the City Power Commission labored to arrive at a means of providing Danville with adequate power, the City Council tonight moved to reopen negotiations with the PWA for a $3,000,000 loan in the hope that it might be earmarked until a formal application can be made.

That amount was once allocated to Danville for a power project but was rejected by voters.

An Injured Man Needs Food As Well as Medicine

By Robert Quillen

On one matter all of us are agreed. We want a chance to make some money and enjoy it in security.

Mr. Ford and others tell us that we are facing the greatest era of prosperity the country has ever known. And we have heard so much concerning business cycles and the booms following depressions that we are inclined to agree.

We are optimists by inheritance and habit, and the question we ask is not whether another boom will come, but when.

The answer is that it never will come until we face and solve a problem that is new in human history.

The problem results from the fact that part of us can now produce more than all of us can consume.

Machinery now does so much of the work that part of us are not needed as producers. Part of us will never be able to find jobs.

Those who are now secure may think it no business of theirs, but they are mistaken. We shall all sink or swim together.

If 10,000,000 can not earn money as producers, they can not spend money as consumers.

Idle men, even when supported by some kind of dole, consume much less than they should and thus magnify the problem of overproduction.

When the old system collapsed, the Government postponed chaos by taking the place of cash customers It began to spend money like the mythical drunken sailor, and that money saved the jobless and revived business.

But no land, however rich, can long continue to borrow and spend money by the billion to maintain an artificial prosperity.

There must be a day of reckoning, and it can not be long delayed.

Our only hope of averting disaster is to find a plan that will restore the normal buying power of "surplus" people without increasing the public debt.

It can be done, but not until men with brains realize that they can save themselves only by saving the whole country.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

"Caw-Caw Ballads."

How wise are crows? It is a common observation that all crows can tell the difference between a gun and a golfstick; indeed, they seem to know the exact range of a gun. Whenever a group of crows are feeding in a field, there is always one sentinel-crow, perched high aloft, whose business it is to warn the others of any approaching danger; and I have never known the sentinel to fail. I read an article by a scientific naturalist which sounds almost incredible. He said that once he succeeded in outwitting the sentinel. By patient care, he managed, although with the greatest difficulty, to elude observation of the lookout, and was able to shoot and kill one of the crows on the ground. Then, according to our naturalist, seven or eight of the crows, wild with rage at what they thought was the fault of the sentinel, pitched into him, pecked out his feathers, and administered a severe punishment for remissness of duty. That sounds like a fearful lie. Yet crows are no fools.

The distinguished Canadian poet, Wilson MacDonald, has written a brief book of nonsense verses which contains much sense. The volume is called "Caw-Caw Ballads," and is high-power satire, though amusing in its mere fun. The black illustrations add to the value of the book, as well as to its entertaining qualities.

The Political Crow.

A poor old crow,
Who was hungry and lean,
From a rich old bird
Stole one white bean.

So they flung the thief
In Caw-Caw jail,
And they kept him there
And refused him bail.

But another bird,
Who had lots to eat,
Stole sixty bushels
Of corn and wheat.

"This bird," cried the crows,
"Has political bent."
So they sent him to Caw-Caw Parliament.

The Artist Crow.

Seven crows sat down
In an artist's school
Where the teacher taught
By a brand-new rule.

For he told his class
With a tearful sniffle:
"All art of the past
Is just pure piffle.

"If you'd be painters
By our new law,
Just forget to paint
And forget to draw.

"And the world will praise
Your skill at paint
If you draw all things
Just like they ain't."

Orphan Home To Be Erected In Blue Ridge

Mrs. Ethel Snodgrass, of Alexandria, to Give $100,000 for Project.

Charlottesville, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Announcement was made here today by the Rev. W. Roy Mason, of this city, active head of the mountain work in the Episcopal Diocese of Virginia, that Mrs. Ethel Snodgrass, of Alexandria, will establish a home and school for motherless mountain children in the heart of the Blue Ridge, about 25 miles northwest of Charlottesville.

To build and maintain the home, as a memorial to her mother, Mrs. Snodgrass will donate $100,000. Of this total, she has already presented $55,000 to Archbishop Mason.

The memorial building probably will be located not far from the Mission Home, in Greene County, just across the Albemarle line, one of the 30 mission stations in the Archdeaconry of the Blue Ridge, extending through six of the ten counties in which the Blue Ridge Mountains are situated.

To Care for 50 Children.

Tentative plans call for a building to care for approximately 50 children. The cost is estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000. The home and school will be under one roof. It will be erected of native stone by a group of mountain men who in recent years have erected stone church buildings in a number of the mountain mission fields. These men have been trained in stone mason work and look upon the erection of the church building as an act of devotion.

Management of the memorial home will be left to the Archdeaconry of the Blue Ridge. A special board of trustees will be appointed, however, but the members will be chosen from the diocesan board of mountain work, of which the venerable Frederick W. Neve, of Ivy, is archdeacon. Other members are the Rev. W. Roy Mason, associate archdeacon; Bishop H. St. George Tucker; Dr. George P. Mayo, head of the Blue Ridge Industrial School; Homan W. Walsh and John A. Gilmore, both of Charlottesville.

Long Interested in Work.

Mrs. Snodgrass has long been interested in the welfare of motherless children from the mountainous districts of Virginia, and at present has several such girls in her home. Her intention to build and endow a home for orphans was first made known to Archbishop Mason at the May meeting of the Council of the Diocese of Virginia.

Two trips have been made by Mrs. Snodgrass to the Blue Ridge Mountains within the past fortnight. Her second visit was last Friday. This week-end she will motor to the Mission Home and definitely select a site for the memorial to her mother.

One reason that has influenced the location of the memorial near the Mission Home is the fact that there recently has been erected there a preventorium for tubercular children. Pupils in the new home and school will therefore be close to medical aid, if needed.

103 Registered At 4-H Club Camp

Staff of 20 Provided for Outing.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 17 (Spl.).—With a registration yesterday morning of 103 youngsters, and a staff of 20, the second of the two-week camps for 4-H Club members of Berkeley, Jeffereson and Morgan Counties opened at Camp Frame, near here. The 103 registration was more than double that of the first week.

The official staff of local instructors is led by Esther Brucklacher, home demonstration agent, with Cathryn Tedrick instructress in folk dancing; Ellen Sperow, in sewing; Martha Williams and Helen Burns, in nature; Agnes Shirley, in camp cookery; Cathering Millenson, in leatherwork; Brownie Osmond, Morgan County, in beginning swimming; Virginia Wilson, pillow tops; C. W. Ambrose and Herbert Shelley, in games, and Ernest VanMetre, tent leader.

State instructors include C. H. Hartley, camp director; Don Bishoff, swimming; William Price, wood work; Mary Hefflin, bracelets and plaster craft, and Neil Bolton and H. C. C. Willey, county agents.

Delaware Boy Dies, Two Injured in Auto Crash

Cambridge, Md., July 17 (Spl.). Harold Jones, 16, of Bridgeville, Del., was killed instantly, and Charles Donafin and Lawrence B. Rowe, also of Bridgeville, were injured in an automobile accident last night between Eldorado and Sharptown. Alton Layton, the driver, said the car was forced off the road and struck a telephone pole.

Dr. Rennie Appointed Resident at Jefferson

Roanoke, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Dr. Gordon Rennie, of the Union Memorial Hospital, Baltimore, will be the new resident physician of Jefferson Hospital here.

Several other appointments have been made in keeping with the policy to make a complete change in the staff each year. Dr. L. C. Spangler, of Johns Hopkins, succeeds Dr. W. H. Walters as assistant resident physician, and Dr. W. C. Fisher and Dr. White Burgess, both of Johns Hopkins, will serve at Jefferson. Dr. Fred G. Slaughter formerly was resident physician of the local hospital.

Hagerstown Area Hit by Grass Fires

Heat Is Blamed for Blazes in Washington County.

Hagerstown, Md., July 17 (Spl.). Lack of rain has resulted in a half dozen or more grass fires here and in Washington County since yesterday, the worst of which for a time late today threatened property on the Fred Scheller farm west of Keedysville, where a 20-acre hay field was partially burned. The blaze had spread to shocks of wheat in an adjacent field before neighbors aided the tenant, Frank Hammond, to extinguish it.

A grass fire here this afternoon was extinguished by the fire department after menacing several homes, while two grass fires, one along the Williamssport pike and another along the Sharpsburg pike, were extinguished by the Hagerstown and Williamsport fire departments.

Court Weighs Roanoke Slot Machine Issue

Roanoke, Va., July 17 (AP).—Federal Judge John Paul has the slot machine issue under advisement after a hearing on a preliminary injunction, restraining Roanoke police from interfering with operation of the machines under certain conditions.

Roanoke City asked that the temporary restraining order be dissolved while counsel for J. H. Gilbert, slot machine distributor who brought the injunction suit, asked that it be made permanent.

Car Stalls, Man Jumps to Safety.

Hagerstown, Md., July 17 (Spl.).—L. R. Voris, local chemist, narrowly escaped injury when a shifting engine at the North American Cement Corporation plant, Security, struck his car, which had stalled on the crossing. He leaped a moment before the automobile was struck.

Valley Industrial Heads on Outing

Waynesboro, Pa., July 17 (Spl.). Two hundred and twenty men in the industrial life of the Cumberland Valley attended the tenth annual industrial outing at Arendtsville Park, Adams County, Pa., over the week-end. The outing was held under the auspices of the Waynesboro Manufacturers' Association and the Valley Branch of the National Metal Trades Association.

J. Elmer Frantz, Waynesboro, as president of the Valley branch of the National Metal Trades Association, presided over the annual meeting. There was group singing in charge of H. M. Riddlesberger and J. J. Shank, Waynesboro.

Guests included Henry P. Fletcher, National Republican chairman; former United States Senator Joseph R. Grundy; Mayor I. M. Wertz, of Hagerstown, Md.; Thomas Pangborn, Hagerstown, recently elected president of the National Founders' Association; M. C. Kennedy, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Vice President Bargett, of the Western Maryland Railroad.

Virginians Will Hear Pa. Agriculture Chief

Middletown, Va., July 17 (Spl.). John A. McSparren, Pennsylvania director of agriculture and past master of the Pennsylvania Grange, will be the principal speaker at the annual farmers' picnic, sponsored by the Middletown Grange, in Woodman's Park here Saturday.

Other speakers will include Dr. Meade Furgeson, of Richmond, Va., master of the Virginia State Grange, and Fred Brenchman, Washington, representative of the National Grange.

Pastor in Clarksburg To Return to Sykesville

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 17 (Spl.). Accepting a call to the Presbyterian Church at Sykesville, Md., the Rev. Edward L. Beall, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church here the last seven months, will leave the latter part of the week.

The Rev. Mr. Beall came to the Clarksburg church from Sykesville, where he formerly served as pastor. The local church will be supplied until a regular pastor can be obtained.

Picked Pimple Kills Boy.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Michael Poturico, 6, died at a local hospital yesterday of an infection caused originally by picking of a pimple.

Buckhannon Bank Case Mistrial Is Declared

Elkins, W. Va., July 17 (Spl.).—Judge William E. Baker today declared a mistrial in Federal court here in the prosecution of William Post, president of the defunct Traders National Bank of Buckhannon; his wife, Anna Hurst Post; his son, John H. Post; Sanford Graham, cashier; O. G. Young and Judge J. C. McWhorter, directors, charged with conspiracy to embezzle bank funds.

The amount involved is more than $100,000. Judge Baker reset the case for Monday. Two days had been given to getting a jury and submitting stipulations when the mistrial order came.

Waynesboro Church Has Education Week

Waynesboro, Pa., July 17 (Spl.). A week of special activity has been started by the Waynesboro congregation of the Church of the Brethren. Opening on Sunday evening with special services on the church lawn, the services will continue each evening this week.

The services are being presided over by the pastor, the Rev. L. K. Zeigler, and at the service Sunday he was assisted by Dr. C. C. Ellis, president of the Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa. The activities are being designated as summer Christian education week.

U. S. Agents Probe NRA Violations

Charleston, W. Va., July 17 (Spl.). Special agents of the Department of Justice have arrived here and have started an investigation of West Virginia violations of the NRA codes and other Federal statutes.

Decision to call in the Federal agents was made at a conference held last week between George I. Neal, United States district attorney, and F. Witcher McCullough, State NRA compliance administrator.

What violations are being investigated have not been revealed at the NRA offices. However, it was stated that several "important" cases are to be probed, and McCullough stated that questions of bribery and conspiracy probably would be involved.

"Music in Air" Will Be Filmed On the Fox Lot

By Nelson B. Bell.

Gloria Swanson, long absent from the American screen, has been signed for her first appearance in a screen musical comedy.

While Miss Swanson's voice has been heard in films, her songs heretofore have been merely incidental to the action of unscored drama. The musical for which she has been borrowed from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is the screen version of the Jerome Kern-Hammerstein operetta, "Music in the Air," which Erich Pommer will direct for Fox.

John Boles and Douglas Montgomery are costarred with Miss Swanson, who will assume the role of the prima donna, and the cast also will include June Vlasek, Al Shean, Hobart Bosworth, Marjorie Main and Joseph Cawthorn.

Al Shean, of Gallagher and Shean fame, will have the role of Dr. Walter Lessing, which he created in the original stage version of the Kern-Hammerstein hit.

"Music in the Air," which is akin in form and treatment to the same composer's "The Cat and the Fiddle," is expected to go into production within a fortnight.

Congratulations are being showered upon Mr. and Mrs. Lou Brown upon the birth of a baby daughter in Sibley Hospital yesterday afternoon at 2:30. Mrs. Brown, Shirley to a host of friends in theatrical circles—and out, for the matter of that—and the little newcomer both are reported flourishing as this is written at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon. The only one who seems not to be doing so well is Lou, in charge of advertising and publicity for the Loew interests in Washington, who had to dispatch Ray Bell on his regular Monday round of the dramatic desks. Handshakes, genuflections, pats on the back and all that sort of thing all around.

Community Plans Progress.

With the completion of the cast of the Washington Community Players' production of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," to be presented in the Sylvan Theater on July 30, the costume committee, consisting of Miss Esther Galbraith, Howard Whitfield and Miss Louise Wynne, has begun work.

As in the case of "Alice in Wonderland" and other Community Players' productions, the costumes for "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be designed and made by the production committee with the particular requirements of the Sylvan Theater in mind.

The committee is following the modern idea in dressing the play in that the costumes are planned to give a fairy-like and classic impression without being actual copies of ancient Greek dress. The famous illustrations of Arthur Rackman have been consulted in order to carry out this idea.

Speaking of local dramatic productions, the repeat performance of "The Queen's Gambit" as a benefit for this year's President's Cup Regatta, to be held off Hains Point in September, will not be given in the garden of the old Belmont home, at 144 B street northeast, as announced here yesterday. Since that announcement was made by the Regatta Association, it has been found possible to secure the garden of the Leiter mansion on Dupont Circle for the performance, and it is there that Mrs. Leslie Frank's prize-winning play will be given. The date and hour of the performance remain the same—Wednesday, August 1, at 8:30 p. m.

Prize Play Contest.

To stimulate the writing, production and publication of new American plays, and thus to encourage both new and established playwrights in creating local drama, the Charles H. Sergel prize of $500 is offered for the manuscript which, in the opinion of the judges, represents the best full-length play submitted on or before December 1, 1934, it is made known by a bulletin from the University of Chicago that reached the dramatic desk yesterday.

Some of the Rules.

Among the rules governing the contest are provisions that the winning play will be awarded the sum of $500 and check mailed promptly to the successful author; that the playwright is in no way obligated to the University of Chicago, agency, production and publication rights remaining with him, except that a first production of the play may be made by the University of Chicago Dramatic Association, and publication of the winning play, together with certain plays receiving honorable mention may be made by the Dramatic Publishing Co., of which the late Charles H. Sergel was founder, unless, in both instances, previous professional contracts prevent; that only full-length plays, approximating 100 typewritten pages and requiring approximately two hours of acting time, will be considered; that as many works may be submitted by any contestant as may be desired, although all must have been written since the year 1933.

Minor Requirements.

There are, of course, other minor requirements relating to the binding of manuscripts either in paper or cloth, return postage and the usual contest stipulations.

Manuscripts should be addressed to the Charles H. Sergel Play Contest, The University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill. All manuscripts submitted must bear postmark not later than December 1, 1934.

All right, you Eddie Melchers, Dot Lewises, Frank Baers and all the rest, here is your chance to cop the five "yards." Hop to it and get your names in the paper!

And don't forget that tonight out at the Roadside Theater, six miles beyond Bethesda, Md., on the Rockville Pike, down a side road opposite the Congressional Airport, "Murder in the Red Barn," a lusty old English melodrama, dating back to early nineteenth century, will be given its first "barn theater" presentation in or near Washington. It is expected that this dramatization of an actual occurrence will meet with the same favor as "The Octoroon," the first production of the melodrama half of the Roadside Theater's double-barreled acting company. Frances Brunt and Eugene Kressin head the cast, under the direction of Anton Hardt.

Gaumont Signs American.

In recognition of his outstanding direction of "Jew Suss," the Lion Feuchtwanger novel published in America under the title of "Power," Gaumont British has signed Lothar Mendes to a new two-picture contract, and he has already been assigned to handle two of the company's most important forthcoming productions, "King of the Damned" and "Anna Karenina."

"King of the Damned" is a screen adaptation of the London stage success of the same name, and will star Conrad Veidt in his first picture under his recently signed contract with Gaumont British. The story has its locale on "Devils Isle," the French penal settlement in the tropics.

In "Anne Karenina," adapted from Tolstoy's famous novel, which is Mendes' second picture on his new contract, Madeline Carroll and Conrad Veidt will be co-starred.

Although never made as a talkie, "Anna Karenina" was produced several times in silent form.

The best of the silent versions, as I recall them, was the comparatively recent one, starring Greta Garbo before she had become Greta Garbo.

At yesterday's Variety Club luncheon in the new clubrooms in the Willard Hotel, one is led to believe, Wesley Eddy had himself a time. Mr. Eddy, a local favorite, not only broke a string on that trick violin equipped with the phonograph horn, but also was accompanied by the highest priced pianist with whom he has ever had the pleasure of appearing—Vincent Lopez. Mr. Eddy is co-headlining the current stage bill at the Earle with Leo Carillo and Senor Lopez, with his famous St. Regis Orchestra and revue, is the stage attraction at Loew's Fox.

Vale, Colonel, and Good Luck.

Col. Harry Long, Loew division manager, who is transferred to the Cleveland territory and is succeeded in the Washington bailiwick by former City Manager Carter Barron, calls up from Baltimore to say many pleasant things—which we have no difficulty whatever in reciprocating—and bid this desk good-by, good luck and the rest of it.

Col. Long is an able executive with a genius for friendship. With something like $6,000,000 worth of new theaters recently added to his new territory, he assumes his new duties with no other expectation than to be faced by $6,000,000 worth of hard work. That, incidentally, is the colonel's dish. We shall miss him.

Reassurance Note.

Don't be nervous, Lou; Sibley has never lost a father yet!

Tennesseean Electd To Head Orthodontists

Hot Springs, Va., July 17 (Spl.). The Southern Society of Orthodontists, in their thirteenth annual meeting here today, elected Winston P. Caine, of Chattanooga, Tenn., president.

W. P. Wood, jr., of Tampa, Fla., was reelected secretary and treasurer, and W. A. Clarke, of Atlanta, president elect. A. C. Broussard, of New Orleans was named a junior member of the board of censors.

Herbert Kidwell Burned.

Cumberland, Md., July 17 (Spl.). Funeral services for Herbert Kidwell, 46, former Cumberland resident, who died Saturday at his home in Philadelphia, were held today at Short Gap (W. Va.) Church.

Richmond Reserve Loan Group Named

Richmond, July 17 (AP).—Gov. George J. Seay, of the Fifth District Federal Reserve Bank, announced here tonight the membership of the advisory committee on loans to industry for this district.

Jack Holzclaw, president of the Virginia Electric & Power Co., was named chairman. Others are Walker Stuart, of the Richmond Hardware Co.; Overton Dennis, of the Old Dominion Oil Co., Richmond; George E. Provest, secretary and treasurer of the Bartlett Co., Baltimore, and Harvey Moore, of Charlotte and Concord, N. C.

Such committees are to be named in each of the 12 Federal Reserve districts to cooperate in the administration of the loans to industry bill enacted by the last session of Congress. The law requires that each man named shall be actively engaged in some industry.

Mrs. Mary B. Strang Dies at Cloppers, Md.

Mrs. Mary B. Strang, 76, died yesterday at her home in Cloppers, Md., after a brief illness. She was the widow of Joseph D. Strang and is survived by two children, Joseph A. and Marie T. Strang.

Funeral services will be held Thursday in St. Rose's Catholic Church, at Cloppers, with interment in the cemetery there.

IF you want to spend less money for better lubrication—listen to what these motorists have to say about 25c* motor oils!

For each of the car owners shown above speaks with authority! Each of them tested Gulf-lube against their regular 25c* oils—all leading brands—under identical driving conditions! Here's how it was done . . .

Using their regular oil, each of these men set out for some distant point, and checked the distance they travelled before their oil level dropped a quart.

Then, they repeated the trip using Gulf-lube. And Gulf-lube took them anywhere from 74 to 226 miles farther before they had to replace a quart! That's money worth saving!

Try it! Switch to Gulf-lube, the "high-mileage" motor oil. You'll buy far less oil between crankcase drainings. And you'll get better, surer, sweeter lubrication—for the oil that lasts longer is a better oil. Gulf-lube is 25c* a quart at all Gulf stations.

Ickes Orders Probe of Rise In Fuel Prices

NRA Consumers' Board to Aid Investigation Opening Friday.

Stepping to the defense of the consumer before cold weather returns, Oil Administrator Ickes yesterday ordered an inquiry into fuel and oil heating prices and charges of monopolistic practices.

He asked the NRA Consumers' Advisory Board to aid in the investigation, which will get underway at a public hearing before the Petroleum Administrative Board July 30.

The inquiry is based both on a preliminary survey by the petroleum board, which detected a decided rise in prices in the last several weeks, and numberous protests from private consumers, the administrator said.

"We feel that their complaints merit the most careful investigation to determine whether fair prices are being charged," Mr. Ickes said. "I have been advised by the board that the prices may be advancing too rapidly.

"We can not determine from the information now available whether the advances are altogether justified * * * We do not intend to permit the consumer to be required to pay an exorbitant price for any oil product because of the operation of the code or activities which any oil company attributes to the code."

Code authorities of industries affected by fuel and oil prices, together with consumers, will be invited to attend the hearing.

The Opening Lead.

The choice of an Opening lead when the side which has won the contract has done all the bidding, is frequently difficult, particularly when the leader has a trickless hand and his partner has doubled the adverse game contract. One general principle, however, can be laid down—that it is extremely unwise to lead from length in a hand which is void of entries, as partner with a strong hand may futilely waste time in establishing tricks that can never be cashed. Had West in the hand below applied this principle, the hand would have been defeated. But West was a wooden follower of theory and believed that the only proper lead, lacking an honor sequence, was fourth best from his longest suit.

1—East hopes that his opponents may reach a game contract, which he might double—hence the pass.
2—North decides to rebid his minimum.
3—South feels that he could have responded to his partner's opening bid with at least a King less than he holds; hence in view of his partner's Rebid he shows his additional strength.
4—Decidely an overbid.
5—The hour has come which East had sought.

West's opening lead was the heart Three. I have already stated my opinion of this choice of a lead. The correct opening lead of the diamond Eight would have worked out much more advantageously. East won with the King, returned the Ace and cleared the suit, South winning the third round with the Queen. The spade seven was then led and the double finesse taken, East winning the trick with the King. At this point East made the very clever defensive return of the diamond Three and South, knowing that West had two established hearts, felt compelled to go up with the Ace. Another spade was led, the finesse against the Jack taken, and four spade tricks cashed. East was forced to find three discards. He felt compelled to retain three clubs, so parted with the Queen and Ten of diamonds and the club Four. South, who had been carefully watching the play, now led the diamond Jack from Dummy. East won with the King, but South fulfilled his contract by taking the remaining tricks. Had East instead chosen to discard clubs, the same result would, of course, have followed. South, in discarding on the spades, would have parted with one diamond and two clubs, while in the North hand three clubs had been retained, a small diamond having been discarded on the third round of hearts.

New Yorker Brings Rare Shakespearean Work From England.

Copy Similar to Volume Treasured in Hogan Collection.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Nearly all brilliant men have hobbies, stamp collections, picture galleries, kennels or stables, and nearly all of them enjoy discussing these pursuits.

Mr. Frank J. Hogan started several years ago to make a collection of rare books, and has succeeded in gathering together a library of some of the finest in the world. His collection, which is not large, boasts, among other interesting and valuable books, fine editions of the four Shakespearean folios, the first of which is considered, by many, the best that exists.

Mr. Hogan's First Folio was bought from the estate of the late Lord Rosebery, who died in 1929. It is related that as a young man Lord Rosebery said there were three things he wished to accomplish in his lifetime: First, to marry a very rich wife; second, to own a Shakespearean First Folio, and third, to win the Derby. Unlike many who set such objectives for themselves, Lord Rosebery attained all three ambitions.

He married one of England's richest women, Hannah, only daughter and heiress of Baron Mayer Amschel de Rothschild; he acquired all four of the Shakespearan folios, and his horses won the Derby three times.

Compulsory Auction.

So Mr. Hogan acquired from the estate his famous book, principally through the English law which prohibits English subjects from disposing of heirlooms of great value in their wills.

Famous tapestries, books, and paintings must be bought by the heirs of the owner at public auction, bidding against the collectors of the world, and so unless the estate leaves them enough money to outbid the others, they have little chance of retaining what in this country would be considered rightfully theirs.

Yesterday another remarkable copy of the Shakespearean First Folio was brought to this country from England by a New York collector.

It comes from the library of one of the oldest families in England—a library to which nothing has been added since 1700. The volume probably will hold considerable interest for Mr. Hogan, who is now on a business trip in Chicago.

Mr. Hogan will remain in Chicago through this week, and then will go to California to remain until the end of August. Mrs. Hogan is on a North Cape Cruise, and will arrive in this country at about the same time Mr. Hogan returns from the West Coast. They then plan to spend some time with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Guider, at their country place in New Hampshire.

Consul Clears Hess - Winslow Path to Altar

Wedding Held in Rome Without Delay for Two-Week Bans.

Lieut. Cameron McRae Winslow, U. S. N., and Miss Natalie Hess, of New York, were married Tuesday in Rome, Italy, where Miss Hess arrived last Saturday. The wedding took place in the Church of San Camillo, an American Paulist priest, the Rev. Earl Jarrett, officiating.

Although friends of the young couple and even United States officials in Rome thought the marriage could not take place for at least two weeks because no marriage bans had been published, Lieut. Winslow and Miss Hess, through the intervention of the United States Consul, arrived for the ceremony only a few minutes late.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Hamilton Hess, of Los Angeles, and Mr. Nathaniel J. Hess, of New York. She attended the Howe-Marot School in Connecticut, and made her debut in New York in the winter of 1928-1929. She is an active horsewoman and has taken part in many hunts on Long Island and in Connecticut.

Lieut. Wislow went to Italy aboard the U. S. S. Arkansas, Naval training ship now on a cruise. His engagement to Miss Hess was announced on May 30. He is the son of Mrs. Cameron McRae Winslow, of Newport, R. I., and New York, and the late Rear Admiral Winslow, and is a cousin of Mr. Francis Winslow, of Washington.

Lieut. Winslow and his bride will return to this country next month and will go to Newport for several weeks before departing for California where the former will be stationed.

Naval Hero's Son Marries In New York

Miss Marjorie McKittrick Becomes Bride of Frank Berrien.

Mr. Walter McKittrick, of St. Louis has announced the marriage of his daughter, Miss Marjorie McKittrick, to Mr. Frank Whittelsy Berrien, son of Capt. Frank D. Berrien, U. S. N., and Mrs. Berrien. The marriage took place March 29 in New York.

The bride, prominent in St. Louis society, is spending the summer in Dublin, N. H., with her sister, Mrs. G. D. Markham.

Capt. and Mrs. Berrien and their daughter, Miss Betsy Berrien, are now living in Brookline, Mass., where Capt. Berrien has been stationed since leaving Washington several months ago. While on duty in the Capital, Capt. Berrien was captain of the Washington Navy Yard. He was formerly in command of the airplane carrier Lexington, and is credited with being the first American to sink a German submarine during the World War, when he commanded the destroyer Nicholson. He was decorated with the Order of St. Michael and St. George by the British government, and received the Distinguished Service Medal from the American Government.

Young Mrs. Berrien attended the Masters School at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and the Fermata School at Aiken, S. C.

Mr. Berrien was graduated from Princeton last month where he was a member of the Colonial Club.

Republicans Look to Women And Youth for Revitalization

Mrs. Ellis Yost, Optimistic These Days, Feels the Young Feminine Stalwarts of the Party Will Do Much Toward Stiffening Its Backbone.

WOMAN, whose pale political wand has grown into a persuasive party cudgel the last few years, may prove the strong arm behind the resuscitation of the Republican party. Youth is another revitalizing factor to be counted upon.

Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, director of the woman's division of the Republican National committee, who keeps her sensitive finger upon the party's pulse, is smiling hopefully these days. She sees the solution not only of her party's ills but of the Nation's woes coming through the organization of these two forces—women and youth.

"Every few days," she says, "we have reports of newly organized Young Republican Clubs, whose programs for government betterment are inspiring. It is through these that our party's intensive program of education will gain ground."

But it is the women, and in particular the younger women, that Mrs. Yost counts upon to stiffen the backbone of the party.

"In the first place, the young woman of today is already equipped by education with a thorough knowledge of political science," she pointed out. "When she enters politics, she does it with her eyes wide open and her brain sizzling with constructive ideas.

"Accustomed to club work, women give politics their full attention. They stick to it the year around. Possessing moral courage, they do not become discouraged by temporary defeat, but intensify their efforts in the face of it. Women are temperamentally suited to political careers."

Political leadership, however, doesn't always emanate from among those handling detail work, according to Mrs. Yost. Outstanding feminine personalities in far removed fields of activity often come to the rescue of a political party with evidence of remarkable strategic acumen.

Throwing their influence and special talents into the balance, they contribute materially toward turning the political tide. With other careers to consider, this, to Mrs. Yost's mind, demonstrates moral courage that is a part of leadership.

G. O. P. Blessings.

The Republican party in the past has always been blessed with its share of feminine celebrities. These may be called upon for unique leadership in the future. With the women's wing of the Republican party working tirelessly and generously toward reorganization one thing is certain says Mrs. Yost—women will play a bigger part than ever before in the coming campaign.

Among personalities who may be looked to for potential leadership stands the ever dominant Alice Roosevelt Longworth, whose epigrammatic wit and terse political observations are admired by thousands. There is the gentle Grace Coolidge, former First Lady; the beloved Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, sr., and Mrs. William Howard Taft. Dynamic Ruth Hanna McCormick and Mrs. Henry Ford are other possibilities.

In the top ranks of club work, and therefore widely influential, are Mrs. Marian McClench, past president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Grace N. Brosseau, former president general of the D. A. R.

These, and many more, comprise the board of counselors appointed by Mrs. Yost during the last political campaign. She believes they can be counted upon to demonstrate their leadership and loyalty in the next.

Home Designing Course Taught to Texas Girls

Austin, Texas (AP).—No longer will the male of the species have the final say—if he ever did—on architectural details of a home, when 25 coeds of the University of Texas complete their education.

A course in home designing is offered to home economics classes at the university. The girls are taught to prepare plans for an ideal home, down to the minutest detail of floor planning, lighting, color combinations, materials and cost. Making financial arrangements and provision for upkeep in the family budget are included in the course.

Protestant Sects May Consolidate

Survey Shows Many in Favor of Move.

Numerous Protestant sects scattered throughout the United States are likely to be welded into one great union within the next few years. The probability of the union, embracing 75 per cent of Protestant church membership, was recently announced by Dr. H. Paul Douglass after four years of study.

Twenty thousand clergymen and laymen were questioned by Dr. Douglass. Two-thirds of them declared they were in favor of a closer union between the denominations.

Results of the study showed that ministers are more in favor of it than laymen; that men willing for the union far outnumbered women; young people were less in favor of it than older ones.

The Presbyterian and Methodist Episcopal churches would probably be the leaders in the movement since the study proved they had no antipathy toward each other. At the other end of the list were the Lutherans and Unitarians who admitted they would have difficulty getting along together. Presbyterians were the least discriminated against by any church group.

Old-Fashioned Flower Scents Replace the Musky Perfumes

PARIS, July 17 (AP).—Perfumes of the flowers which grew in grandmother's garden are "all the rage" this summer.

Fashionables who seem to be more perfume conscious than they have been in many years, float by on a breeze of jasmine, lilac, carnation, lavender, erbena or heliotrope. So-called "sophisticated scents" have, for the moment at least, been left in the background.

Besides the perfumed touch behind the ear and the scent sprayed in the hems of skirts or into the hair, fashionable women are using the flower odors in a dozen new and subtle ways.

One chic Parisian has sent out the boutonnieres she wears on day clothes and the artificial corsage bouquets and flower capes she wears by night and had them treated with the perfume of the flowers they represent.

Another hangs sachets from her dress hangers so her frocks are saturated with the scent of heliotrope and another sprays the inside of her luggage so her traveling wardrobe is permeated with the perfume of jasmine.

Along with the vogue for flower perfumes, face and hand make-up has taken on a more subtle tone. Real sun-tan in a deep sun-baked hue is "out." "Beige"—a soft cream-in-the-coffee hue — is the thing this year. Many women use it with carefully blended color on the cheeks giving a ripened peach effect.

Lips are still brilliant, but the season's choice is a light bright color, shading a touch more to the orange than the blush tint, and more youthful and becoming than the darker color.

Eye-shadows are still much in vogue. There is a new gold which gives a glamorous touch to the eyes by night, while blues, silver-greens, and browns are much used by day.

Brilliant red polish is less seen on fashionable nails these days. Sometimes it is replaced by coral or rose, sometimes by no varnish at all. Some women are "giving their nails a rest," have gotten out the buffers which lay long neglected in dressing table drawers and are putting a natural polish on their nails.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Readers Write Suggestons for Downing Foe of Loneliness.

By Mary Haworth.

WHO WOULD have friends must first show himself friendly. An ancient proverb, this, and a true one. No more conclusive evidence is needed than the contents of this column two days past, versus those of today.

On Monday, readers were told of lonely men and women in Washington, newcomers to the city—who, disposed to friendship—yet failing to find it, might benefit by the sympathetic suggestions of those who had known a similar plight.

* * * *

The very candor of their acknowledged failure indicated the simple friendliness of spirit of these lonely persons; and their candor has been met in the same spirit in a number of helpful letters which came in today's mail.

Space will permit of the printing of only two, which I pass on with the hope they may in some measure help those to whom they are directed. M. H.

Friendly Aggression.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: Your comment on loneliness must have struck a responsive chord in any reader who has ever gone to a new place to live. The customary answer to the problem is always "go to church," "join a club," or, here in Washington, "join your State society." But these measures alone, I have found from experience, go only half way. The person who is seeking companionship must do the rest.

* * * *

Let me explain what I mean. When I first moved to a strange city, and, through business and neighbors, began meeting people, I was disappointed, even hurt, when they said "you must come and have dinner with us sometime"—and then never got around to a definite invitation. Now that I am established, I find myself doing the same thing, and I realize how it happens. The person who has a circle of friends doesn't have time for missionary activities among strangers, even though her intentions are of the best. Lack of time is the answer for neglecting to follow up vague invitations.

* * * *

So, it seems to me, the newcomer has to go more than halfway. Etiquette decrees a newcomer shall wait for the old established resident to take the initiative in friendship, but it just won't work. These are free and easy days. If a newcomer meets a person she believes she will like, she can take things in her own hands. Why not invite this potential friend out to tea, to lunch or to a small party. That starts the ball rolling, and invitations naturally follow. This is such a busy world that aggressiveness is necessary in making friends as well as in getting business!

* * * *

Then, too, the making of friends is largely a matter of exuding friendliness. It's all a give-and-take proposition. If you stand on your dignity, it gives an impression of lack of friendliness; if you display interest in another person, it creates responsiveness that clicks and develops into friendship.

* * * *

I have moved more than once since that first time, and I find that the theories I have outlined have a practical and effective application.

The Joiners.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I read with much interest your column for Monday in which you evinced an interest in ways to get acquainted when one arrives in a strange city. My experience in this regard might interest you.

* * * *

Last November my husband and I moved to Washington. We knew two persons living here at that time, and we had very little hope of meeting others until we had stayed here a long time. Yet we had to know people, plenty of them, as my husband was a dentist and wanted to build up a practice in the least possible time.

* * * *

To say we became "joiners" would be putting it mildly. We lined up with virtually every organization to which we were eligible. I became a member of a writer's club, the American Association of University Women, my sorority alumnae association, and an art league. My husband joined a political group, a dental society, and a men's luncheon club. Together we joined our State society and a dramatic group.

* * * *

Yes, all this cost plently of money, but considering that we've been here less than a year, that my husband has a fair practice in a city where it's not easy for a dentist to break in, and that we have more than enough social invitations to keep us occupied, pleasantly, in the evenings, the costs for joining all these organizations was a good investment.

* * * *

My advice to the lonely individual in Washington is to join some type of club. There's no need for the average person to go in for mob membership—such as we did—but nothing cures loneliness so quickly and effectively as getting out and meeting new people.

J. G. T.

Susi Lanner, Austrian Model, Beautiful in Viennese Manner

Although She's All Over the Country in Various Advertisements, She Has Her Eyes on Hollywood—That's Where the Real Money Grows.

Photographs of Europe's famous models are known even on this side of the Atlantic. But what of the models themselves, their lives? In this, the first of a series, is told the story of beautiful Susi Lanner, of that city of continental charm, Vienna.

VIENNA, July 17 (AP).—Susi Lanner started out to be a teacher of dancing and gymnastics in the schools of Vienna.

Austrian advertisers sought someone to typify the irresistible appeal of Viennese beauty.

Direction Changes.

As a schoolgirl she looked forward to a career of teaching. She took the official teacher's examinations in dancing and gymnastics before an opportunity to learn acting at the Deutsches-Volks Theater lured her thoughts toward a stage career.

Later, while appearing in a small role at the Komoedie she came to the attention of a motion-picture director and was cast in a film. Since then she has appeared in a picture with Alfred Piccaver, an American opera singer, long popular with Vienna's music lovers and lately with Austria's film fans. Just now she is spending much of her time on horseback, getting ready for an equestrienne picture.

Eyes on Hollywood.

"You see," she said, "I hope some day to go to England or to the United States—to Hollywood!"

Susi's five feet of pulchritude fit the Hollywood frame; her voice and temperament suggest entertainment. Maybe she'll get to Hollywood. If so, nice for Hollywood.

She doesn't mind posing for advertising illustrations; thinks it's fun, though no one gets rich that way in Austria.

The usual remuneration is in merchandise. For instance, shoes, hats, suits, dresses. In present-day Vienna, where even the biggest of the stars doesn't begin to earn what Hollywood would call money, the pretty girl in films doesn't scorn the clothes the advertising camera brings her.

But Susi's real ambition is a big career on stage and screen. Both of them.

Strictly Speaking

Familiar Words.

1. What does decorous mean and how is it pronounced?

2. Is the word abdomen properly called AB-do-men or ab-DO-men?

3. Many drama teachers now advocate the use of bean for "bin." What about it?

4. What is the preferable pronunciation for drama?

Answers Here.

1. Decorus, meaning fit, proper or marked by propriety, is pronounced either de-KO-rus or DEK-o-rus.

2. It is ab-DO-men.

3. The accepted and usual pronunciation in the U. S. is bin; in England, bean for been is the customary pronunciation, often becoming bin when unaccented. In Webster's words, however, "bean is now heard to some extent in the East, probably in imitation of the English."

4. DRAH-ma is preferable.

PILLAR TO POST

PERHAPS the most fascinating statue in Washington is that of the youthful Alexander Hamilton on the south side of the Treasury.

The handsome, romantic figure typefies the youth, at least, of many members of the New Deal. There are an amazing number of young men in high office in this Administration. Like Hamilton, who was the youngest Secretary of the Treasury at 32, Charles E. Wysanski, 28, is the Acting Secretary of Labor when Miss Frances Perkins is away.

The most important man in the NRA next to Gen. Johnson is Blackwell Smith, 30, who is acting general counsel in the absence of Donald Richberg. Edward H. Foley, jr., 29, is the acting general counsel of the Public Works Administration.

* * * *

In letters of gold at the base of Hamilton's statue is written: "He smote the rock of the National resources and abundant streams of revenue gushed forth. He touched the dead corpse of the public credit and it sprang upon its feet." John Goodloe is displaying a similar financial genius in the RFC. At the astonishing age of 26 he was made general counsel for the Commodity Credits Corporation.

When the elder statesmen of the Republican party refer fulsomely to Hamilton's accomplishments they often neglect to mention the age when he reached the height of his achievements. And, ironically enough, it remained for the Democratic party to put its trust in men of the same age as that early leader who expounded an opposing doctrine.

Hamilton was not yet 30 when he helped to write the Constitution of the United States. Thomas Eliot, 27, who is the associate solicitor of the Labor Department, helped to draft some important legislation, including the Wagner-Lewis unemployment insurance bill. He is the grandson of the late President Charles W. Eliot, of Harvard, famous for his "Five Foot Shelf of the Classics." At 16 young Tom was a reporter on the Boston Globe. When he was in Harvard he was one of the editors of the Crimson. He is unmarried and good-looking.

* * * *

One thinks of patent commissioners as being old men with long beards, somehow, but the ones in this Administration are all young, including Bryan Battey, 37, Conway P. Coe, 37, Leslie Frazer, 42, and Richard Spencer, 31.

* * * *

Tom Corcoran, who resides in the famous "Little Red House in Georgetown," is in his early thirties and is the assistant general counsel of the RFC. With Ben Cohen and Jim Landis, also in their early thirties, he framed the stock exchange and securities act. "The Little Red House in Georgetown," once the home of Gen. Grant, drew withering fire from members of the House at the last session of Congress. It was referred to as the Kremlin of this Administration, and the junior brain trusters who reside there as "the scarlet fever boys."

Many of the young lawyers in this Administration were recommended to their positions by Prof. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard, a close friend of the President, and Mr. Justice Brandeis. His proteges often referred to as the "hot dogs" of the Administration, or "frankfurters."

Playgrounds for Adolescents Urged by Mrs. Elwood Street

Supervisor of District Playgrounds Tells of Backyard Recreations; Says Fancy Toys Don't Entertain Children as Much as Elders Think They Do.

One of the eternal summer problems of mothers is to answer the child's question, "What shall I do now?" Another is to see that the older boys and girls are kept entertained and protected from danger and the ill effects of idleness. The following article is one in a series of three dealing with recreation problems.

by Elizabeth Perrow.

AFTER spending the day in a small apartment with children who have amused themselves by uttering war whoops, practicing acrobatics on the sofa, piling chairs on the piano to make a lighthouse, and breaking a few windows with a forbidden baseball, even the fondest parent declares children are troublesome savages.

Child psychologists and play authorities are consoling. Rowdy children, they explain, are expressing the play instinct. Play is essential for the happiness and growth of the child. It is not a luxury, but a necessity. Parents must provide a place for their children to play.

"What every child needs is the space to swat a ball as far as he can," Mrs. Elwood Street, chairman of the committee of social hygiene of the League of Women Voters and former playground supervisor in Cleveland, Ohio, said yesterday.

"I am especially interested in providing a place for the adolescent child to play," she continued. "When people plan playgrounds they nearly always plan for little children. They build swings, sand piles, slides, playhouses for the younger children, and think the older ones should be content to play there also."

Backyard playgrounds are fine for the small children, she believes, but larger children need more space. A community playground is ideal for these boys and girls, she points out. However, she warns that older children should not play in the same place the young children do.

"If they play in their backyards they are likely to break windows with their balls, or forget and trample some one's prize delphiniums," she said.

"They want to practice football, to play rough and tumble games. They have a terrific amount of energy that must be used up. They should have lots of space where they will feel free to play as they wish."

A playground supervisor is necessary in community playgrounds, Mrs. Street added.

"Children are responsive to good leadership," she said. "And the presence of some one they admire and respect will keep them orderly. Stern discipline is not effective or wise on the playground.

Playground Government.

"Often a good playground leader can organize a playground government, changing the officers each day so every child can have a share in the responsibility of running the playground. Often by giving the most troublesome child the most responsibility, he can be made into a leader."

Not only do children find happiness and develop physically on the playground, Mrs. Street pointed out, but they learn to work and coperate with others, to play the game fairly, and to learn they must obey the rules or get out. The "bad boy" problem (which is largely one of misdirected energy) is solved when the child has congenial companions and interesting play. The shy child learns to develop self-confidence.

"The adolescent mind is peculiarly receptive while at play," she said, "and at play boys and girls learn many lessons of right conduct. There should be a playground within walking distance of every child."

Miss Sibyl Baker, supervisor of District playgrounds, explained that the parent who wishes to fit up his backyard as a playground need not go to great expense.

"Children are happier playing with homemade toys than the fancy ones, bought at the stores," she said.

Not Too Fancy.

"The new tendency is toward less expensive and complicated equipment. In some communities several families have gone in together and established successful community playgrounds.

"Older boys enjoy these backyards where they can play basket ball, volley ball, and football," she said. "And study shows they like organized games better than puttering around with automobile parts."

Joseph Lee, child psychologist, says that while playgrounds are essential for the growth and happiness of children, they should not be too closely supervised.

"Do not put too much emphasis on planning a child's leisure time," he warns. "Children live according to a strict schedule all during the week. They must sleep a certain number of hours, spend so many minutes on each lesson, eat at regular hours, go to dancing classes and music lessons. They need Saturday and Sunday for freedom. They should be let alone, be permitted to do the things they want to do. They even need time for day dreaming. They should have leisure to discover the world for themselves, and to interpret it in their own terms."

Coeds Write Better Poetry Than Men Do

Outstrip Male Classmates, It Would Seem From Results of Contest.

NEW YORK, July 17 (Spl.).—College women still surpass their masculine classmates when it comes to writing poetry.

At least it looks that way, judging from the list of prize winners and those receiving honorable mention in the National intercollegiate poetry contest recently conducted by the Forum and Century Magazine.

Women won two of the three prizes and more than twice as many women as men were given honorable mention.

Elizabeth Gallagher, of the College of St. Catherine, St. Paul, Minn., won the highest award, $50, for the following poem:

THISTLE IN THE DESERT.

"Along the arid ridges of this waste
Only the thistle twists its bitter roots.

In water-coures long-dry freshets traced,
The reeds lie sere with dust in all their flutes.

Even the wind is lured to hidden death
Here where the sun makes brittle the airest bones.

There is no green thing here, no fugitive breath
Of life but the thistle springing amongst bare stones.

When will the wild heart learn, and be appeased
For its loneliness by the thistle's purple flower?

The transient bloom that death has already seized
Knows victory for one precarious hour.

What would the heart ask more than its ancient dower?—
Thistle in the desert, and once a purple flower."

In discussing manuscripts submitted, Mr. Leach pointed out that a fifth of the coed verse was about "mother," "dad," "home," and "babies."

"The popular conception of the average college student as a jazz-crazy, sex-feverish individual with communistic leanings is entirely fallacious," he said. "A new sense of security, cooperation and initiative was evident in the young poets' work."

Judges for the contest were Robert Hillyer, Archibald Macleish, Mary M. Colum, Haniel Long, Joseph Auslander and William Rose Benet.

"Basket Plant" Does Weaving Indian-Fashion

Its Products With Trowel and Rake Sell Here for Little Cost.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

IN defiance of the machine age and the demand for faster and cheaper manufacture there are still a few companies that carry out ancient Indian methods of basket weaving. One of these began in up-State Connecticut sometime around 1857. Managing to survive a series of depressions it has taken its place in American industry as a leading "basket plant."

Gone the savage Pootatucks who gathered along the banks of the Housatonic and Naugatuck Rivers, but their heritage still remains. The weaving and manufacture of baskets follows closely the methods set down by their tribes hundreds of years ago. The ash and oak strips that go into the making of the baskets are genuine hardwood splints cut by hand and with the grain to give a continuous fiber to the strip.

The baskets are sold in Washington by a Connecticut avenue shop, now having a store-wide sale. They are featuring some of these baskets, selling them with a rounded and pointed trowel and small hand rake for $1.

Baby Department.

An F street gift shop has recently put in a baby department, a large glass showcase filled with all kinds of things for the tiny arrival.

There are several baby books in pink and blue moire, covered with hand-painted flowers. Inside page after page is devoted to what he does, what he says and how he looks—all to be filled in, of course.

There are numerous other things, all under a dollar. Dainty rattles, if one may call rattles dainty; balls that make a crying sound when they roll, and cutest of all, a floating soap container and a cake of pure soap with a face painted on it, all wrapped up in a wash cloth.

Besides these toys there are Mickey Mouse plates and drinking cups.

Ash Stand.

Back Yard Gym.

The best way to keep the children out of the street and in their own back yard is to install an outdoor gym in the latter. It's time to marvel when one realizes a complete and inclusive gym may be delivered and set up for under $10. A downtown store invites parents and children to visit their fourth floor, where these gyms are on display. A gym includes a climbing rope, see-saw, trapeze bar, horizontal bar, swing seat and steel rings. All the hardware is cadmium plated, and all hangings equipped with ball bearings; from top to bottim it is built for husky youngsters. It measures 7 feet in height and is finished with red with yellow trimmings.

* * * *

Fish Skin Flowers.

There are strange sights to be seen in an F street shop. Flowers, in dozens of colors, in dozens of shapes. Artificial flowers made of fish skin!

There have been flowers of wax, of glass, of paper, of tin foil—but now of fish skin! They look so fragile one wonders how soon the hot weather will wilt them. But they will stand up under all weather conditions, and last for months and months. Some of them look like magnified violets, others like miniature magnolias. There are dozens of types to choose from, all of them reasonably priced.

* * * *

Kit Sale.

A local store is having a sale of freshen-up kits. Ordinarily they sell for $2.50 but during the remainder of the week they will be considerably less.

There are two types of kit, one for oily skins, one for dry. Each include cleanser, stimulant, nourisher, astringent, two powder foundations, and powder, varied, to suit the skin.

With a freshen-up kit it doesn't matter how far you are from your dressing table, you can always be fresh and trim.

The kits may be bought in red, black, or white. Don't worry about the white collecting dirt; the quality of the material allows for a good sponging.

* * * *

Doggy Handerchiefs.

Doggy is the word to describe the sport handerchiefs featured now in an F street store.

They're linen prints in blue, black, red, brown and orange, to say nothing of these colors combined. Each handkerchief has the print of a dog in the four corners. There are wire-haired terriers, Scotties, doberman pinchers, police dogs and collies.

One or two such handkerchiefs would make an attractive "going away" present or gift from guest to hostess. They are inexpensive.

Fiercely-Colored Accessories Snap White Into Bright Relief

Brilliant Blues, Yellows, Reds in Plain or Patterns Do Rejuvenating Things to an Outfit Grown Slightly Seedy by Midsummer.

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The idea of having several different sets of accessories to wear with one costume has helped many a woman to go smartly through a season without a pain in the budget. And this is an idea particularly applicable to the white which is so fashionable this summer.

From Head to Foot.

Bright blue with white. Bright yellow with white. Bright pink with white. Beetroot red with white. And a lot of other bright colors with white—plain or in stripes or plaids.

And you can go on to it literally from head to foot. Because there are bright blue shoes and bright red ones, too, as well as bright colored hats.

A bright colored jacket or jacket blouse of linen, pique or taffeta is one of the smartest new things you can put on to snap your white outfit into freshness.

Those jacket blouses, by the way, are practical. They are cut so they may be worn as an overblouse with a skirt or as a jacket over a dress.

Neckerchiefs and collars in bright colors or prints have a way of making a white dress or suit look startlingly new. Lightweight linens and cottons, silks and acetates are good materials for them. And collars are very crisp and fresh looking in sheers, such as organdies.

Gay Gloves.

Bright colored gloves, matching the bright color of some other accessory, quickly take the jaded look out of a white costume.

Net or lace knit, linen and pique can be had in yellow, pink, blue or red. And good things to match them to are your hat or your neckwear or, in the case of blue or red, to your shoes.

Bright colored jewelry is another good summer fashion with pins, clips, rings, bracelets and earrings joining in. Handbags are in on this fashion, too.

Of course you don't want all your accessories bright. One or two of them, with the rest in white, are most effective.

Cheap Homes Predicted As Bettering in Quality

A revolution in low-cost homes is predicted by Harvey Wiley Corbett, New York architect.

"The home of the immediate future," says Mr. Wiley, "will be to the home of the present what this year's latest model motor car is to the horse and buggy of 40 years ago."

Mass production of homes will enable the man with moderate and even low wages to have a more convenient and beautiful home, Mr. Corbett believes. He points out the Nation needs 25,000,000 new homes and says industry should step forward and supply this need.

What Today Means

"Cancer."

If July 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. and from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 a. m., from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. and from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m.

On this July 18 most retail lines of business should show very satisfactory results, but wholesale houses and distributors might find it decidedly spotty. Money will circulate freely through business channels, but sluggishly where individuals are concerned. Be careful of any proposition that is offered you, which on its face looks "too good to be true." If not cautious you may to your sorrow find out this is one of the time appearances are not deceiving. This is not a propitious day on which to try to bring any sort of issue to a forced conclusion. Be careful you are not placed in an undignified position through loss of temper. A friend may come to you for sympathy. It probably will prove wise to listen attentively, and do what is possible to relieve his mind. It is not advisable to try forcing any one to partake of or participate in any form of social activity, if they appear reluctant to do so. Sweethearts must exercise care not to offend one another by trying to dominate any situation that may arise, and where one of them interposes an objection.

If a woman and July 18 is your birthday, you have a keen sense for the ridiculous and a readiness of repartee, both of which will help you out of many an embarrassing situation. Love will play an important part in your affairs. You should prove a great inspiration to the man you marry, and through him achieve a secret ambition. You may find that by cultivating the habit of talking straight from the shoulder and avoiding being ambiguous, a great deal more can be accomplished. "Beating around a bush" never proves satisfactory. You might find it highly advantageous to specialize in some one line of business, instead of switching from one to some other, if in commercial life. Both poetry and prose are mediums through which you should be able to successfully express yourself.

Children born on July 18, as they grow up, many times show decidedly their parents' characteristics, so the wise parents will be very careful as to the examples they set.

The man born on July 18 is, as a rule, a natural born humorist. If born on this date, you should possess a very cheerful disposition. The ability not to worry unnecessarily over trifles will enable you to surmount any difficulties, and reach the goal of your ambition. A wife should bring much joy into your life.

Children's Zoo Planned; To Have Small Animals

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 17.—A zoo especially for children is being planned here. It will be a part of the city zoo and will display small native fauns, such as newts, tadpoles, squirrels and other animals found living wild in the vicinity of this city.

The rustic entrance of the children's zoo will be guarded by totem poles. Beyond the entrance will be a trail known as Uncle Steph's Zoo Natural Trail, along which will be found botanical and geological specimens. At the end of the trail will be a Noah's Ark in which the small animals will be displayed.

The project is being worked out by city park board and Boy Scout executives.

Forced Study After Sixteen Held an Evil

Those Compelled to Attend School Said to Derive Little Benefit.

COMPULSORY school attendance should end at 16, believes Dr. John L. Tildsley, acting head of the high school division of New York's board of education.

The pupil who attends school after his sixteenth birthday only because the law compels him to, seldom derives benefit from his enforced stay in the classroom, the educator has observed. Not only is this pupil wasting time, he is wasting taxpayers' money, in the opinion of Dr. Tildsley.

"There is a saturation point for many boys and girls, beyond which further schooling of the accepted type is profitable neither for them nor for society.

Work Won't Hurt.

"I think boys of 16 have reached a physical development which makes it improbable that employment under modern efficiency conditions will impair their health," he said.

The automatic passage of every pupil from the eighth grade to high school is another hindrance to better education, he believes.

"The thousands who are now sent to high school foredoomed to failure should be retained in the present elementary schools until they have completed the compulsory school age or they should be sent to special rehabilitation schools manned by elementary teachers at elementary salaries," said Dr. Tildsley.

Weeding Out.

These thousands unfit for high school would be weeded out by a test or on the basis of the school record combined with the test results, according to the educator's plan.

Dr. Tildsley expressed doubt whether it is desirable in the long run for pupils with wide variations in learning capacities, interests and objectives to be placed in the same grade at school.

When he made a study of ratings of pupils who were studing the same subjects in different schools, he found a wide variance.

A Turkish Architect Gets Title of 'Great'

Has 81 Mosques to His Building Credit.

The Sir Christopher Wren of Turkey, Sinan the Great, was honored by a memorial service in his native land recently. Considered the most outstanding Turkish architect of all times, he has been given the title "the Great" by his vast throng of admirers.

In the course of his career Sinan built 81 large mosques, 51 little mosques, 33 palaces, 35 baths, 26 public libraries, 17 kitchens for the distribution of food to the poor, 7 aqueducts and many fountains, mausoleums and caravansaries.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Vitamins and Their Importance. Part 1.

Few of us need worry about a lack of sufficient vitamins in our ordinary diet. Salads containing green vegetables are much more generously used than they were years ago, and protein of either animal or vegetable origin, carbohydrates, and fats are reasonably well distributed in the average diet.

Children, however, present another side of the picture. Sometimes they are not hungry; sometimes they establish cravings for a diet program that may omit some important vitamin. Through careful scientific study the feeding of infants has been brought to a high degree of perfection.

It was Lavoisier, the great French chemist, who first established that body heat (energy) is produced by the oxidation of foods. Some time later it was shown that human foods could be divided into three main groups—proteins, fats, and carbohydrates. Inorganic salts are necessary to life, and the chemical processes within the body can not take place without them. They may properly be considered a fourth food group.

Within comparatively recent years it has been shown that these four food classes are not alone responsible for nutrition. An entirely new group of substances known as vitamins, of which we now know six, has been identified and many sources ascertained. Briefly, these vitamins are known as A, B, C, D, E, and G.

Vitamin A—The work of Sir Frederick Hopkins in 1906 showed that there was contained in milk a substance essential for body growth. Animals fed on what came to be known as vitamin A deficiency diet failed to grow and developed an infection peculiar to the eyes. The substance that is lacking, vitamin A, is found in abundance in green leaves, in actively growing portions of plants, and in carrots. Milk from cows fed on green fodder contains generous quantities of vitamin A. Fortunately, this vitamin withstands cooking, provided the cooking is done in covered containers.

Vitamin B—In 1839 Eijkman, a Dutch worker, found that the disease known as beriberi (polyneuritis) could be produced in fowls by feeding them a diet of polished rice. In 1911 Casimir Frank separated from the outside layer of rice grains a substance that would cure experimentally produced beriberi. Funk named this substance "vitamine" and it is today known as vitamin B.

Wabbling Not Most Graceful Way to Walk

By Frances Mangum.

DO YOU walk—or wabble? And if you wabble, do you know why?

It is, according to good authorities, because you walk on two lines instead of one.

Experiment sometime. Draw two horizontal lines across the floor, or mark them with long pieces of string and then walk along them. After that try walking one line. There's a vast difference. The two lines throw you off balance and cause a shifting of weight which results in a bouncing, bumping stride. But the one line necessitates an even walk, consequently a graceful one with no suggestion of wabbling.

Pares the Pounds.

Short stout people who characteristically go hobbledy-dobbledy along the street will find walking a mental line will give them perfect balance and make them look lighter by pounds. Any one by practicing this manner of walking can soon learn to move in a floating manner down a street or into a room.

Many rules have been handed down for walking on the balls of the feet and pointing the toes. Most modern physical training schools scoff at the idea of walking toes down first although they stress the importance of resting the weight on the balls of the feet. If you cultivate an even-balanced walk by the one-line method, the latter comes naturally.

Besides those who wabble, there are others who walk with their heads and shoulders thrust forward as though anxiety to reach their destination was projecting their bodies through space. By and by this becomes such a habit it is reflected in posture. They stand head forward, with shoulders drooped. They will find that by holding the head high and the shoulders straight the body is balanced. It is this balance that will enable them to walk faster, and at the same time gracefully.

Curb Your Head.

"Don't let your head get there before the rest of you," is an old rule that still holds good in walking.

The importance of cultivating an attractive walk can not be overemphasized. Style is dependent on it. Grace is dependent on it. And posture the outcome of it.

There are several simple means for practicing right walking. Use the line method. Walk with a book on your head. Watch yourself walk in front of a long mirror, and be your severest critic. Get the feel of a good spring and graceful lilt, and practice until it becomes natural.

The "Weenie" Rises to a Position of High Social Prestige.

By Susan Mills.

ONE should not scorn the "weenie." Its career has been long and honorable, it has managed to rise from a bourgeois birth to a position of aristocracy. If it has been a social climber we can forgive it, because it is perfectly at ease in company with the well-bred.

So invite the "weenie" to your home and see if it is not an excellent guest.

Frakfurter Tasty-Bites.

Cut slender frankfurters into one-inch lengths and place them on toothpicks with a piece of stuffed olive or round slice of sweet pickle. Serve with assorted appetizers on hors d'oeuvres.

Broiled Franfurters.

A delicious luncheon dish may be made of large-sized frankfurters by spreading them lightly in the cut surface with prepared mustard butter and broiling them along with strips of bacon. Serve on toasted bread, with two halves of frankfurter and a strip of bacon to each individual.

Sometimes two or three frankfurters may be left over from lunch or supper and need to be used. Here's a delicious hot dish.

Scalloped Corn and Frankfurters.

3 frankfurters
2 cups cooked corn
1 cup medium white sauce
½ green pepper
½ cup buttered cracked crumbs
Seasonings

Cut the frankfurters in ½-inch lengths or brown lightly in meat drippings or butter. Mix with the corn, cut green pepper and white sauce. Prepare the sauce by melting 2 tablespoons of butter, adding 2 tablespoons of flour and stirring in 1 cup fresh or diluted evaporated milk. When thickened, add to the corn mixture. Add ½ teaspoon salt and pepper to taste. Place in a baking dish and sprinkle buttered cracked crumbs over the top. Bake for 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

For the Picnic Crowd.

No one needs directions for roasting frankfurters over a camp fire, but sometimes the picnic crowd is too large to make roasting one's own feasible. In this case, tie the frankfurters in a flour sack and boil them in a deep container of water. A clean lard can is useful for this purpose. When the frankfurters are hot, the bag may be removed and the sausages rolled from the sack into a big tray for serving. Have lots of dill pickles, mustard and horseradish and buns ready—for they'll go fast.

ESCAPE from the SOVIETS

By TATIANA TCHERNAVIN

Tatiana Tchernavin and her husband both were imprisoned, leaving their small son alone in the world. Charges were trumped up against them by the Soviets; prison conditions were shocking. And over all hung the haunting fear of death, or worse yet, exile. The author's story of hardships suffered continues with today's installment.

BOTH day and night prisoners were watched through the "peep-hole"—an oval opening in the door, glazed and covered over with a metal shield; it was used two or three times an hour. In the daytime this was irritating, especially when the spying was done not by wardresses but by warders, all of them, as though of design, coarse and impudent men; but at night it was perfect torture. Along all the floors, at the door of every cell the switch clicked twice; the sound grew louder and louder till it reached one's door; a bright light cut one's eyes, the shield of the peep-hole was closed again, the light went out and the clicking continued further off.

No sooner had one dozed off than the whole thing began over again, and so it went on all night because the checking was done every twenty minutes and lasted a good ten minutes each time. Everyone suffered from it; some covered their heads with the blanket, which was forbidden and caused altercation with the warders, others tied up their eyes and ears with a kerchief so as to be less disturbed by the light and the noise. It may not have been intended to make us suffer, but it was very bad for the nerves not to have a single peaceful night for months.

Dreary Routine.

And so days, weeks and months passed in that dirty hole between the terrible iron door and the grated window.

Seven o'clock in the morning—getting up time. It is horrible to have to get up when one has no work, no occupation but only fourteen empty hours to live through. A worn brush is thrust in at the door to sweep the floor with; then a piece of black bread is brought—one pound per day, and instead of tea, lukewarm water, which is carried about from cell to cell in huge kettles and poured out into metal mugs. Within half an hour all the day's work is finished. A special warder takes two prisoners out of the solitary confinement cells for a walk. The walk is supposed to last fifteen minutes but he takes off two minutes for the journey along the corridors and cuts it short by another three because he is in a hurry to finish and go off to his dinner.

The walk is in the prison yard, which is 30 feet wide and 60 feet long; prison buildings, five-stories high, surrounded it on all sides so that there is hardly any sun there and only a small piece of the sky is visible. The court is asphalt and not a bit of earth shows anywhere. In winter it is covered with dirty snow, completely trampled down.

Walking Was Joy.

When I was in prison I happened to see on the wrapper of some Soviet magazine a photograph of a prison yard in Spain; under it was a grandiloquent inscription about bourgeois terrorism. It was a big yard with shady trees growing around it, and the prisoners—no doubt common criminals—were walking along a path strewn with sand. We kept that picture for weeks and gazed at it dreamily after our walks.

But anyway, a walk was a joy; the door was opened, we were let out of the hateful cell, we saw our neighbors and could exchange a look of sympathy. In the courtyard, other prisoners looked at us from the windows of the common cells—at the risk of being deprived of a walk themselves as punishment; we, too, sometimes saw interesting sights. Two of the women had babies born in prison and they carried them in their arms when walking in the yard. In the spring, when huge parties of prisoners were being sent to parts of northern Russia that could not be reached in winter, children from outside appeared in prison. The first time that we heard a child's voice in the yard we could hardly believe our ears.

Child Offered Thrill.

"Is it a boy?" we tried to decide by the sound.

"It is!"

Both my fellow prisoners and I had sons left at home, and it gave us an extraordinary thrill of joy to hear a child's voice, though it was horrible to think of a child being in prison. My neighbor jumped on to the bed so as to peep out of the window.

"It's a boy, a little peasant boy; he's walking with his mother. He bumps into her for fun and then runs away . . ."

"Let me have a look!" I begged. "Yes, it is a boy! About 6 I should think. Funny little thing! He has a huge cap on, his father's, probably, and his boots are all torn and patched."

We eagerly watched him all the time he was in the courtyard. After half an hour's work, which was allowed to those kept in the common cell, he went back to it with his mother.

"What does it mean?" we asked each other in surprise.

"I suppose they first exiled the father and then arested the mother, and she had to take the child with her to prison."

"But it's absurd—a child in prison!"

"He won't be any better off in the penal camps, you know."

I said nothing.

Girl Arrived, Too.

I have no words to tell how I yearned for that child, how sweet it was to hear his voice and footsteps in the yard. He spent about three weeks in prison, and then another boy appeared in his place. The second was a quiet, clean little boy in a neat sailor suit. During the first few days he was afraid of the warder and clung to his mother, but soon a little girl appeared to keep him company. She was about 8, older than he was and more bold. They rushed about the yard, chasing each other, and afterward sat locked up all day in the stuffy and crowded cell, waiting to be sent to the penal camp.

It was a special favor that the "criminal" mothers — "kulaks" and "rotten bourgeois"—were allowed to have their children in prison instead of sending them to an institution for homeless children, where the examining officer threatened to send my son. I do not know how that favor was obtained; perhaps Comrade Krupskaya herself persuaded the OGPU not to part the children from their mothers, but anyway in the spring of 1931 I saw those children in prison—and I honestly could not say whether I envied their mothers or not.

Soup Was Overcooked.

The appearance of children in prison was an exciting event, and the minutes of watching them passed quickly, but afterward hours again seemed like years. From 7 in the morning till 2 o'clock when dinner was brought there was time enough to get in a good working day, but for us there was only the misery of idleness and pacing up and down the cell like caged beasts.

For dinner huge caldrons of smelly, overcooked cabbage soup were brought. It was poured out into aluminium cups, very much like dogs' basins, and thrust into the opening in the door. Sometimes one found in it a piece of stringy meat, the size of a cubic centimeter. "Politicals"—i. e., Communists—had meat soup of better quality. For second course all had millet porridge so overcooked that it was one sticky, doughlike mass.

The food was hideous; not hunger, but the feeling that one must eat made one swallow some of it. After dinner we were allowed to lie down for two hours. Though sleep was full of sinister dreams and fears, it was better than the emptiness of the waking hours.

At 4 o'clock came the call "get up!"

The Federal Diary

By Morgan Baker.
(Trade-mark Applied For)

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

The fifth story in the Federal Diary's employment survey will appear tomorrow. It will cover the prospects of employment and working conditions at Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

THERE are literally hundreds of employes at AAA on clerical jobs at $1,260 to $1,620 a year, Representative Virginia E. Jenskes, Indiana, reveals.

BAKER

In addition to the hundreds of people with A. B., B. S., M. A. and even Ph. D.'s, there are many former successful business men who previously made from $5,000 to $20,000 a year who have accepted minor clerical positions on account of the depression.

"The Government is profiting through the employment of these men and women," Mrs. Jenckes points out, "who, on account of conditions, are required to accept places much beneath their education and experience. These employes frequently work all day on Saturdays and on Sundays, as well, in order to expedite the work of their departments.

"I am constrained to say that the employes of the AAA have been selected with discriminating care, and I doubt very much if anywhere in the whole Federal service will you find a body of workers in the minor clerical grades with the high education possessed by the clerical staff of that organization, or employes who are better suited to the jobs to which they are assigned."

AFGE Excursion Tonight.

All is ready for the gala boat excursion down the Potomac tonight, Ira Y. Bain, Internal Revenue, chairman of the District department boat excursion committee of AFGE, announces.

Music and entertainment will be provided under direction of the following members: Cecil M. Mears, Cecil Custer, Miss Jessie Dell, Emmett R. Carroll, Elmer H. Bailey, Miss Helen McCarty, A. A. Tenant, Miss Marion Caswell, Clarke J. McLane, John P. Simpson, Thomas Fee and David R. Glass.

Many of the AFGE lodges had sold out their entire allotment of tickets a week ago, Mr. Bain said, indicating that the trip is being anticipated with enthusiasm by Government employes.

AT THE quarterly meeting of the Hospital Guild of Local No. 2, National Federation of Federal Employes, last night it was reported 49 members had been given the benefits of hospitalization since February, 1932, with three more now in the hospital.

During this period $2,500 has been paid to members in hospital benefits. There are 319 members of Local No. 2's guild, as of June 30, 1934, each paying at a rate of $5 a year for the benefits of the hospitalization that is an exclusive feature of NFFE membership.

The guild's membership is expected to swell during the present month, for its benefits are open to subscription by all members of the NFFE Union during July. This second 1934 period for membership was provided that employes belonging to the Bureau of Standards Local No. 260, might join the guild for the remainder of the year. It is the first time the Standard's local has had the opportunity of obtaining hospitalization, although numerous other NFFE units here maintain hospital guilds.

Several applicants from Local No. 260 attended the large meeting of No. 2's guild last night and Henry G. Nolda, Veterans Administration, treasurer of the guild, predicted a record enrollment from both unions.

Patent Office employes are mourning the death of Rex Kranauer, examiner, who died in New York Sunday. Mr. Kranauer was ill only a few months and word of his passing, received at Patent Office yesterday, was a shock.

IF your name is followed by (*), call in person on the Federal Diary editor. You will receive tickets to Loew's Columbia (Shirley Temple in "Little Miss Marker"); or to Loew's Palace (third week of William Powell and Myrna Loy in "The Thin Man"); or to Loew's Fox (stage, Vincent Lopez orchestra and revue; screen, "Stamboul Quest").

Diary office hours are: Daily, except Sundays, 12 noon to 1 p. m., and from 4:30 to 6 p. m.; Saturdays, 12 noon to 2:30 p. m.

Going to Work.

And we're really on our way.
We may get there tomorrow —
Or perhaps the following day.
The cars are in a tie-up,
And present a grand array!
I got off twice and walked,
But now I'm on to stay.

Motorists on the tracks
Delay and stop us so!
Wonder where the chiselers
Think the street cars should go.
The chief will tear his hair
And greet me with a sneer—
If he wants me there on time,
He must pick me up I fear.

Marine Corps Meeting.

The personnel of Marine Corps Headquarters will meet at 3 p. m. Friday in the Adjutant and Inspector's Department to elect a delegate and an alternate to represent the corps on the executive committee of the Navy Department Employes Cafeteria Association. The next quarterly meeting of the association will be held on July 31.

This will be the first meeting of the new executive committee, to be elected this month, representing all bureaus of the Navy Department. The cafeteria, under the new management, has made many improvements during the last year.

Postettes.

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

Hee-Haw Gets a Heap of Howdy

It was late in the night when Hee-Haw got to Mr. Man's house and everybody was asleep. He didn't make a bit of noise, but crept up right easy and stopped away down the lane so he wouldn't wake Rover Dog. It wasn't very comfortable sleeping in the harness and hitched to the wagon, but it was the best he could do and so he kept wiggling around until he got comfortable enough to sleep. It was good big day when he woke, and so he got up and went on to the house. Not even Rover Dog was up and everything was quiet as a mouse till Hee-Haw raised his voice and turned loose that morning call that Mr. Man had heard for so many years. And now you may believe that it wasn't quiet around there any longer. Do you remember that night when Blackie ran over Uncle Joe's wheelbarrow, waking up everybody on the place and how they made such a noise? Well, that was what you children call "playing like," beside the racket that Mr. Man's animals could make. Of course, it woke Rover Dog and Mrs. Rover, and if there was anybody a mile of the place that did not hear those dogs howl, it was because they were deaf. And such cackling as the chickens did! And the guineas and the turkey gobblers and the geese made noise that was almost loud enough to be heard at Blackie's house. It really did wake Jay Bird and it wasn't long before he was over there to see the fun.

And it really was fun. The noise had just started good when Mr. Man's door flew open and he stuck his head out to see if he had just dreamed that Hee-Haw had called him. Not a bit of a dream, there was his donkey! He jumped back for his clothes and Mrs. Man will tell you that he never got into them in twice the time before. Out he ran to Hee-Haw and, would you believe it? He threw his arms around his neck and patted him on the head just as if he had been a baby? And Hee-Haw just stood there with his head hanging down like he was tired most to death, and his big ears drooping over his eyes so Mr. Man couldn't see him laughing. It did all seem good enough to laugh about, for by the time Mr.

Man got his arms around Hee-Haw's neck, all the chickens and animals had found out what it was all about, and here came Mrs. Moo Cow and her calf, the turkeys, pigs, geese and everything about the lot, and they made the greatest to do over Hee-Haw that any donkey ever saw.

Tigers Trim Nats, 4-3, Scoring Double Play in Ninth With Three On

Giants Split; Cubs Down Hubbell

Parmelee Slams Homer With Three on in 1st to Win, 5 to 3.

Lee Best in Nightcap; Chicagoans Score, 2-1, Evening Bill.

NEW YORK, July 17 (AP).—The Giants and the Cubs battled through a pair of pitching battles on even terms today, leaving them with one more game to go, almost where they started their "crucial" five-game series. Bud Parmelee batted out his own 5-to-3 victory for New York in the opener, while Bill Lee bested Carl Hubbell as Chicago won the afterpiece, 2-to-1.

The even break left the Giants with a lead of two and one-half games over their rivals, their only gain coming while they were idle yesterday when League President John A. Heydler ordered a replay of a game previously counted as a Chicago victory.

Homer With Bases Full.

Parmelee pitched his first full game since he returned to action following an attack of appendicitis and his first victory since April 19 in the first clash. He allowed only seven hits and made up himself for the Giants' failure to collect more than six off Lonnie Warneke when he slammed a home run with the bases full in the seventh to break up the duel.

In the second clash Lee granted the Giants seven hits, while Chicago got six off Hubbell and Johnny Salveson, but Lee's spacing was better. The Cubs got a first-inning run when Billy Herman singled, stole second as English fanned and scored on Tut Stainback's Texas League single.

A walk, a wild pitch and Jackson's single brought in Mel Ott with the tying run in the second, but the Cubs went ahead to stay when Herman again singled, took third as English singled on a hit-and-run play and scored after Babe Herman's fly.

Red Sox Score; Wes Ferrell Wins 7th

Hurler Allows but Six Hits, Three by Simmons, as Chisox Bow, 6-2.

CHICAGO, July 17 (AP).—Pitching steadily, Wes Ferrell turned in his seventh victory for the Red Sox today as the Bostonians defeated the White Sox, 6 to 2, to go one up in the series. Ferrell has been charged with only one defeat.

He allowed only six hits, half of which were fashioned by Al Simmons, and shut out the Chicagoans until he had a commanding 6-run lead in the eighth.

Young Les Tietje pitched seven innings for the White Sox and, although striking out eight, walked seven. He also allowed nine hits, four of which were bunched with two passes in the fourth to give Ferrell a 4-run working margin.

3 Straight Homers By Macks Futile

Knott, Browns, Wins, 7-4, Despite Record Clouts.

St. Louis, July 17 (AP).—Philadelphia batsmen equaled a record today when three players knocked home runs in succession in one inning, but the Browns took the decision, 7 to 4.

It was the fourth time in baseball history that the home run feat has been recorded. Johnson, Foxx and Higgins hit in that order in the fourth inning. Jack Knott, the St. Louis pitcher, remained on the mound, despite the long-range three-run bombardment, and got credit for the victory, although he retired in the eighth.

The win gave the Browns three out of four games played with the Athletics during their current visit.

Londos Bout Shifted to Friday

Delay of George Match Cause; Everett Wins in Wilmington.

By Frank H. Young.

WASHINGTON rassle addicts will have to hold themselves in check and bottle up their anticipated thrills from the Jim Londos-Everett Marshall match for another day, for Promoter Joe Turner last night announced that he has postponed his Griffith Stadium mat show from tomorrow night until Friday, with the entire card holding over. Of course, all tickets already purchased will be good on the shifted date.

All of this came about because of some tardy use by Jim Londos of his think-tank. He long-distance telephoned Turner late yesterday afternoon begging for an extra day. His bout in Boston with Ed Don George, the only other title claimant, originally was listed for last night, the Greek explained, and when it was moved back until tonight, he did not realize that this gave him two hard matches on successive nights. Now he knows better and wants to be at his best when he takes on Marshall.

Whether or not Friday's bout here will be a world's championship one depends upon what happens in Boston tonight when Londos exchanges whatever it is that rasslers exchange on the mat with George.

Situation Getting Untangled.

This championship rassle situation, much complicated some time back, is gradually being untangled. First Londos added to his °14 title claims the 23 which had been won by Jim Browning. This left only George in the running and tonight the Gorgeous Greek will endeavor to take over the titles of all of the New England States, which George now holds.

If Londos wins tonight, he will be world champ when he shows here Friday. If he draws with George, he will be half-champ, and if he bows, he still will be able to call himself champ, but with an "ex" in front of the designation.

But, whether or not tomorrow's Stadium bout is a title affair, it will be between Jim Londos and Everett Marshall and that means that some real brawling will result. In their five recent meetings, Londos had to be satisfied with four draws, while the only way he could gain one verdict was to toss Everett out of the ring on his head, thus putting him out of commission.

Real Training for Marshall.

Marshall, who has been training here since last Friday, received a hurry call from Wilmington matchmakers Monday afternoon. They threatened to sue him for calling off his bout with Mayes McLain, so he hastily jumped on the train and kept his date, easily tossing the big Indian. "I'm having trouble finding good boys to work with here," he said yesterday morning, "so decided to take the bout as a sort of training finale. By the way, I brought back a couple of big fellows with me and plan to work out with them this afternoon, tomorrow and Thursday. And then I'll be ready for the Greek and, if I don't throw him for a loss, I'll have no alibis.

One of those helping Marshall put on the finishing touches is Al Geicewicz, who meets Gino Garibaldi on tomorrow's card. The Pole was told to "shoot the works" at their workout at the Green Oaks Country Club yesterday and the 150 or more onlookers were given quite a free treat. Marshall did not pull his punches either, although he slowed down several times when he saw he had his training mate in a bad way.

Praise from Geicewicz.

At the conclusion of the workout Geicewicz, a better than ordinary rassler, was much impressed with Marshall. "He's got strength, cleverness and brains and that's a hard combination to beat," he said. "I've met Londos and I don't think he's got anything on Everett in his present condition."

Curt Davis Wins 12th As Phils Rout Reds, 7-0

Philadelphia, July 17 (AP).—Curt Davis, Phillies right-hander, turned in his fourth consecutive mound triumph and his twelfth win of the season as he blanked the Cincinnati Reds today, 7 to 0. Davis aided his cause by hitting a homer to the flag pole. He limited the visitors to seven hits, did not issue a pass and struck out four.

It was the Phillies' fourth straight victory over Cincinnati and their eleventh conquest in the last 14 starts.

Yankee Paces Rainbow by 24 Seconds

Vanderbilt Boat Enjoys Brief Lead in Closest of Trial Races.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 17 (AP).—Yankee of Boston, leading aspirant for the defense of the America's Cup, today won a 24-second victory over Harold S. Vanderbilt's Rainbow in the most exciting and closely-contested race of the trials series.

Vanderbilt had a little better of the start, taking the windward berth from Charles Francis Adams, Yankee's skipper and former Navy Secretary, but it was an advantage Rainbow did not long maintain.

The contest was sailed over a triangle of approximately 22 miles in a southwestly breeze that measured eight knots at the start and 14 at the close.

A third candidate for the defense of the Cup, Weetamoe, had been scheduled to contest the course with Vanitie, old and ineligible Cup boat, but a desire to change some jib halyard blocks on Weetamoe caused the race committee to grant her a day off.

Homer by Haines Defeats Cardinals

Dodgers Triumph, 7 to 6; Leslie Is Ailing.

Brooklyn, July 17 (AP).—Len Koenecke broke up a drawn battle between the Dodgers and the Cardinals today by swatting a home run off Jess Haines' delivery to give Brooklyn a 7-to-6 victory.

The Cards hit Van Mungo hard, featuring Joe Medwick's fourteenth homer and Jimmy Collins' twentieth, but Emil Leonard stopped them without a hit in the final 3 2-3 innings to gain credit for the victory. Medwick's homer touched off a 4-run rally in the sixth that tied the score.

Indians Slam 3 Pitchers, Top Yanks

Rout Broaca in Three Innings and Go On to Triumph, 13.5

Hildebrand Takes 7th; Ruth Adds 2 Walks, Now Has 2,000.

CLEVELAND, July 17 (AP).—The Indians made up today for yesterday's misplays and landed on three Yankee pitchers for 17 hits and a 13-to-5 victory. The defeat cost the Yanks a full game in the pennant chase, putting them 1½ games behind Detroit.

Oral Hildebrand, whom the Yanks once refused to take in a trade, was credited with his seventh victory of the season, although Willis Hudlin came to his rescue when he became wild. Johnny Broaca, the bespectacled Yale alumnus, failed to last three innings for the Yanks and his successors, Danny Macfayden and Burleigh Grimes, also were rapped freely.

Ruth Walks Twice.

Babe Ruth passed another milestone in his twenty-first major league season when he drew two walks, making 2,000 in all, not counting those received in world series games.

Virginians to Sell 21 Budding Racers

Upperville, Va., July 17 (Spl.). The first and second best thoroughbred yearlings of the Middle Atlantic breeding area, according to show ring standards of Northern Virginia, the country's oldest breeding section, will be found in the consignment of 20-odd budding racers the Fasig-Tipton Co., of New York will sell at Saratoga in August for Wallis Armstrong, of New York, and Kenneth Gilpin, of Virginia.

This consignment will consist wholly of sons and daughters of the French stallion Teddy, sire of Sir Gallahad III, Bull Dog, Quatre Bras, Rose of England, Ortello, &c., and the American horse, John P. Grier, daddy of Jack High, Hi Jack, Golden Way, Hoojum, Straightlace, Hassak, The Spare, &c. The French horse is at Gilpin's Kentmere Stud, at Boyce, Va. John P. Grier is at Armstrong's Meadowview Farm, in Burlington County, New Jersey. Teddy is the grandsire of Gallant Fox.

The star of the lot, according to the judges at Upperville, Janon Fisher, proprietor of the Caves stud of Maryland's Worthington Valley, and Harry Colt, of the Genesee Valley, New York State's oldest breeding area, is a bay son of Teddy, from Superstitious. The second is a chestnut son of Teddy and Sunmelia.

Integrity Gains Neck Decision Over Little Stokes in Top Race at Rockingham

Vote Choice Is Third at Finish

Winner Rewards Backers With $12.50 for Each $2 Wager.

Allenfern Drops Back After Setting Early Pace in Race.

SALEM, N. H., July 17 (AP).—Integrity, 5-year-old gelding which raced successfully over the New York tracks for the B. B. Stable, carried the silks of J. W. Walter, jr., to victory in the mile and a sixteenth claiming event which topped a mediocre card at Rockingham Park today.

Ridden by Tommy King, the son of Fair Play came through with a neck decision over Mrs. R. T. Flippen's Little Stokes, with M. Boyd's Vote four lengths to the rear in front of three other platers.

Allenfern Pace-Setter.

Integrity was up in the first flight from the start as the speedy Allenfern cut out the early pace. Rounding the turn, King sent his mount into a challenging position and the gelding assumed command by a margin of one-half length at the head of the stretch. Through the run to the judges, the race was strictly a battle between Integrity and Little Stokes, with the former holding on gamely in the closing strides.

The bulk of the support in the mutuels went to Vote, with the result Integrity returned his backers $12.50 for $2 after running the distance in 1:46 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CABOUSE, $6.60, $3.70, $2.70; POLYPON, $4.20, $3.40; MERRY CHATTER, $7.20.

CABOUSE was sent into contention on the outside leaving the back stretch, closed willingly in the stretch run and was going away at the end. POLYPON, in close quarters early, finished strongly in the last quarter mile. MERRY CHATTER had speed for the start, disposed of cancel and, despite hard urging through the stretch, was unable to keep pace with the first two. LORD TOURNAMENT moved up gamely on the inside, saved ground at the stretch turn, assumed a brief lead, but weakened through the closing sixteenth. WILROB moved up threateningly on the outside near the stretch turn, but was unable to keep up in the final drive. STRENUOUS had early speed. CANCEL stopped badly. HAPPY SURPRISE, away fast, lacked speed to keep up.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:01. Off at 3:03. Winner, J. D. Mikel's blk. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LAMP BLACK, $5, $3.50, $2.40; FLYING DON, $5.40, $3.50; DANCING MACK, $3.

LAMP BLACK had speed from the start, was taken back and permitted FLYING DON to establish the pace, came to the outside in the stretch and, under hard urging, outlasted FLYING DON at the end. The latter had speed from the start, drew clear before reaching the furlong pole, but despite being placed under punishment, was unable to stave off the winner's bid. DANCING MACK moved up steadily and, while unable to threaten the first two, held on well at the finish. RUNY BEAN was moving up gamely on the inside approaching the quarter pole when she raced into a pocket and had to be taken up sharply. She was going well at the end. ORAL and LIBERTY OAK both faltered after displaying early speed.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 3:31. Off at 3:32½. Winner, Mrs. W. R. Flemming's dk. br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAKE, $9.40, $3.70, $2.40; LITTLE DINAH, $3.10, $2.30; HARDATIT, $2.50.

FAKE, under slight reserve early, moved up on the outside, closed fast through the final furlong and catching the leaders tiring, drew out. LITTLE DINAH, hard ridden throughout, was much used in racing with HARDATIT, and was unable to cope with the speed of the winner at the end. HARDATIT, under pressure in racing with LITTLE DINAH, had nothing left when called upon in the closing furlong. TEETER TOTTER was moving up steadily on the outside, appeared to stumble straightening out in the stretch and was unable to improve his position thereafter. CANDY MAID went evenly. The others were never prominent.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. The Mount Washington Claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:02. Off at 4:02½. Winner, J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—INTEGRITY, $12.50, $5.60, $3; LITTLE STOKES, $3.70, $2.50; VOTE, $2.30.

INTEGRITY, reserved in pursuit of the race for the first half mile, moved up on the outside of VOTE, shook the latter off in the stretch and, hard ridden, outlasted LITTLE STOKES at the end. The latter racing on the outside after leaving the back stretch, fought it out gamely with the winner in the closing furlong. VOTE forwardly placed all the way, assumed the slight lead, but weakened under his impost through the stretch run. KINDACORN could never enter into serious contention. ALLENFERN had good early speed, but faltered after going a half mile. STEELHEAD tired.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Off at 4:31. Off at 4:31½. Winner Mrs. E. Edward's b. g. (7), by Lucky Hour—Regina. Trained by J. Edwards. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAMBO BROWN, $11, $4, $2.90; OLD JUDGE, $3.40, $2.80; GALLIC, $4.50.

SAMBO BROWN, reserved for the first half mile, moved up fast leaving the back stretch, went to the front in the stretch when GALLIC bore out and, hard ridden, outlasted OLD JUDGE. The latter, restrained early, closed with splendid energy in the last quarter mile. GALLIC drew away into a long lead, was racing under steadying restraint when he tore to the outside at the stretch turn. He finished out near the outer rail. GABBO weakened in the closing test. PRINCE TOKALON was unable to improve his position under pressure. BRASS MONKEY was outrun throughout.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $800; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:00½. Off at 5:02½. Winner Geneseo Stable's br. f. (4), by Black ervant—Golden Billows. Trained by A. W. Dayton. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 3-5, 1:41 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BILLOWY WAVE, $10.10, $5.60, $4.20; EMPLOYMENT, $11.70, $6.40; SILVER WRACK, $3.50.

BILLOWY WAVE worked himself up on the outside down the back stretch, moved up fast in the last three furlongs, went to the front reaching the stretch and drew out as if much the best. EMPLOYMENT had good speed, disposed of LUCKY PRINCE and continued with good energy to the end. SILVER WRACK went wide at the head of the stretch and closed determinedly under punishment. LUCKY PRINCE was prominently placed from the start, but was unable to keep up in the closing drive. BRISBETTE had early speed. MOUSSEUR was never a factor.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Went to post at 5:32½. Off at 5:36. Winner C. H. Snider's b. g. (7), by Ormont—Sister Susie. Trained by W. A. Williams. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:48 4-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:41.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JIM ORMONT, $16.20, $6.80, $5.70. FRIGATE BIRD, $5.80, $4.70; CALGARY KAY, $19.

JIM ORMONT, away well, drew clear in the run down the back stretch and rated along in front, was never seriously threatened. FRIGATE BIRD improved his position gradually and closed going stoutly at the finish. CALGARY KAY, restrained early, closed with a rush on the outside through the stretch. POLLY CEE went prominently placed from the start, but weakened in the final furlong. ESPERANTO, away slowly, moved up on the inside through the stretch, was blocked and Maschek was forced to ease back. QUICK STEP went forwardly for the first six furlongs. SARSITA, in a jam at the first turn, was taken up sharply and was unable to recover.

At the Post . . .

Rockingham Park, July 17.

Dear Al:

The Bennings horses were running over each other today in crowding their way itno the money circle, but on only one occasion did they take down the main end of the purse. At that, it took a scratch to get Cabouse home at a $6.60 mutuel. Little Dinah, Old Judge, Little Stokes and Frigate Bird were all well-meant horses but had to be satisfied with second money. Truly, it was another bad day for the former Charles Town mutuel-wrecking concern. Clocker Mike turned up today with some suggestions for tomorrow. He "likes" this one and "likes" that one. However, I told him that I like myself but that is no reason I can run 6 furlongs in 1:11 1-5. What we want from Mike is something cozy and on the inside. Until then, I told him to keep his likes and dislikes to himself. That is, if he likes to eat.

BILL.

First race—Paper Moon gets an inside post position in this limit field and is assigned the capable Ellis for saddle work. This combination appears most formidable in the group. Sweepogan and Justa Jane to battle it out for the other awards.

Second race—Twidgets is the lightweight of this party and seems well suited. Likes this distance and has been moving fast in morning trials. Maschek will do the booting. Migratory won at box car odds last out and is dangerous despite the fact he moves up. Mayvite for the show.

Third race—Kal-Finn will draw the bulk of the mutuel play in this sprint. He deserves backing. The 5-furlong dash is his best route and the top weight should not bother him. Distribute for the place and Race Street for the show. The last-named has had a rest and, if on his good behavior at the post, will be hard ot beat.

Fourth race—I'm going to give Dark Hope another chance in an effort to put over a sizable mutuel. If this fellow can be coaxed away from the gate with the others it will be all over except the pay-off. High Glee and Teralice for the second and third money.

Fifth race—If Star Fire, also entered in the fourth race, is reserved for this test, I will string along. Workman is slated to ride. Ridgeview and Flying Cadet figure close to the top one. Clocker Mike leans toward Source Circle as a long-shot possibility.

Sixth race—Old Depot and Adobe Post meet again here. I prefer them in the order named. One Chance may be the sleeper in this field. Due to awake and this may be the spot.

Seventh race—Below Cost shapes up as one to beat in this race. Helm needs only to put up a steady ride. Rock Point and Lauretta Nash for the place and show.

Eighth race—Rhodius may hop out in front of this gang and stay there all the way. In fine form now and apparently patrial to a mile. Kibitzer should be a factor. Hernando for the rest.

Portden Wins At Empire By Neck

Son of Porter Returns to Races, Victor Over Spoilt Beauty.

EMPIRE CITY RACE TRACK, July 17 (AP).—The Geneseo Stable's Portden, making, his first public appearance since early May at Jamaica, was driven to the limit to win the fourth race, which served as the nearest thing to a feature here today. The son of The Porter just lasted to prevail by a neck over the B. B. Stable's Spoilt Beauty. James Kelly's General A., supposed to be a good thing in the race and held at 4 to 5, was headed for the place. Portden paid 4 to 1 and covered the abbreviated six furlongs distance in 1:09 4-5.

Humphries Gets Mount.

Little Charlie Rosengarten had been slated to ride Portden, but his fall from Phyllis Ann in the previous race caused him to cancel the mount in favor of Lee Humphries. The five pounds apprentice allowance was waived, Portden carrying 114 pounds.

General A. broke last and his backers groaned. Sammy Renick shot the favorite up very fast on the outside to reach contention. Spoilt Beauty, the leader at the head of the stretch, went wide and carried the General out with her. Humphries saved ground with Portden and his mount drew into a daylight advantage, but both Spoilt Beauty and General A. made strong bids in the final drive and the winner had to be hard urged to stick it out.

Martinsburg Netmen Win.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 17 (Spl.).—The Martinsburg Tennis Club scored a clean sweep in its matches with the St. James (Md.) team there, winning, 7 to 0. The matches were scheduled after the Millwood, Va., club had notified that it would be unable to come to Martinsburg for a scheduled appearance.

Stocks Drag Heavily Into Lower Ground

Rail Issues Turn Firm as Sales Volume Rises to 616,650 Shares.

New York, July 17 (AP).—Stocks continued to drag heavily today while the market waited for better news from the labor front.

The stock market put up more resistance to selling than it did yesterday, but declines outweighed gains at the finish. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 selected stocks closed .4 of a point lower at 76.8.

Volume on the Stock Exchange increased to 616,650 shares, compared with 589,720 shares yesterday. Relatively heavy turnover in Packard Motor, which sold at a new 1934 low, and several other low-priced issues contributed to the mild expansion in trading.

Rails Turn Firmer.

Rails, particularly the Western carrier shares that were under pressure in the preceding session, made a firmer stand, although there was not much in the day's news to aid them. Santa Fe and Southern Pacific rallied fractionally.

The decline of leading liquor shares to new 1934 lows was extended. National Distillers closed at 20, off ⅝. Motors were soft in the face of predictions of another month of sustained production. Hudson joined Packard in making a new 1934 low mark. Philip Morris was outstanding among scattered issues that showed strength. It moved forward to a new top for the year at 33½, up 1⅞.

Among the weak spots, losses of 2 points or more were suffered by Columbian Carbon, Simmons, Spiegel-May-Stern, American Shipbuilding and U. S. Tobacco.

Flurry of Buying.

A flurry of buying appeared in General Electric on rumors of what its impending second quarter earnings report would disclose. It finished up a small fraction on the day. With professional speculative activity still at a minimum, the usual trading favorites moved quietly in a narrow range.

Strength in commodities discouraged further selling in stocks, despite the spread of labor troubles.

A number of second-quarter earnings statements confirmed expectations of general improvement in corporation profits during the period, as compared with the 1933 quarter. Additional individual railroad carloading statements showed mixed tendencies compared with a year ago.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Holiday influences caused listlessness on the stock exchange today. Gilt-edged securities and foreign bonds eased on lack of support, while industrial and speculative shares suffered fractionally on realizing. Transatlantic issues were adversely affected by news from America, and the market closed easy.

Paris—Quietness prevailed in a slow session on the bourse today, wherein the San Francisco strike caused small losses because of the aprehension of traders. Prices later firmed to yesterday's levels. The closing was firm.

Goods Markets.

New York, July 17 (U.P.).—The Worth street cotton goods market was less active today, but this was considered a natural development in view of the rapid upswing in prices recently and the necessity of the market to adjust itself followins last week's heavy business.

Print cloth prices were firm, with 39-inch 80 squares selling at 9⅛@9¼ cents a yard for September delivery. The market on 39-inch 68x72's was 7⅝ cents for July and August. Some, however, being held at 7¾ cents.

Narrow sheetings prices were firm on a basis of 7⅝ cents for 37-inch 4-yard. Carded broadcloths were quiet at 7⅛ cents for 80x60s.

Wool Markets.

Boston, July 17 (A.P.).—(U. S. Dept. of Agriculture).—The wool market in Boston remained very sluggish. There was, however, an occasional small lot of wool moving as a manufacturer came into the market to cover current immediate requirements. The recent business of this nature included mostly fine wools. Fall greasy Texas wool brought around 81@83 cents, scoured basis, while eight-month staring wool moved at 75@76 cents. Graded clothing territory wool sold at 77@79 cents, scoured basis.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Current Interference of the Treasury Officials With the Silver Market Provides a Good Example of Bureaucracy at Its Worst.

By Ralph West Robey.

Around the New York silver market they are wondering if any other group in the country has been equally hard hit by the New Deal bureaucracy. If one is a silver trader, he can not make a move without running up against some kind of red tape. And it is endless red tape. It goes on and on and gets more and more entangled. What it all means, no one knows. Many traders doubt that even the Treasury knows. It is not regulation. It is interference, inefficiency, confusion, uncertainty.

As a market, of course, that for silver is not important. Compared with the volume of trading in stocks, cotton, wheat, &c., the amount of silver bought and sold is insignificant. This, however, is beside the point. The fact remains that we here have the Government laying its hand on a part of our economic system in a manner that defies all interpretation.

Apparently Higher Price Not Wanted by Treasury.

Suppose, for example, that the Government wanted the price of silver to advance. This, it seems to me, would not be an unreasonable expectation. Certainly the silver group that was responsible for getting the legislation passed wanted the metal to rise in value. They had no particular love for the mere idea of getting more silver in our monetary system. That argument was used only as an effective means for getting a higher price for the metal. One might suppose, therefore, that if the Treasury was going to make any effort at appeasing the demands of the silver lobby, it would follow a policy designed to help the value of the metal.

Obviously, however, this is not the purpose of the present program. To get higher prices one needs an active market. Speculation, if not actually encouraged, certainly should not be eliminated. Public interest should be aroused, not killed.

All of this is the exact reverse of what the Treasury is doing. Traders are afraid to move. Even the banks, it is said, have difficulty carrying out their normal hedging operations in connection with financing Oriental trade.

Is Possible Treasury Wants Market Eliminated.

Another possibility is that the Treasury wants to eliminate the silver market. A good portion of its recent tactics would seem to indicate that. But if it wants to accomplish this, why should it follow a course of slowly strangling the market? It has the authority to nationalize silver. If it desires to eliminate all trading in the metal, why not take this simple means? No one, not even a silver speculator, likes to be killed by inches.

It is not difficult to understand, therefore, why some people find it hard to believe that the Government knows whether it is going or coming in connection with silver. The difficult thing is to find reasons for believing otherwise. Superficially it appears the market simply is being run in keeping with the best traditions of bureaucracy—assuring that everyone will lose but no one gain.

Bond Market Declines Under Profit-Taking

Federals and Some Rails Lead in Slump; Sales, $11,982,000.

Owing to an expansion of activity in the Federal section, transfers amounted to $11,982,000, par value, against $9,198,000 in the previous session.

The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues was off .2 of a point at 86.8.

News Fails to Aid.

Aside from the strike situation there was little news that might have interested the market as a whole. Some selling of carrier bonds was attributed to predictions that June earnings statements would not make pleasant reading. The growing costs of railroad operation were also viewed with some misgiving.

Losers of a point or more included some loans of Alleghany Corporation, Atlantic Coast Line, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwetsern, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Otis Steel, Philadelphia Reading Coal & Iron, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway and Texas & Pacific.

Milwaukee & Northern first 4½s dropped 6½ points to 87½. Southern 6s lost 5 at 80 and the road's 6½s were off 3⅛ at 78⅛.

On Gaining List.

On the other hand, Missouri-Illinois 5s gained 4 points at 24¾, Tennessee Electric Power 6s were up 2 at 89, and relative firmness was shown by some bonds of Central Pacific, Chesapeake Corporation, Cleveland Union Terminal, Consolidated Gas, Gannett Co., Laclede Gas, North American, Postal Telegraph, United Drug and Western Pacific.

Although Treasury 3¾s and Federal Farm 3¼s were slightly higher, losses throughout the remainder of the Government list ranged from 1-32d to 4-32ds of a point.

German obligations rallied moderately on reports that the Reich had decided to service the Young and Dawes plan loans in America. There was still some confusion, however, as to just what Berlin would actually do regarding interest payments. Other foreign loans were quiet and somewhat mixed.

The Dollar Abroad

(Associated Press.)

In London the American currency held unchanged at 5.04 to the pound, while sterling lost ⅛ of a cent in New York at $5.04⅛.

The price of gold in London declined a half penny to 137 shillings 11 pence a fine ounce (equivalent to $34.76), and bars valued at about $1,335,931 were sold.

The dollar was a shade lower in Paris at the equivalent of 6.60½ cents to the franc, while the latter declined .00¼ of a cent in New York to 6.60¾ cents.

Curb's Prices Close Mixed In Quiet Sales

Specialties Show Strength as Trading Rises to 134,000 Shares.

New York, July 17 (AP).—Mixed quotations prevailed at the end of today's quiet curb session. A few stocks sold off sharply on small volume, but in the general list movements were narrow. A number of specialties displayed strength.

Utilities were heavy in spots and alcohols continued to meet selling. Some of the oils were resistant while metals showed minor changes.

Commonwealth Edison, Cities Service 6 per cent preferred, Duke Power and Great Atlantic & Pacific dropped 3 to around 4 points in light volume. Hiram Walker, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, A. O. Smith, Pan American Airways and Glen Alden Coal Ranged major fractions to 2 points lower.

Electric Bond & Share, Swift & Co., Wright Hargreaves and Standard Oil of Indiana were steady. Phillip Morris (new) continued its move into new high ground with a gain of more than a point. A firm tone was shown by Carrier Corporation, Safety Car Heating, International Petroleum and Greyhound Corporation.

Transfers approximated 134,000 shares compared with 121,000 yesterday.

Farm Products Continue Rise, Lead by Grain, Cotton Markets

Domestic Cash Wheat Price Climbs 10 to 14 Cents Per Bushel; Eggs and Butter Turn Irregular; Livestock Weakens Under Heavy Supplies.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Economics).

Upward mid-month price trend was the rule for the most important farm staples led by grain and cotton.

Cash grain markets advanced 5 to 10 cents the second week of July and spot cotton gained one cent, approaching the 13-cent average. But dairy and poultry products and most vegetables did not join the upswing. Livestock markets weakened under heavy supplies. Eggs and butter were irregular.

Best eggs sold slightly higher. Cheese position weakened on reports of heavy stocks in storage. Potatoes held market position with difficulty, although shipment control was expected to improve conditions. Apples sold at wide range of prices but large fruit still sells fairly high.

Cotton Prices Advance.

Average prices of spot cotton advanced almost 1 per cent pound during the second week of July, responding particularly to the official acreage estimate that was smaller than the trade had anticipated, and to unfavorable weather conditions.

Sales of cotton and cotton goods were larger than during the week before, but June consumption was about 30 per cent below that of May, and there were indications of a continued low rate of mill activity in July. New England and Southern mill centers reported quiet conditions. Inquires for raw cotton were few and mostly on small lots. Prices of most standard lines of cotton cloths advanced materially.

These increases in price were enough to offset the recent increases in raw cotton prices so that gross manufacturing margins probably remained about the same level. Inquires for spot cotton for shipment abroad were reported as more numerous than for several weeks past. Dry weather is causing further crop damage in Texas, Oklahoma and parts of Arkansas. In the eastern cotton growing States where too much rain has fallen, reports continue to indicate heavy weevil infestation and grassy fields.

Grain Sharply Higher.

Domestic cash wheat price led the general grain market, around the middle of the month, and rose 10 to 14 cents per bushel. Marketings of winter wheat fell off at the principal central and Southwestern markets. Arrivals were smaller at all points except St. Louis where the advancing harvest in soft winter wheat areas resulted in heavier shipments. Many cars tested over 16 per cent protein, with some as high as 18 per cent. Many mills were buying low protein soft winter wheat for mixing with high protein types.

Spring wheat markets advanced sharply, influenced by a more active milling demand. Feed grain markets strengthened as a result of unfavorable new crop prospects, but demand remained only moderate and the relatively light offerings were about sufficient for trade needs. Prospective total corn supply for the remainder of the current season and next year is only 2,621,000,000 bushels compared with 3,020,000,000 bushels for the corresponding period last year.

The prospect is that the oats harvest will be the lowest in many years. The supply of feed grains per animal unit is 90 per cent of the 5-year average. Hay supplies in relation to animal units are particularly short in the West North Central States where the percentage is only 51 per cent of the 5-year average.

Livestock Supplies Rise.

Receipts of livestock at 11 important public markets showed increases. The Chicago hog top continued to stay close to the $5 line the second week of July. Eastern shippers absorbed larger numbers than during any preceding week since February. Quality was materially better than during the greater part of June. Demand for fed steers on shipping account improved and receipts of the better grades diminished.

The market for grass steers was relatively well supported. Best fed steers with weight topped the Chicago trading at $10.35, long yearlings stopping at $9. Most thin native stocker steers sold in Chicago at $2.75@$3.50, but best Westerns made $4@$4.50. Larger supplies, with a sluggish dressed market, proved a combination that placed the buying side in command of the fat lamb trade. The bulk of the fat lambs and yearlings sold at Chicago 75 cents to $1 lower than the week before, and at a new low for the season. From an extreme top of $8.50 on best native lambs the market broke to $7.50.

Although trading in wools on the Boston market continued of small volume, opinion on the part of selling agencies gained ground that mills are on the verge of entering the market, which tended to give confidence in the future trade. Ohio and similar fleeces had a very limited call. A little of this business was on strictly combing 64s and finer wools at 30@31 cents in the grease.

Vegetable Markets Weak.

Prices of most vegetables, melons and peaches declined under liberal supplies and much poor stock on hand. Prices of potatoes have continued downward so far this month. Prices at Virginia shipping points were down 15 cents a barrel. Idaho sacked Bliss Triumphs still sold at $1.80 per 100 pounds carlot sales in Chicago.

New Jersey yellow onions sold steady at $1.35@$1.50 per 50-pound sack in New York City. California Iceberg lettuce declined $1@$1.75 in city markets, ranging $1.75@$2.50 per crate of 4 to 5 dozen heads, compared with $3@$4.50 in early July.

Corn Climbs; Wheat Mounts 1 to 1½ Cents

Crop Damages and Cut in Receipts Advance All Grains.

Chicago, July 17 (AP).—Corn crop losses of almost incredible magnitude reported by a foremost trade authority gave an exciting upward whirl to all grain prices today.

and rye both outdid the season's

In dealings on a big scale, corn previous top record quotations, with corn and wheat each showing an overnight maximum rise of 3 cents a bushel and with wheat surpassing any heights reached in more than a month.

Impairment of corn yields in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska was unofficially estimated as totaling 283,000,000 bushels so far during July because of prolonged torrid heat and abnormal drought.

Selling Causes Reaction.

Rushes of selling to realize profits led to late reactions, but the close for corn was relatively strong notwithstanding, ⅞-1¾ above yesterday's finish. Wheat closed nervous, 1 cent to 1½ cents up; oats, unchanged to ½ higher, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to an equal gain.

Rising prices for corn resulted in greatly expanded rural offerings from States less affected by unfavorable crop conditions. Chicago handlers accepted 1,805,000 bushels today to be shipped here from rural sources, an amount seldom equaled in a single 24-hour period. Tending to confirm the unofficial estimate of corn crop losses were Government reports telling of temperatures as high as 117 in Nebraska burning up corn where moisture was lacking.

Detailed advices were also at hand from many places in Kansas, and other States Southwest telling of alarming conditions for corn.

Damage to Corn.

Although corn crop complaints from the Southwest and West have been persistent of late, the full extent of the damage was apparently not generally recognized until now. Some calculations current today indicated that the crop in the drought region was deteriorating at present at the rate of 13,000,000 bushels in each 24 hours.

The comprehensive trade summary which chiefly focused attention figured the probable 1935 corn yield of Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Texas and Oklahoma as 237,000,000 bushels, against 459,000,000 bushels, the Government July estimate, and 550,000,000 bushels, last year's harvest.

Wheat, rye and oats borrowed strength chiefly from corn. An independent stimulus as to wheat was the fact that primary receipts for the first since the new crop started to move were smaller than a year ago. There were also Canadian advices that drought was spreading northward. An additional bullish influence was word that the United States Department of Agriculture is considering an exchange of Pacific Coast domestic soft winter wheat for Canadian Durum wheat. Provisions averaged higher, responsive to corn market upturns.

Cotton Crops' Size May Vary Widely

Sales From 1934 Yield Expected to Hold Around 10,460,000 Bales.

New York, July 17.—The current cotton crop may vary widely in size according to whether the yield per acre is high or low. A report issued by the New York Cotton Exchange Service indicates that the maximum and minimum cotton baleage indications on the planted area of 28,024,000 acres are 13,142,000 bales and 7,705,000 bales respectively.

Under the Bankhead act, sales from the current cotton crop may not exceed 10,460,000 bales. With an average yield per acre on the present acreage, production would be 10,211,000 bales.

"The indicated cotton acreage left for harvest this year, computed by deducting the average percentage abandonment in the past ten years from the planted acreage of 28,024,000 is 27,370,000 acres," says the Exchange Service. "Abandonment may prove, of course, to be somewhat larger or smaller than the average of 24 per cent in the 10 years from 1924 through 1933.

On the indicated harvested acreage of 27,370,000, production may vary widely according to whether the yield per acre is high or low. If the yield per acre in each State should be the highest that it has been in any one of the past 10 years, production would total 13,142,000 bales of 478 pounds net weight.

If the yield per acre in each State should be the lowest that it has been in any one of the past ten years, the outturn would be 7,705,000 bales. These two indications, 13,142,000 bales and 7,705,000 bales, furnish a rough measure of the maximum and minimum crop probabilities this year. If the yield per acre should be equal to the average of the past ten years, the crop would total 10,211,000 bales. Under the Bankhead act, sales from this year's crop may not exceed 10,460,000 bales of 478 pounds net weight.

Weather Development.

"Weather developments in the cotton belt were again unfavorable last week. Scattered rains of light to moderate intensity prevailed in the Atlantics and in Alabama during the greater part of the week. Mississippi and Louisiana had general rains on one day and widely scattered showers on two to three days. Tennessee, Arkansas and Oklahoma were practically dry. In Texas, rains fell on two to four days in the central and southern portions of the State, but the drought areas were unrelieved.

Temperatures ranged from below normal to normal in the eastern part of the belt, and from slightly below normal to slightly above normal in the central portion, in the western part of the belt, temperatures were generally above normal.

Weevil numbers and damage are reported to be increasing rapidly in the eastern and central portions of the belt, following continued rains and low temperatures. In the West, weevil numbers have been held down by the dry, hot weather, but the plant is suffering from the prolonged drought."

Park Recalls Mormon Sect's Revolt in Iowa

Preparation Canyon Site of Thompson's Ouster Picked for Use.

Onawa, Iowa (U.P.).—Plans under way to construct a public park in "Preparation Canyon," near here, have revived the story of a former Mormon leader who ruled his sect with so harsh a hand that they finally turned against him and frightened him out of their group with the threat of lynching.

The story dates back to 1853, when Charles Blancher Thompson, then a member of the Mormon settlement at Nauvoo, Ill., saw visions and received messages commanding him to break away with a few of the faithful and lead his followers West.

Thompson and his followers stopped en route at Preparation Canyon, where he set up his school to prepare them.

Sect Leader Flees.

The preparatory school consisted of some 25 acres of wild ravine and forest where the group settled.

First rumblings of dissension in the colony came when Thompson showed marked acquisitive tendencies. Ruling it was sinful for any of the cult members to own property, he slowly acquired title to all the land, in addition to acquiring earthly treasures.

Finally, insurgent members went after him with a rope in a vigorous fashion. Thompson did not receive his callers. Legend has it that he slammed the back door as his followers were hammering on the front.

Primitive Woods Remain.

In the haste of departure, he neglected to take with him the titles to the property. Subsequently a special act of the State Legislature returned it to the original owners.

The territory where the colony located is still untouched by the inroads of civilization. Thompson would not allow any wood to be cut, nor any roads to be built approaching the property.

Since his departure it has remained largely unchanged. Every tree native to Iowa is to be found there. The wild undergrowth which has sprung up has made the spot a paradise for wild life and birds.

Virginia Republicans Called for Saturday

Lynchburg, July 17 (AP).—A call was issued today for meetings of the Republican State executive committee and the general State committee, at the Patrick Henry Hotel, Roanoke, on Saturday July 28.

The call was issued by Fred W. McWane, of Lynchburg, secretary of the State organization. Presumably the question of calling a State convention will come up for discussion. Among the other matters of business will be the filling of several committee vacancies.

Walt Mason, Himself

How It Goes.

Now and then the learned physician comes home from his weary round, in a broken-down condition, wishing he were underground. All the day he has been chasing from one patient to the next, on his healing errands racing, often worried and perplext. He has treated Johnson's bunions, telling him to feed on kraut, he's prescribed a stew of onions for Jim Jones, who has the gout. All the day he has been scooting waiting on the ailing tribe, and he often felt like hooting when their ailment they describe. Now he's feeling truly splendid, to some comfort he may look for the day of toil is ended, he may rest and read a book. "Not unless a man is dying shall I leave my house tonight," he remarks, and knows he's lying, though such lies are purely white. Sleep its solace soon is bringing to the tired doc in his chair, but the telephone is ringing and he gets up in despair. It's a word from old Dad Procter, who's afflicted with the heaves, he is waiting for the doctor, and he murmurs and he grieves. Once again the doc goes drilling through the rain and slush and mud, and he'd think it worth a shilling just to shed one patient's blood.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY Arson! By Harry J. Tuthill

GEORGE! WHY DO YOU STALK INTO THIS HOUSE LOOKING SO UTTERLY GRIM? AND WHAT'S THAT PIECE OF IRON HINGE IN YOUR POCKET? HAVE YOU BEEN THREATENING THE NEIGHBORS AGAIN?
LISTEN JO, HAVEN'T YOU HEARD ABOUT THE TERRIBLE THING THAT HAPPENED THIS MORNING?
WHAT? SOMETHING TERRIBLE HAPPENED? WHAT WAS IT? OH GEORGE! IS IT...?
YES! BOUNDER LODGE HALL NO. 9 BURNED TO THE GROUND. IT WAS AN INSIDE JOB. WHEN THE BOLSHEVIKI ELEMENT FOUND THEY COULDN'T BE IN THE SADDLE, THEY SHOT THE HORSE.
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. 7-18
THE LODGE HALL! OH I WAS AFRAID SOMETHING HAPPENED TO MONTGOMERY EL DORADO'S YACHT.
THE FLAMES WERE DISCOVERED AT 9:32. AT 9:36 THE FIRE DEPARTMENT GOT THERE AND FOUGHT LIKE LIONS, BUT AT 10:05 GAVE UP HOPE. I GOT THERE BY USING TWO TAXIS, AT 10:14.
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y.
OH WHAT A RELIEF! HEAVENLY DAYS, WHAT A SCARE I GOT WHEN YOU WALKED IN JANGLING THAT IRON IN YOUR POCKET AND...
THIS IS EVIDENCE THAT I GATHERED UP IN THE RUINS. I'M HOLDING IT UNTIL CERTAIN PARTIES CLAIM THE FIRE WAS STARTED BY MICE TRYING TO EAT MATCHES. THOSE PHONIES.

HEY—YOU FELLOWS! WHAT ARE YOU DOING THERE? — THAT'S PRIVATE PROPERTY!
AW—JUMP IN THE LAKE!
GO AWAY—YOU ANNOY US!
SMART ALECKS EH? WELL, YOU GET OFF OR I'LL HAVE YOU PUT OFF—
YOU NASTY MAN!
EDGIE! CAREFUL!
C'MON,—I'LL TAKE YOU ON ONE AT A TIME—
SAY—IF YOU DIDN'T HAVE THAT LADY WITH YOU I'D MAKE HAMBURGER STEAK OUT OF YOU IN TWO SECONDS

THE GUMPS What a Laugh

WAIT A MINUTE! ONE AT A TIME THERE— YOU'LL ALL GET A RIDE— DON'T CROWD— HAVE A LITTLE PATIENCE— GET IN LINE— I'M NOT GOING TO RUN AWAY—
I'LL SHOW THESE NATIVES HOW TO REALLY CATCH FISH— WHEN OLD TIMER SEES THIS ONE HE'LL THINK I BROUGHT IT WITH ME— IF THIS BABY LIVED TWO YEARS LONGER IT WOULD FILL THE LAKE—
HOW DO YOU LIKE THOSE FOR FISH, OLD TIMER?
FISH— YOU DON'T CALL THOSE FISH— LEAVE IT TO THE AMATEURS TO BRING IN THE MINNOWS— WHAT DID YOU DO— CATCH 'EM ON A PIN?

LIVING IN A BASEMENT LIKE A COUPLA RATS! STEVE WAS RIGHT—IT DOESN'T DO ANY GOOD TO RUN AWAY FROM THE COPS.. .THEY'LL FIND US EVENTUALLY!
WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH YOU, LU? WHY DON'T YOU LIE DOWN AND GO TO SLEEP.
I CAN'T! I'VE GOT THE JITTERS! THIS PLACE IS HAUNTED!
I KEEP SEEING THAT ENGLISHMEN COMING DOWN THOSE STEPS! I KEEP HEARING NOISES. WHY DIDN'T WE FINISH THAT SCOTTY GUY OFF WHEN WE HAD THE CHANCE?
LU, PIPE DOWN! HE CAN'T HARM US! HE'S HOME IN A WHEEL CHAIR, PARALYZED. THE PAPERS SAID SO.
NO, HE'S NOT! HE'S RIGHT HERE-SOMEWHERE.. HE'S GOING TO KILL US, STEVE.. HE'S GOING TO KILL US!
SNAP OUT OF IT, LU— YOU'RE GOING CRAZY!
